Kennedy Enters Presidential Race

1st Catholic Contender Since Smith

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts moved formally into the Democratic presidential race Saturday with a challenge to potential rivals to meet him in the primaries.

Kennedy has been campaigning actively for months, but until Saturday had declined to avow his intentions. He is generally regarded as the front runner for the nomination, but his backers concede he is now well short of the backing he would need for a first-ballot victory at the convention.

The 42-year-old senator told 140 newsmen and about 300 cheering spectators crowded into the Senate Caucus Room that he is convinced he can win the nomination and the election.

If he doesn't get top place on his party's ticket, Kennedy said, he will not accept the vice presidential nomination "under any conditions." In 1956 he lost a bid for the No. 2 spot on the ticket to Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

Kennedy stood before a battery of microphones and read in his clipped Harvard accent a 350-word statement announcing his candidacy.

He conceded in reply to questions that his Roman Catholic religion is likely to be a "matter of substantial discussion in the campaign." But he said it will be of less interest to the voters than to the politicians.

Kennedy is the first Roman Catholic seriously to seek the Democratic presidential nomination since Alfred E. Smith was nominated in 1928.

Sen. John F. Kennedy

In his challenge to other aspirants to the nomination to enter state primaries, Kennedy excepted Adlai E. Stevenson, twice the party's presidential nominee.

He indicated he is accepting Stevenson's statement that "he has no plans to be a candidate."

The Democratic National Convention opens in Los Angeles July 11.

Of those considered as potential major contenders for the nomination, only Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota has indicated he will go into the primaries.

Humphrey has said he plans to enter the Wisconsin, District of Columbia, Oregon and South Dakota ballot tests. But he said he will not contest in New Hampshire, where Kennedy said his name will be filed.

Among other possible rivals, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas have made it clear they will not consent to enter any primaries. Neither is now an avowed candidate. All of the potential candidates, however, are likely to find their names in Oregon's May 20 free-for-all. Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon has said his name will be entered there as a favorite son.

Kennedy said he will decide in the next few weeks whether to go into Wisconsin, Nebraska, Maryland, Ohio, and other states. He did not exclude the possibility of a race in California where Gov. Edmund G. Pat Brown has made it clear he wants to be unopposed as a favorite son.

Kennedy described the presi-

Traffic Toll Rises At Record Pace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Midnight EST: 257 traffic, 43 fires, 55 miscellaneous. Total: 355.

Traffic fatalities mounted at a record pace Saturday night, threatening to send the final toll to an all-time high for a three-day New Year's observance.

At the 48-hour mark, 235 traffic deaths were counted compared with 210 for a similar period during the record three-day New Year's weekend of 1955-56. There were 364 traffic deaths then.

The National Safety Council estimated before the start of the present 78-hour holiday, which began at 6 p.m. — local time — Thursday, that 320 persons might be killed in traffic accidents.

"The pace of the toll has slowed a bit, but it still is running at a rate that would set a new three-day New Year record," a council spokesman said.

He said that while traffic deaths were occurring at a rate of five an hour the possibility that the final toll would surpass the record 409 traffic fatalities of the four-day 1956-57 New Year weekend appeared to have lessened.

The toll climbed in clusters. The worst single accident of the weekend took nine lives Saturday in the head-on collision of a car and a station wagon on U.S. 27 between South Bay and Miami, Fla.

Veteran Florida state troopers on the scene said it was the worst highway accident they had ever seen.

For comparative purposes, The Associated Press conducted a non-holiday survey of traffic deaths for the three-day period, Dec. 10-13. It showed 324 persons killed during the 78-hour period.

During the three-day Christmas holiday, a period when holiday travel usually is much greater than on New Year's, a total of 493 traffic deaths were counted. In addition, 61 deaths resulted from fires, and 113 died in miscellaneous accidents during the Christmas weekend.

Red China Renews Bid For Top-Level Talks With India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Red China has renewed its bid for top-level talks with India over their bitter border dispute, saying the Peiping regime needs peace for its vast rebuilding program.

Premier Chou En-lai's new note, delivered Thursday and broadcast by Radio Peiping Saturday, seemed doomed for rejection because it offered virtually the same terms turned down previously by Prime Minister Nehru.

An Indian spokesman said the note, which reasserts Red China's claim to 40,000 square miles of territory India considers its own, is under study.

One new note sounded by Chou was the suggestion that the entire boundary be negotiated from the beginning. This seemed to be an invitation to India to sit down and argue for the disputed territories on cultural and historic grounds, rather than on the basis of old treaties and agreements Peiping refuses to accept.

Persons familiar with the border dispute said they believe Nehru is unlikely to agree to this.

The Red Chinese note is the message Nehru was said to be awaiting before considering a meeting with Chou.

Once more Chou maintained that the disputed territory on the Himalayan frontier always has belonged to China, as "conclusively borne out by Chinese official documents and records."

Once more Chou proposed that both sides withdraw border forces 20 kilometers, about 12½ miles, "or some other distance considered appropriate by both sides."

Chou set no date for talks with Nehru.

GUINNESS PRAISED

"Sir Alex is a perfectionist, very disciplined," says Miss Barry. "Seldom would he chat between scenes. It was only after the entire show had been taped that Alec broke from his disciplined, withdrawn attitude."

DEFENDS HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Broadway actors don't know what they're talking about when they complain about going west and being stuck in one kind of role, says movie producer Charles Schnee.

In the first place, contends Schnee, Broadway traditionally has more type-casting than Hollywood.

"Ina Claire, Helen Hayes, the Barrymores, Katherine Cornell—yes, and Lunt and Fontanne — underwent over the years more of the same roles than have any film luminaries in Hollywood," claims Schnee.

Accuse 15 Companies Of Giving Illegal Payola

Call Pay-Offs Illegal Acts Of Competition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission accused 15 record manufacturers and distributors Saturday of giving illegal payola to radio and television disc jockeys.

The charges were identical with those lodged Dec. 3 against the Radio Corp. of America and eight other companies. In all cases the companies were alleged to have given disc jockeys money or other valuable considerations to "expose their recordings."

The FTC defines "exposure" as playing a record day after day, sometimes as much as 6 to 10 times daily, and thus boosting its sales by creating the impression that it is highly popular.

"This deception," the agency charges, "tends to mislead purchasers into buying the 'exposed' records which they might not otherwise have purchased, and also to advance these recordings in popularity polls, which in turn tends to increase their sales substantially."

The agency said "these pay-offs are unfair methods of competition forbidden by the FTC Act because they have the capacity to suppress competition and to divert trade unfairly from respondents' competitors."

The Radio Corp. of America quickly agreed last month to a consent order forbidding the payment of payola and complimented the FTC for its crackdown on the practice.

The manufacturers named in Saturday's complaints are Fury Records, Inc.; Laurie Records, Inc.; Abel Productions, Inc.; Roulette Records, Inc.; and Atlantic Recording Corp., all of New York City; and Class Record Sales, Los Angeles.

The independent distributors accused are Marnel Distributing Co., Inc.; Edward S. Cohn, doing business as Lesco Distributors; and Mainline Distributors, Inc., all of Philadelphia; Action Records, Inc., New York City; and Duke Records, Inc., Houston, Tex.

Four affiliated companies were named in the 11th complaint — Cosnat Distributing Corp. and Jay-

Find Woman Dead In Apartment Of Lawrence Tibbett

The woman, Betty Fox, 44, was in bed clad in a nightgown.

Tibbett, 63, had not been in the upper East Side apartment since Wednesday, when he went to Roosevelt Hospital for treatment of arthritis.

The singer said in the hospital that Mrs. Fox, a divorcee, was "a very old friend of mine."

He said she had been under psychiatric care and recently had been released from a sanatorium. She was at the apartment, in ill health, at the time he went to the hospital, he asserted.

A doorman said he had last seen Mrs. Fox the day before New Year's.

Police said she was divorced two years ago from Dr. Charles Fox Jr. They said she lived in Manhattan and often visited the Tibbett apartment.

Tibbett said he and his wife, the former Jane Marston Burgard, had been legally separated for six years.

Beside the bed in the Tibbett apartment were two empty vials that had contained sleeping pills. One of the prescriptions had been filled last Wednesday.

A medical examiner's report was being awaited for the cause of death.

The body was found by Anna Kos, a nurse who works in a doctor's office in the same apartment building.

The nurse went to the Tibbett suite after Mrs. Fox's sister, Mrs. Daniel Brahms of Westport, Conn., telephoned the office and said she had not been able to reach Mrs. Fox by telephone.

The door to the suite was closed but not locked.

The hospital said Tibbett had been a patient from Dec. 21 to 24, and had been readmitted on Wednesday.

He said he told Mrs. Fox on Wednesday to remain at his apartment and to give him a call in two days.

She did not call, whereupon he tried Saturday to reach her by telephone both at his apartment and her own West Side apartment. Getting no reply, he then called Mrs. Brahms, who in turn called the nurse.

STEPHEN DOUGLAS' GRANDSON DIES

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP) — Robert Dick Douglas, grandson of Stephen A. Douglas, the "Little Giant" of the Lincoln-Douglas debates, died Friday at a convalescent home at nearby High Point.

The 84-year-old lawyer was a former North Carolina attorney general and former Greensboro postmaster. He had been in bad health for about six months and had been at the convalescent home for about 2½ months.

Freighter Breaks Up In South China Sea, Believe All 37 Safe

SINGAPORE (AP) — Courage and seamanship triumphed Saturday over whistling gales and raging seas that broke the American freighter Valley Forge on reefs of the South China Sea.

The ship's agents said Saturday night all 37 men aboard were believed safe after three days of rescue operations in the angry waters about 50 miles southwest of Singapore.

A tug and a minesweeper picked up 30 of the crew. The Indonesian government said the captain, Peter F. Petrone of Absecon, N. J., "and his crew" were safe on the Indonesian island of Bintan, not far from the scene of the wreck.

Ship's agents said they believed this would account for the remaining seven, who abandoned ship and put out in a lifeboat Friday. A search plane spotted them earlier.

The sea drama began Thursday when the 7,202-ton freighter, en route from Portland, Ore., to India with a full load of wheat ran hard on Barlang Kap rock in stormy seas.

SOS messages told of the growing peril to the stricken freighter —five holds awash and flooding, then the hull breaking apart at the seams, apparently as the wet wheat swelled.

The tug Griper reached the scene as the freighter began to break up. The Valley Forge got off a life boat and put eight of the crewmen aboard the tug despite the mountainous seas.

The lifeboat, manned by 4 seamen returned to the freighter, picked up 18 more crewmen, and started back to the Griper. It was last seen "drifting away in terribly rough weather," an agent's spokesman said.

British Royal Air Force planes, two British minesweepers, and a New Zealand frigate took up the search for the 22 in the lifeboat. The crew made it to an uninhabited islet near the wreck scene. The 22 were picked up by the British minesweeper Fiskerton.

The Griper stood by the Valley Forge where the captain and six others still held out. The tug's decks were awash. Finally, the tug was forced to return to Singapore.

Four Stranded By Blizzard, Found Dead

GLASGOW, Mont. (AP) — Four persons stranded by a blinding New Year's Eve blizzard in isolated ranch country were found dead Saturday a mile from their snowbound pickup truck.

They were Mrs. Joseph Birkoski, 52, two of her 12 children, Johnny 13 and Margaret 12, and her brother-in-law, Mike Birkoski, 49, a rancher.

This brought to five the number of exposure deaths in Montana since snow and cold surged into the state Thursday.

The Birkoskis left their Glasgow home in the pickup truck Thursday noon for a holiday visit with Mrs. Birkoski's husband, Joseph, 46, an employe at a sheep ranch 30 miles northeast of here.

Sheriff Hugh Borton said the four ran into the blizzard about five miles from the camp. The truck became snowbound on a country trail. High winds had kicked a 1-foot snow into drifts of 6 to 8 feet.

Officers theorized that Mike Birkoski, well acquainted with the country, figured the four could make their way the final five miles through the storm. The truck had a heater and its gas tank was three-quarters full.

Bodies of the mother, the boy and Birkoski were found together along a wire fence. The girl's body also was along the fence but 100 to 200 yards ahead.

To Test Polio Vaccine Using Live Viruses

NEW YORK (AP)—Tests of the Sabin polio vaccine using live viruses will be made for the first time in the United States in the South, Midwest and East, the National Foundation said Saturday.

The foundation granted $300,000 for the tests to be conducted in Houston, Tex., Cleveland, Ohio, and New Haven, Conn.

The Sabin vaccine, developed by Dr. Albert B. Sabin of the University of Cincinnati under March of Dimes grants, differs from the Salk vaccine in that it can be taken by mouth and contains weakened strains of live polio viruses rather than killed viruses.

The foundation gave the bulk of the money—$170,884—to Baylor University, where Dr. Joseph L. Melnick will direct a community trial in Houston with 4,400 persons under study, 250 of whom will receive the Sabin vaccine.

Social Security Completes 20 Years Of Benefit Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Checks aggregating about 850 million dollars were mailed to 13¾ million Americans Saturday to round out 20 years of monthly social security benefits.

A year ago 12½ million men, women and children were being paid 697 million dollars a month.

Social Security Commissioner William L. Mitchell noted in a statement Saturday that the first monthly benefits under the federal social insurance system were paid out for the month of January 1940 just 20 years ago.

Since that time, 21 million beneficiaries have received a total of $50,400,000,000. The totals include benefits to disabled workers and their dependents, which were provided by 1956 amendments to the law.

Retired workers and their dependents have received $38,100,000,000; survivors of covered workers who have died have received $11,600,000,000; and about 750 million has gone to disabled workers aged 50 to 65 and their dependents. In addition to these monthly benefit totals, lump-sum payments to survivors have amounted to $1,200,000,000.

Social security benefits are financed by a special payroll tax. The tax went up Friday.

The maximum increase on covered workers will be $24 a year. There is a similar increase on employers for each worker. For self-employed the maximum increase will be $36 a year.

The new rate will be 3 per cent on both workers and employers on the first $4,800 of earnings, and 4½ per cent for self-employed up to the same annual earnings.

The tax on the self-employed will not be due until early 1961, but for employes and employers it becomes effective with the first pay checks received in January or thereafter.

The year 1960 will be the Chinese "Year of the Rat."

Believe Actress' Death Caused By Barbiturates

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—An autopsy in the death of actress Margaret Sullavan Saturday showed what a coroner called "a clinical picture consistent with barbiturate acid poisoning."

But he said it was inconclusive —that a similar condition could have been caused by some other element.

Coroner James J. Corrigan said her death may have resulted from an unintentional overdose of sleeping pills. He said definite findings would come after completion of laboratory tests Monday or Tuesday.

Miss Sullavan's understudy has taken over the female lead in the play, "Sweet Love Remember'd," which opened Monday.

QUINCY MAN DIES IN MEXICO

Stilwell died in the Sanatorio Particular.

His attorney here, Victor Luna, is handling funeral arrangements but he said they have not yet been completed.

$100,000 Fire Sweeps Soybean Plant In Iowa

WEST BEND, Iowa (AP)—Damage was estimated at more than $100,000 from a fire which swept through a soybean processing plant in this northwest Iowa town today.

R. W. Jurgen, manager of the West Bend cooperative which owned the plant, said the structure and its contents were destroyed.

Dave Zaugg, about 55, volunteer fireman from West Bend, suffered a heart attack after he fell while fighting the fire inside the structure.

Fire units from surrounding towns were sent to the scene as a pall of black smoke enveloped the area.

Fire officials said they were having trouble containing the blaze because soybean oil, which saturated the plant, was burning.

Ornery Weather-From West Coast Through All Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The most severe cold weather in a decade knifed through Southern California Saturday, dropping the temperature to 20 in citrus-growing area.

Growers feared that continued cold would damage fruit trees despite the widespread use of orchard heaters. More cold weather was forecast.

Through the northern Midwest states of Minnesota, upper Wisconsin and northern Michigan, 30 to 40-mile northerly winds whipped a snowfall of more than a foot into high drifts. The snowfall continued in all three states.

Los Angeles reported a temperature of 37 in the downtown area Saturday and even colder in outlying areas. Bird baths froze in Hollywood and in the nearby San Fernando Valley many streets were coated with ice.

San Maria, Calif., reported a temperature of 11 above zero, the lowest ever recorded there. San Francisco's airport temperature dipped to 31 and usually mild San Diego had a low of 38.

Farther east, the mercury dropped to -26 in West Yellowstone, Mont. An estimated 100 inches of snow was on the ground at Wolf Creek Pass in New Mexico, and 60 inches at Red Mountain. Many of New Mexico's roads were snow-packed, but traffic was moving.

Cloudiness, fog and drizzle were the weather's features in the Carolina Mountains. Augusta, Ga., had a 39-degree reading at noon.

But the ornery weather was the blizzard with its choking snow conditions and its chaser of cold which gave Glasgow, Mont., and 11-below zero noontime reading.

The storm was charged with causing at least eight deaths since it developed Thursday over Arizona and New Mexico.

The storm sweep piled snow on the Oklahoma and Texas panhandles, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, and Iowa before sweeping into the upper Mississippi Valley and western Great Lakes.

Some freezing rain and sleet hit along the southern side of the snowbelt, particularly in Iowa and central Wisconsin.

President Works On Budget, State Of Union Message

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — There was no golf Saturday for President Eisenhower as he bore down on his budget, State of the Union message, and a projected civil defense conference on fallout.

The conference is Jan. 25 with a committee of governors headed by Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Eisenhower, Budget Director Maurice H. Stans and three other advisers spent 2½ hours on budget matters Saturday morning, mostly on the language of the message which will blueprint an 81-billion-dollar balanced budget for Congress on Jan. 18.

The President set aside the afternoon and most of Sunday for similar chores on the State of the Union message—the one which sketches the administration's program for the coming year. Eisenhower delivers it to Congress in person next Thursday.

Eisenhower decided to skip golf Saturday anyway, it was cold and rain threatened—and church Sunday in order to give the key messages a careful grooming.

Apparently he also will bypass the customary conference with congressional leaders of both parties in advance of a new session.

Hargrove Admits For 2nd Time, He Fired Bullet That Killed His Paramour's Husband

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Floyd E. Hargrove admitted Saturday for a second time that he fired a sniper bullet that killed his paramour's husband, Charles R. Clark of Mentor, on Christmas Eve, Sheriff William B. Evans said.

Hargrove, with whom Clark's beautiful brunette wife, Lois, 30, had admitted an eight-month love affair earlier this year, had confessed the shooting a week ago but later repudiated his statement. He said he made up that admission to spare Mrs. Clark the strain of further investigation.

The new oral admission from the 35-year-old delivery truck driver, a divorced father of five, was elicited with evidence that he bought a .22-caliber, bolt-action rifle the day before the shooting.

Police Chief Frank D. Hathy of Mentor said handwriting experts had agreed a card filled out at a used gun dealer's store in nearby Chardon Dec. 23 was written by Hargrove.

A hunt got under way promptly for the rifle. Chief Hathy said Hargrove mentioned at least three locations where it might be found. A preliminary check failed to turn up the weapon.

Hargrove also led investigators to a lonely spot on a road south of Painesville. It was there, he said, that he fired a practice shot into a telephone pole after purchasing the gun. A bullet was plucked from the pole and sent to the State Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation.

In the statement he made a week ago and repudiated later, Hargrove said he threw the rifle into Lake Erie. Failure of skin divers to find it at the spot Hargrove described, and the results of a polygraph test given him Monday, resulted in authorities concluding his admission was false. They had released him.

Sheriff Evans, Chief Hathy and other investigators were unable to find clues pointing to anyone else in the mysterious slaying of Clark, 35, a successful electrical engineer, Boy Scout leader and Sunday school superintendent.

Clark was shot in the right temple while he stood in his kitchen. Investigators said the shot was fired through the window by someone who waited in the darkness of the Clarks' backyard.

Mrs. Clark, who was in another room and did not see the shooting, took a polygraph test Wednesday. After the test, Edward R. Ostrander, Lake County prosecutor, announced that he was convinced the former model and mother of four "knows nothing of the murder, nor did she perpetrate or collaborate in any way in arranging her husband's death."

An anonymous telephone call to authorities New Year's morning turned the investigation again in the direction of Hargrove. The caller provided the tip that Hargrove had bought a rifle in Chardon, using a fictitious name.

Living Heart Transplanted From One Dog To Another

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Two young Stanford surgeons have successfully transplanted a living heart from one dog to another.

The mongrel male dog was alive Wednesday, a week after the unusual operation.

The experiment was carried out at Stanford University's new medical center by Dr. Norman Shumway, 36, and Dr. Richard Lower, 30.

Dr. Lower, formerly of Detroit, has been a resident in surgery at Stanford since 1956. Dr. Whumway obtained his medical degree in 1949 from Vanderbilt University at Nashville, Tenn., and has been assistant professor of surgery at Stanford since 1956.

A medical school spokesman said he recalled a case in which another dog underwent such a heart transplant but lived only 7½ hours.

They left in the host dog a portion of the wall of the auricles, the upper chambers of the heart, including the area where the entering veins carry blood back into the heart.

They explained that venous blood flows somewhat more slowly than arterial blood and is more likely to clot.

Animals previously subjected to heart transplant operations died of clots.

The spokesman said that if such an operation could be successful in humans, there still would remain two problems—how to obtain hearts and store them, and how to overcome rejection by a human body of tissue coming from another person.

Birdsells Of New Berlin Are Dinner Hosts

NEW BERLIN — Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Birdsell, rural route two, New Berlin, had all their children together for Christmas for the first time in three years.

A bountiful dinner was served at noon. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Douglass, Philip, Michael, Mary Louise of Ashland; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hickey, David, Rebecca Diane, Jacksonville; Airman 2/c Hartley, home on leave, Marie, Billy and Clara; Richard Draughn of Springfield and the hosts.

Entertain Relatives

Mr. and Mrs. Birdsell entertained a group of relatives at a potluck dinner December 29 in honor of their son, A2/c Hartley Charles, who is home on leave after a two year stay in Fairbanks, Alaska.

PITTSFIELD—Miss Bertha Mae Duran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Duran of Pittsfield became the bride of Frank Symon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Symon of Springfield on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 30, at 4:00 p.m.

Roland Varner, Justice of the Peace, officiated in his office. The bride wore a black suit with black accessories and a white carnation corsage. The bridegroom has been employed at the shot factory in Springfield but they have moved to Pittsfield where he will be employed.

Sheriffs' Report

Charles Lowry, deputy sheriff of Pike County, took Kenneth Debert, Everett Daniels and Arthur McIntire to Vandalia this week, to begin terms at the state farm. Debert will serve 90 days for passing bad checks; Daniels will serve 90 days for vagrancy and McIntire will serve six months on a drunken driving condition.

Sales Tax Report

The city sales tax for September was $3,466.96 which makes a total of $52,481.39 since July of 1958 when Pittsfield started charging the extra ½ percent tax. All this money has been applied to the new lake project.

The Jacksonville District Annual Missionary dinner will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 13, at 6:30 at the Rushville Methodist Church. The speaker will be the Rev. E. R. Knettler, who served as a missionary in China and on an island of Formosa.

First Citizen

Pike County's first citizen of 1960 will receive many nice gifts from Pittsfield merchants, and the Illini Community Hospital will contribute free nursery care to the first baby. Mother and dad will not be forgotten as there are also gifts from the merchants for them also.

On Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Lewis left by car on Saturday morning for Corpus Christi, Texas where they will meet friends and enjoy some deep sea fishing. They will then motor to New Orleans where they will meet the Wendell Orr's of Griggsville at the Holiday Inn on Jan. 10. The two couples will then go by plane to Merida, Yucatan for a winters vacation. They plan to return around Feb. 1.

Adult Education

There will be registration for adult classes on Wednesday evening Jan. 6, at 7:00 p.m. at the Pittsfield high school building. These classes are offered by the Division of Technical and Adult Education, Southern Illinois University in cooperation with the Pittsfield Community. High school classes will be held on Monday and Wednesday evenings for twelve weeks.

Contract Approved

The city council held a special meeting this week and approved a contract with the Midwest Pool and Court Company of St. Louis for the proposed reconstruction improvement for the swimming pool in King Park. The contract was in two bids, with $27,075 for reconstruction and $7,340 for filtering. This includes all improvements except the bath house.

GIVES GLAMOR

Sliver blanched almonds while they are still warm and easy to cut; dry the nuts in a shallow pan in a slow oven. Keep on hand in a covered jar in the refrigerator to brown in butter and use to give glamor to cooked cauliflower, snap beans, green peas and broccoli.

GOOD SALAD

Some cooks like to mix lime and lemon flavored gelatin as a base for a salad, folding in grated carrot and crushed pineapple. Serve the salad on crisp greens with mayonnaise.

PAST MATRONS OF ASHLAND OES MEET AT WALKER HOME

ASHLAND—On Tuesday evening, Dec. 29, the past Matron's club met at the home of Mrs. Artie Walker for its annual Christmas party.

A potluck supper was served at 6:30, followed by the regular business meeting.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Artie Walker, Mrs. Freida Orne and Gertrude Christianer.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Louise Quinley on Jan. 29.

GLAZE THEM

Sportsmen At Meredosia Elect Lloyd Lathrop

MEREDOSIA— The Meredosia Sportsmen's Club held its second meeting of the month Wednesday with 20 members present.

It was announced that a derby shoot will be held Sunday, Jan. 3. President Joe Schneider suggested the possibility of building a six-foot overhang along the east side of the clubhouse to provide shade for both shooters and spectators, and protection against rain for the windows and door on that side of the clubhouse. No action was taken.

Officers were elected for next year as follows: president, Lloyd Lathrop; vice president, John Northrup; secretary, Maurice Kunzeman; treasurer, Joe Schneider; directors, John Lovekamp, Lew Cummings and W. G. Steinberg.

The next meeting will be Jan. 14, at which the outgoing officers will serve a 6 o'clock supper. They ask that all members come to help the club start the new year.

Chel Young, Romandale Rausch and W. G. Steinberg served assorted meats and cheese for build-your-own sandwiches, cookies, potato chips, coffee and pop.

Labor Dissension Appears Likely To Run On Into 1960

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dissension sometimes bordering on chaos marred labor-management relations during most of 1959. And it looks as though the quarreling will spill over into 1960.

Strike statistics tell the story. The year 1959 is going down in the books as one of the worst strike years on record. Only post-war 1946 took a greater toll in lost working time.

In a widely discussed speech, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell charged both labor and management with fumbling the ball. He said the problem of making the American economy work more efficiently is a real one requiring cooperation from both sides.

Mitchell said employers are trying to change long - established work practices too quickly and labor unions are too stubbornly resisting change.

The flood of 1959 strikes— in the steel, maritime, copper and meat-packing industries, just to name a few—led to talk of arming the government with more power to deal with labor strife. It's a question likely to be raised a good deal in the 1960 politicking.

Twice within a few days President Eisenhower invoked the injunction provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act to halt the record 116-day stel strike and a sudden walkout of the East-Gulf Coast longshoremen.

Labor corruption disclosures over the past three years culminated in passage of a new labor law after a bitter fight in Congress. It represented a bad political setback for the unions. The new law puts tight controls on internal union procedures and imposes stiff penalties for corruption.

Powers were upheld after long litigation for court-named monitors to institute reforms in the Teamsters Union headed by James R. Hoffa. But Hoffa continued to fight back. Former Teamsters President Dave Beck Sr., was convicted of federal income tax fraud.

TV NEWS

by DON SHUMAKER

With the television trend toward more and more situation comedies, it was only a matter of time before a program like "The Flagstones" appeared on the video horizon. Its creators, Hanna-Barbera Productions, who have given us such gems as "Tom and Jerry", "Huckleberry Hound", and "Quick Draw McGraw", have tackled the family situation from a delightful new angle. Instead of the same, tired contemporary format, "The Flagstones" are a group of nice folks who live back at the dawn of history. Prehistorically speaking, these refreshing cartoon characters comprise a "typical" family with modern speech and customs, back when Junior borrowed the family pterodactyl for his Saturday date. Their pressures and pleasures are exactly like ours, but setting them eons ago provides a bright backdrop for the satirical treatment of modern suburbia this series will present.

ABC-TV, which will air the program this fall, assures us that "The Flagstones" will keep the same flavor as those shows just mentioned, meaning Hanna-Barbera has produced another shining star that will offer fun for the kids, as well as the same charming wit and social satire for the adults that we got from Yogi Bear. You'll enjoy these and other favorite programs even more when you tune in on your new television set from the 1960 display of famous RCA Victor consoles and portables, in both standard and color models, now on view in our showroom. Potluck Supper And Watch Party At Ashland Church

ASHLAND — About seventy-five were in attendance at the potluck supper in the basement of the Church of Christ Thursday evening, in connection also with a watch party.

Rev. Charles Mills of Lincoln Bible Institute showed beautiful pictures of the Holy Land, from a trip he made in 1955.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bradshaw and Mrs. Bud Hoagland were in charge of the evening's entertainment, which consisted of pantomimes and games in the basement, after which they went to the main auditorium and sang songs, and Rev. Glenn Vernon had devotions, and closing prayer was said by Willard Evans at midnight.

Meeting Monday

Juniors To Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Ashland Junior Woman's club will be held on Thursday evening, Jan. 7, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Melvin Schoneweiss.

Dr. David Chatara, local physician, and formerly of Russia, will give a talk on "The Soviet Union Today.'"

Mrs. Schoneweiss will be assisted by Mrs. Tom Young, Mrs. Albert Yancy and Mrs. Robert Pschirrer.

She's The Grand Lady Of The Tanbark Show Ring—

BY MARY KAY FLYNN
NEA Staff Correspondent

LEE'S SUMMIT, Mo.—(NEA)—In her 65th year as an exhibitor in horse shows in the United States and abroad, Mrs. Loula Long Combs admits to being "very nervous" when entering the show ring.

"My mouth is so dry I can't even cluck," she said as she masterfully held the reins just before the start of a hackney pony event at this year's 61st American Royal Livestock and Horse Show in Kansas City, near here.

When the celebrated horsewoman, who will be 79 in January, sped from the tanbark carrying a blue ribbon she was breathless with excitement.

"It's always been this way," she explained. "I'm still thrilled by every appearance."

She looked regal in a grey crepe dress with matching hat, a silver-tone fur cape and corsage of pink carnations.

Her exquisite costumes, like her expert horsemanship, have been noteworthy over the years. In reporting her brilliant success at a New York horse show in 1913 as the "first woman to drive the winner of a roadster class in a national show," the city's newspapers noted that the "western woman" had a different costume for each event.

As a living legend of the horse show world, Mrs. Combs has kept sumptuous Longview Farm in the limelight throughout its existence. Dave Smith still is on the job after 52 years as her head trainer and Johnny Haffey is in his 48th year as assistant trainer.

The equestrienne's interest in animals is deep-seated, going back to her early childhood when her pets included two skunks and a pig. A succession of Boston terriers accompanied her in the tanbark ring for 59 years, the custom being discontinued with the advent of narrower roadsters and viceroys.

At one time she owned the largest stable of horses in the nation. Her famous horse, Revelation, which inspired the title of her autobiography, "My Revelation," began winning blue ribbons in 1910, capturing more than 60 firsts before being retired.

"All my horses are spoiled," Mrs. Combs remarked, as she affectionately fed sugar lumps to her show horses in the decorated stalls at the Kansas City show.

There are more than 1,000 ribbons and numerous trophies in the big show barn at Longview. Hundreds of other age-faded streamers have been thrown away.

Never has Mrs. Combs deviated from her rule of not showing on Sundays.

"It's the Lord's day," she emphasized.

On Sundays she worships in the farm's California mission-style chapel, which is open to the community. The chapel, which seats 200 persons, has adult and junior choirs and regular services conducted by a former Army chaplain.

BUDGET CHARGE

CREDIT TAILOR-MADE FOR YOU

YOU'LL WANT TO OPEN A D.B.C. TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS WONDERFUL KIND OF CREDIT CREATED JUST FOR YOU.

- You use D.B.C. just like a regular charge account, but instead of paying the balance in full each month, you may have many months to complete your payments which are based on the amount of your purchases.
- The amount you pay each month depends on the extent of your purchase. Your payments automatically increase or decrease as your balance increases or decreases. The chart of payments is as follows:

BUDGET CHARGE DESIRED	MONTHLY PAYMENT
Up to 25.00	$ 5.00
26.00 to 50.00	10.00
51.00 to 75.00	15.00
76.00 to 100.00	20.00
101.00 to 125.00	25.00
126.00 to 150.00	30.00

You May Arrange For Higher Amounts If Desired

You may pay as much as you like at any time above the amount of your required minimum monthly payment. In fact this is actually to your advantage, since it gives you more freedom to buy.

You may increase your credit balance at any time, subject to approval of credit dept., based upon what you can comfortably pay each month.

- Payment is due when you receive your Statement which will be sent to you the first of each month. A small service charge of one cent on each dollar owed will appear in your Statement.
- To open a DEPPE'S BUDGET CHARGE come to our Credit Dept. Or write or phone for an application.

Calhoun County Last In Illinois To Get Police Radio Outfit

JERSEYVILLE — The Calhoun county sheriffs office will be on the air, and for a short time will operate as to call number out of the broadcasting station at the office of the Jersey county sheriff, Howard Perdun.

Robert Poleet of Jerseyville completed installation of the two-way radio equipment in the motor vehicles of the Calhoun county official this week, and will complete the installation of the broadcasting unit in the sheriff's office at Hardin early next week.

The equipping of the Calhoun county law enforcement department with two-way radio equipment concludes the equipping of every county in Illinois, Calhoun county being the last in the state to adopt such methods of expediting police work.

In addition to the county work, the Calhoun sheriff's office will cooperate with the state police in the area. Two state troopers are stationed permanently in the Calhoun locality as to residence, being Rutger Peters, Jr., and Elmer Lehr of the Hardin vicinity.

Next week Robert Poleet, who has charge of the installation of the police radio at Olney, will complete the equipping of that city's police department with two-way radio.

Poleet also reported that he is scheduled to install two-way radio for the city police department at Bonne Terre, Mo.

Effectiveness of the police radio system has been proven on numerous occasions in the Jersey county vicinity the past year with the general public becoming better acquainted with the methods to be followed in calling for police assistance.

PANA MOTORIST FINDS ROAD GENT FRIEND IN NEED

Chief of Police Charles P. Runkel has received a letter from Arthur Blanco, plant manager of the Pana, Ill., Refining Co., paying tribute to the thoughtfulness of Road Gents, Inc., one of whose members gave Mr. Blanco assistance near this city.

"Recently while traveling in your area my car broke down on Route 104 about six miles east of Jacksonville," the Pana man said. "I tried unsuccessfully for about 45 minutes to flag down a car for a ride into town so that I could have my own auto repaired.

"Finally a young man coming from the other direction stopped, pulled his car off the road and asked what he could do to help. He looked at my auto, found the source of trouble and noting the parts necessary to make repairs, he drove me to Jacksonville for the parts and returned to my car and made the repairs to help me going safely on my way.

"I do not recall the man's name, but since he had his wife and family with him, I do know that he was greatly inconvenienced to help me. As he left he gave me the attached card and explained the workings of Road Gents, Inc.

"May I express my sincere Thank You to this fine organization and all those who are responsible for its inception and propagation. You must be very proud of your people.

Gilchrists Visit Son, Family In East

Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Gilchrist returned home Tuesday from a holiday visit with their son, Dr. Don K. Gilchrist and family at Portsmouth, Virginia.

Dr. Gilchrist resides in quarters at the U.S. Naval Hospital, where he is Resident Orthopedic Surgeon. Recently Dr. Gilchrist attended a six weeks intensified course in bone pathology at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in connection with Walter Reed Hospital. This is the first such course and was attended by 15 orthopedists from all branches of the military service from various parts of the U.S.

Just prior to this course Dr. Gilchrist flew to Oakland Calif., to attend the first Armed Service Orthopedic Seminar. Top bone specialists from Armed Forces, together with nationally known specialists, served on the faculty to discuss and demonstrate the latest developments in orthopedic research and reconstructive surgery.

While in California Dr. Gilchrist was able to visit his sister and family, Major and Mrs. R. H. Allan in Palo Alto. Major Allan is attending Leland Stanford University this year, to obtain his master's degree in Industrial Engineering.

Ruby Ransom, Hal Carriger Wed At Alsey

WHITE HALL—Miss Ruby Lee Ransom of White Hall and Specialist Five Hal Edwin Carriger of Winchester rural route were united in marriage Christmas Day. The ceremony, at three o'clock in the afternoon, was performed at Alsey Baptist church by the Rev. John Plunkett.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Ransom, White Hall, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Carriger, Winchester route two.

Justice Was Speedy Back 121 Years Ago

By Cecil Tendick

The other day James Bradshaw of 227 South Mauvaisterre street came upon an interesting document as he was leafing through one of the 16 volumes of the American Encyclopedia of 1873.

It was a jury summons issued by Justice of the Peace William Gordon of Lynnville directing the constable to assemble "six good and lawful men of your county who are not kin to Milton Boyd, plaintiff, or to Michael Chrisman, defendant, to make a jury in said case to appear before me at my office in Lynnville on the 13th instant at 1 o'Clock (illegible) as Said Plaintiff and the Said Defendant hath put them Selves upon the county for trial. Given under my hand and seal this 13th day of October, 1838. William Gordon, J.P."

All Home Made

The directive was written in ink on a half-sheet of paper. The seal was a circle of curiclues, but just as effective as any well-designed and costly seal we have today.

The reverse side showed the constable did his duty, although his name is illegible. His name was J.W.L— something. The jurors he summoned to hear Boyd vs. Chrisman was John Garmon, Isiaah Johnson, Josiah Canaday, Thomas Swales, Nel Williams and Charles — (illegible).

A glance at a perpetual calendar shows that Oct. 13, 1838, fell on Saturday, the law day in any town of that period.

There was never much excitement in the villages in a day when few people took even a weekly newspaper, when there was no opera house, no movie, no telegraph, no regular mail service, no radio and no TV. Lawing on Saturdays provided a modicum of entertainment.

It is easy to speculate that Boyd was pretty sore at his neighbor on this date, and he stated his desire for a jury trial. In those days justices of the peace and constables were just that; they attended to squabblings in their area judiciously and rapidly. In that time the county sheriff and the states attorney had a much easier time of it than their successors are privileged to enjoy today. Nobody would think of driving all the way to the county seat just "to get the law" on a neighbor.

Fast Action

After the justice heard the plaintiff he drew up the summons and handed it to the constable, who took it down to the main store and returned with his jury. The case was looked into and the verdict returned in short order, for in those days there were pettifoggers aplenty but no lawyers who wasted hours selecting a jury. There was no backlog of cases in Gordon's court, so justice was just a matter of minutes, instead of months most everywhere and up to five years in Chicago.

Also in those days the novice lawyers, known as pettifoggers, were active, diligent and inexpensive. Among the better ones in this area were Stephen A. Douglas and Abraham Lincoln.

It would be interesting to know what the fuss was about and what verdict the "six men and lawful men" returned.

Sorority Xmas Party Held At Olson Home

The annual Christmas party of Zeta Beta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held at the home of Virginia Olson on December 14. Virginia's home was beautifully decorated for the holiday season.

The meeting was opened with the singing of Christmas carols accompanied on the piano by Marion Hinderliter.

The remainder of the evening was spent playing bridge with prizes going to Dorothy Matthews, Donna Thurmon and Arleen Reside.

'MUSIC MAN' TO MOVIES

NEW YORK (AP)— Movie rights to the hit Broadway musical "Music Man" have been sold to Warner Bros. for a reported one million dollars. Terms call for Robert Preston to play the lead role in which he has starred for more than two years.

The picture would not be released until after the musical has finished its Broadway run. That would probably make it 1962 before the picture is seen in movie houses.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. W. L. Clemmons, Jacksonville route four, and the late Mr. Clemmons, had as her matron of honor Mrs. William E. Kitchen of Jacksonville; her bridesmatron was Mrs. William F. Jutte, Jr., of Keokuk, Iowa, and her bridesmaid, Miss Gladys Clemmons.

Mr. Flynn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Albert Flynn, 211 South Kosciusko street. He was attended by Richard Flynn and his groomsmen were Robert Fortado and Jimm Bates. Ushers were Robert Harrell and Larry Fortado.

The single ring ceremony was performed at four o'clock in the afternoon by the Reverend Gerald Miller. The bride's uncle, E. R. Clemmons of Springfield, gave her in marriage.

Red poinsettias and tapers in candelabra decorated the altar of the church. Robert Wegehoft presided at the organ and accompanied Kenneth Lowe who sang "How Do I Love Thee?" "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

The bride's mother chose for Sandy's wedding a ribbon knit dress in nutmeg brown and the groom's mother wore a black and white silk lace sheath dress. Both mothers wore white carnations.

White—Red Color Combination

White predominated in the gowns worn by the "Clemmons sisters." All three attendants were gowned identically in white embroidered nylon tulle over taffeta. Fashioned on "after five" shirtwaist style, the frocks featured Peter Pan collars at the rounded necklines and wrist-length sleeves with large cuffs. The conventional-length skirts were very full and set off with green taffeta sashes. Their bow cut headdresses and slippers were in a matching shade of green. Each carried a hand bouquet of red poinsettias with holly.

Bride in Chantilly Lace

The tiered lace skirt was topped with snug bodice covered with brief lace bolero with sleeves tapering to points over the wrists. Her veil of silk French illusion was attached to a heart-shaped pearl and lace headband and she carried a cascade arrangement of white carnations showered with satin ribbons.

Receive at Church

Guests were received at the church immediately following the ceremony. Poinsettias and holly decorated the white frosted five-tiered wedding cake served with punch, nutmeats and mints.

Assisting with serving were Mrs. Gary Jackson, Mrs. James Willard, Mrs. Edward Cully, Miss Margaret Luster and Mrs. Conklin Negus.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Richard Flynn and Mrs. Brad Imig and Miss Geraldine Daniels assisted with the gifts.

When leaving on a short wedding trip the bride was wearing for her going away costume a beige and gold tweed walking suit with gold and brown accessories. The corsage taken from her bridal bouquet completed the outfit.

Mr. and Mrs. Flynn are making their home at 750 West Douglas avenue. She graduated from Franklin high school and attended Texas Christian University at Fort Worth, Tex., and is presently employed at the Flamingo Beauty Salon, West State street. Mr. Flynn graduated from Jacksonville high school and Illinois College. After six months' military training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., he will be re-employed with the State Highway Department, Springfield.

JHS, Routt Musicians Among State's Best

A number of Jacksonville high school and Routt high school juniors and seniors were included as a part of the State's most talented high school musicians Saturday.

A communication from Professor Paul Painter, director of music extension at the University of Illinois, listed several Jacksonville youngsters among 2,024 from 322 communities throughout the state. The large number of young talented musicians will gather at the University of Illinois Feb. 4-6 for the annual Illinois All-State Music Activity.

Jacksonville Students

Pupils from Jacksonville who have been selected to take part in the Illinois All-State Music Activity are:

Jacksonville high school: Ronnie Tendick, Senior Band; Roger Watts, Nancy Boyle, Robert Taylor, Senior Orchestra; Jean Sorrells, Lucinda Kraushaar, Mike Biggs, Jerry Symons, Senior Chorus; Eric Schuetz, Junior Band; Sandra Bonuff, Priscilla Florence, Linda Reeve, Bruce Greiffe, Junior Orchestra; Judith Davidson, Mary Walbert, Robert Dinsmore, Reginald Rabjohns, Junior Chorus; Routt College high school: Diane Sassenberger, Mary Lou Henderson, Senior Chorus.

Professor Painter announced a roster of eight distinguished conductors who will direct the various vocal and instrumental groups.

Leading Conductors

Leading these is G. Cliff Bainum, emeritus director of bands at Northwestern University, who will be guest conductor in a concert of senior groups Feb. 6.

Largest unit in the 1960 Illinois All-State Music Activity will be the Senior High School Chorus of 948 members, biggest chorus of high school voices ever assembled in Illinois.

Others will be the Senior Band, 225 members; Junior Band, 189; Senior Orchestra, 186; Junior Orchestra, 144; and Junior Chorus, 332.

Even with these sizeable rosters, some youngsters had to be disappointed. A total of 3,223 applied for the 2,024 places.

The Illinois All-State Music Activity, conducted by the U. of I. Division of University Extension and School of Music, is scheduled in the vacation lull between fall and spring semesters at the university. In this way visiting youngsters can live, while on campus, in the university's residence halls.

Intensive rehearsals for junior organizations will begin Feb. 4, and will be climaxed by an evening concert Feb. 5. Senior groups start rehearsals Feb. 5 and present a final concert on the afternoon of Feb. 6. Both programs will be in Huff Gym, and will be open to the public without charge.

Five visiting conductors and two University of Illinois faculty members will lead the young musicians.

AAUW Group To Sell Used Books

The Recent Graduates group of the American Association of University Women will have a used book sale in the near future. The money from the sale will be added to the group's student fellowship fund.

Anyone having unwanted books is asked to call Mrs. Bruce Campbell, CH 5-4656, and arrangements will be made to pick the books up.

Shelby Jean Briggs

Mr. and Mrs. Archie W. Briggs announce the approaching marriage of their eldest daughter, Shelby Jean, to Reginald Dale Pennell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pennell.

Plans are being made for a Sunday, February twenty-eight, wedding ceremony at First Baptist church in this city.

Joan Nordsiek Bride Of L. E. Stribling

Miss Joan Nordsiek and L. E. Stribling were united in marriage Friday evening, December eighteen, at the Methodist church in Ashland.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend J. William Jones before an altar decorated with evergreens, red poinsettias and satin bows and white flowers in altar vases.

White tapers burned in branched candelabra and white satin bows marked the pews for the families.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Nordsiek and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stribling.

Before the ceremony Miss Linell Fields, accompanied by Mrs. Elmer Lee Beadles, sang "Hold Thine Hand" and "Because," and during the exchange of vows as the couple knelt at the altar, "The Lord's Prayer."

Wears Traditional Gown

The lovely bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore the traditional white wedding gown. The dress was of imported Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over silk taffeta. The long sleeved bodice, in lace and tulle, featured an off shoulder nylon tulle yoke appliqued with lace.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place with a queen's crown of illusion leaves trimmed with seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a white Bible topped with white glamelias showered with satin ribbons.

Three Attendants

The bride's sister, Miss Frances Nordsiek, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Patricia Flynn of Springfield and Miss Betty Sue Smith, Detroit, Michigan, a cousin of the bride.

The attendants wore identical gowns of green velvet and carried simulated poinsettias made of velvet leaves, with red carnations and holly.

Little Betsy Falls and Sally Stribling, nieces of the groom, were flower girls and wore dresses of red velvet. They carried white muffs with red carnations and holly.

The groom was attended by his brother, James Stribling of Ashland. Groomsmen were Jack Leahy and Glen Brandt, Pleasant Plains. Ushers were Arthur Falls, brother-in-law of the groom and Glen Savage of Ashland.

Reception at Virginia Club

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Virginia Country Club. Assisting at the table were Mrs. Ann Muny, Mrs. John Cosner and Mrs. Tom Price, Ashland.

Mrs. Sonny Schroll, Springfield, was in charge of the guest book and Shirley and Beverly Dotzert, Virginia, cousins of the bride, were in charge of gifts.

Honeymoon North

When the couple left for a wedding trip north the bride was wearing a brown tweed suit, fur trimmed. They will make thier home in Ashland.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stribling, Ashland, grandparents of the groom and Mrs. Mary Nordsiek, Beardstown, grandmother of the bride. Guests were present from Pleasant Plains, Tallula, Jacksonville, Chandlerville, Havana, Virginia, Franklin, Beardstown, Arenzville, Ill., and Detroit, Michigan.

Dr. Garrett To Address Woman's Club

Dr. Leroy Garrett, assistant professor of philosophy at MacMurray College will present the program at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 9th, for Jacksonville Woman's club members and guests. The meeting will be held in Illinois Room at Hotel Dunlap. Dr. Garrett's topic is "What Is Man?"

The speaker joined the school staff in 1957. He is a native of Dallas, Texas having received his BA degree at Abilene Christian College; MA at Southern Methodist University and BD from Princeton and his Ph D from Harvard.

Carman Potter will be soloist for the musical portion of the program. Mrs. E. S. Slaughter will be chairman of the day and Mrs. John Taylor chairman of hostesses.

SAUCE IT!

Serving an ice cream dessert to company? For a festive occasion offer several sauces with it so guests can choose their favorite. Here are suggestions: chocolate, butterscotch, maple walnut (maple syrup with walnuts), strawberry (thawed sliced frozen berries) and mincemeat (heated).

ORANGE RINDS USEFUL

Grate the rind from oranges to be squeezed for breakfast juice and add it to applesauce for delightful extra flavor.

DON'T CROWD!

Mrs. Holloway, Lloyd McLane Wed In Greene

CARROLLTON—Mrs. Elma Holloway of Hardin became the bride of Lloyd McLane of Eldred in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Darvin Rolens, pastor of the First Baptist church in Carrollton Wednesday at 5 p.m. at the Baptist parsonage. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dougherty of Kane.

Following the wedding a wedding dinner was served in Alton for the bridal party after which Mr. and Mrs. McLane left on a trip to the south. Mr. and Mrs. McLane will be at home to their friends at Bluffdale Farms after January 15.

SANDWICH TIP

Making rolled sandwiches? Use regular bakers' bread of the soft variety rather than the firm home-made loaf because the former may be rolled more easily than the latter.

PROSPECTING BY HELICOPTER

The throb of helicopter rotor blades is the theme song of modern mining in the high, remote Northern Cascades, in the state of Washington.

A great ridge, just north of Glacier Peak, has been known as Miners' Ridge for some 60 years. It was named by prospectors who, with pick and shovel, first learned of the ridge's copper deposits. In 1900, a mining and smelting company staked several claims on the ridge, but the mines were not put into production, mainly because of their inaccesibility.

In 1954, another mining company, from Spokane, became interested in the historic ridge. A small exploration crew was sent into the area by pack train.

Since then, the project has expanded far beyond the ability of packers to sustain it. Three years ago, experienced mountain flyers, piloting helicopters, assumed the job of supplying the operation.

At Miners' Ridge today, the 35 to 40 men at work are transported quickly and comfortably by helicopter; they are served fresh fruit, vegetables and meat, brought in daily by the 'copters. The men even get a daily mail delivery by air.

Aim of the Miners' Ridge work now is to learn the extent and worth of the copper deposit. Cores of rock have already been taken from more than 1,000 feet deep in the ridge.

FAN BREEZES

BY STAN SPOTTS

Journal Courier Sports Editor

Now that the New Year has arrived, it's going to be nice to get back into the old groove once again. There is always that letdown feeling after the holidays but we had the Waverly and Carrollton tournaments to take up the slack between Christmas and the New Year. Also, there was MacMurray's pair of games in the McNeese Invitational tourney at Lake Charles, Louisiana.

— o —

This week, most of the local and area prep teams resume action with full cards on Tuesday and Friday nights. One game of importance will be the New Berlin at Winchester game Tuesday night. The Wildcats are riding a 10-game undefeated string in ten outings. If memory serves me correctly, the Pretzels humiliated the Wildcats last year and Winchester was sporting the same record. Both teams lack guards.

Coach Bob Winstead seemed amazed when I told him of the total scoring lapses his Rockets went through in the finals of the Waverly Holiday tournament. Of the 15 minutes and 30 seconds Routt went without a single point in the 48-44 loss and of which 9:22 was consecutive in the scoreless lapse, Winstead calmly remarked, "In other words, we played about half a game without any points and still we were able to stay close. That's not bad for four games in three days." I'm with you, Robert.

Merritt Norvell was at a loss to try and explain Wisconsin's poor showing in the Rose Bowl. In fact, he didn't offer any explanation other than to say the tackling was sloppy and that the Badgers don't have the greatest pass defense in the world. He said the Wisconsin offense is geared for power and not speed. The Badger prospect said those fumbles must have been some new plays he didn't know anything about. When fumbles demoralized Wisconsin, Merritt felt as all of us in the midwest. Letdown brother and not because the holidays were coming to a close.

There are a lot of problems to iron out if a tournament is to be ran smoothly. There were no problems in the ninth annual Waverly Holiday affair this past week. There were a couple of boys keeping everything under control and they deserve some kind of praise for their efforts. The two we have in mind are Jim Dunseth and Joe Doglio. Dunseth has been connected with the tournament in some capacity ever since it started and he has every record down pat. The tourney usually grosses around three or four hundred dollars every year after expenses and the crowds seem to get bigger each year. Success comes with a smooth operation and this operation prevails at Waverly.

Coach Toby Smith and his Pittsfield Saukees continue to roll along in grand fashion with an 11-0 record. The Saukees captured the Mark Twain Tourney at Hannibal Wednesday by downing Payson and Toby has been compiling the record the hard way — with only three lettermen. Al McGinnis had nothing but praise for the Western graduate when he was coaching the grade school over there and now since Toby has moved into a successful first year with the Saukees, Al is about to pop the buttons on his vest. And who can blame him?

Al Rosenberger reports his freshmen bunch is starting to come around now and although they aren't the best team he's ever had, he says they have the best attitude and desire of any bunch he's had in the past seven years. The squad carries a 3-2 mark into the 1960 campaign and they begin it Monday night in freshmen and sophomore games with Winchester at the Bowl. Some time or another a team will get wise to me and not pay any attention to what I write. A month or so ago I said something about this freshmen team in a write-up and it hurt several. It wasn't meant to be that way. All I was trying to do was get them riled up to get mad and thus a little more determined. The potential is there and sometimes an article can bring it out in a team. The article was worth-while if the JHS frosh continue to improve.

Ed Heyer and Charles Runkel, State Troopers, are setting their sights on the State Police Pistol Championship and the two marksmen are getting an early start. The pair of local troopers have bought a loader and have been busy reloading shells in Runkel's basement following practice sessions. The next item is special target pistols. I understand they are the best shots in Jacksonville and the surrounding area. Heyer finished in the top 16 last year and Runkel was in the top 20. To my knowledge, Heyer is the only Master Marksman in the Jacksonville area. I've lost all faith in Annie Oakley now!

Meredith To Bass Pass Gives West 21-12 Win Over East In Thriller

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Southern Methodist quarterback Don Meredith threw a flat pass to halfback Dick Bass of College of the Pacific on a 9 yard touchdown play with just 55 seconds remaining Saturday and gave the underdog West a 21-14 victory over the East.

The crowd of 60,000 in Kezar Stadium probably felt this 35th annual Shrine game would end in a tie when Rice halfback Bill Bucek missed a field goal attempt for the West with less than two minutes left.

But getting control on a fumble recovery on the East 43, Meredith passed to Washington State's Gail Cogdill to reach the 25. Meredith then ran to the 15 and lateralled to his SMU teammate Jim Welch who reached the 9. On the next play Bass took Meredith's pass wide to the right and fought his way into the end zone.

Play was suspended for several minutes after Bucek's missed field goal when a spectator stole the ball and a mob of fans attempted to demolish the East goal post.

Much of the credit for the West victory went to an alert defense, particularly to Oregon tackle John Wilcox. He intercepted one pass and recovered two fumbles that led to the first two West scores.

Meredith, cool and elusive despite the pressure of the heavy East line, threw a 22 yard pass to Chris Burford of Stanford that tied the count with only three minutes remaining. He then directed the amazing drive that brought victory.

Meredith was voted the game's outstanding player with lineman honors going to giant Lou Cordileone of Clemson, tackle for the East.

The first touchdown came in the second quarter when Michigan State's Dean Look fumbled as he was hit hard by Ben Robinson of Stanford and Don Floyd of TCU. Wilcox recovered on the East 18. Three plays gained 10 yards. Bass went to the 1 and Jack Spikes of TCU scored.

Notre Dame quarterback George Izo solidified the East attack and engineered two touchdown drives in the second half.

Ohio State's Bob White scored the first from the two after gaining 40 yards in a 59-yard drive. Monty Stickles of Notre Dame, who earlier missed a field goal attempt from the 25, booted the first of two conversions.

Early in the fourth period Izo hit Don Norton of Iowa on a 52-yard pass play that put the East ahead 14-7.

A costly penalty for roughing the kicker kept the East's final touchdown drive going despite the fact that the officials marked off only 10 yards against the West instead of 15.

With less than four minutes remaining Iowa's Ray Jauch fumbled and Wilcox recovered at the East 22. Meredith's first pass was incomplete. Then he hit Burford for the score.

Big 10 Declining As Power Because Of 'Need' Plan

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Is the Bib Ten declining as n athletic power because of its "need" program for helping athletes?

"This is the result of the 'need' program," Dickens said Saturday on his return from Pasadena.

"The Big Ten no longer can attract the same number of top-flight athletes under its aid program as other schools operating under NCAA rules only.

"We've set ourselves back with our recruiting rules, and it's going to get worse. Our drop in caliber was concealed in playing against ourselves, and it took a game like this to show everyone what is happening."

Under the Big Ten's "need" program, inducements to athletic prospects are determined partly by the prospects' own financial resources.

No prospect can be offered more than room, board, tuition and books, plus $15 monthly for laundry. If he was in the upper quarter of his high school class, he can be offered this regardless of his family's resources. If not, he may be offered less if he or his family has enough money.

Lions Threaten To Go To Court Against AFL

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Lions threatened Saturday to go to court in a fight with the new American Football League over the Lions' No. 1 draft choice, halfback John Robinson of Louisiana State.

Lion President Edwin J. Anderson said Robinson has signed a Standard National Football League contract with the Lions. He said the contract is on file in the Lions' office and that the validity of such a contract has been upheld in courts.

The Dallas club of the new league said Saturday it signed Robinson following Friday's Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans.

"I can't say when or where it took place, but Robinson has signed with the Lions," Anderson said. "We'll go to court, if necessary, to keep him."

Anderson went to see Robinson in Baton Rouge, La., after the Nov. 30 NFL meeting. Upon his return, he said Robinson had made a "moral commitment" to play for the Lions.

The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. does not permit an athlete to play in a bowl game or any competition after he has signed a professional contract.

H. L. Hunt, owner of the Dallas club said he knew nothing of a contract between Robinson and the Lions, but said he felt his club has a legal claim to Robinson.

Hunt declined comment on the threatened court action.

Nine Of Eleven Illinois Squads Finish High

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Nine of eleven University of Illinois sports squads finished in the Big Ten's first division during 1959, and seven teams finished first, second, or third. The Illini won two titles, were second in four sports, and third in one.

First-place finishes were achieved in gymnastics and outdoor track. Illinois was runner-up in indoor track, tennis, fencing, and baseball (tied). The football team tied for third. Rounding out first-division finishes were basketball and wrestling squads, both of which were fifth, although the cagers shared the berth.

In second-division sports were swimers, sixth, and golfers, tenth.

University of Illinois athletes won two N.C.A.A. individual titles, and captured 10 Big Ten crowns.

In N.C.A.A. competition, George Kerr won the 880-yard run in track and Don Tonry won the free exercise event in gymnastics.

Bill Burrell, football captain, left guard, and center linebacker, made the concensus team to become Illinois' 18th All-American. He also received the Chicago Tribune silver trophy as the Big Ten's most valuable player.

Burrell was named most valuable in football by his teammates, while Rober Taylor was similarly honored by the basketball squad. Bill Brown, junior fullback from Mendota, was selected as captain of the 1960 football squad.

Omaha, Nebraska Becomes Nation's Bowling Capital For Ten Days

Omaha, Nebr., will become the nation's bowling capital for ten days starting Wednesday, Jan. 6, 1960, when 336 of the country's greatest bowling stars begin rolling in the 19th Annual Bowling Proprietors' Association of America All-Star Tournament which will run through Friday, Jan. 15, in Omaha's Civic Auditorium.

The 336 stars—240 men and 96 women—will be shooting on 24 new lanes which were recently constructed right in the Auditorium for bowling's "World Series." The contestants will be taking aim at a total prize fund of $60,000, with a $10,000 first prize in the men's division and $5,000 for the women's champion.

Defending their titles in this event will be Billy Welu of St. Louis, who won the 18th All-Star crown in Buffalo, N. Y., last January, and Mrs. Marion Ladewig of Grand Rapids, Mich., who has won seven of the previous ten titles in the women's division.

In addition to taking aim on the record prizes, the field will be attempting to crack many of the long-standing and impressive scoring records of previous All-Star events.

The official record book for the BPAA All-Star Tournament released today shows that Don Carter of St. Louis and Mrs. Ladewig dominate many of the records, including the lifetime high averages lists. Carter, who has won four All-Star titles, tops the men's averages with 206 for 853 games of All-Star competition in 10 tournaments. He also heads the listing of averages for finalists with a better than 209 mark for 493 games in the finals of eight events.

Marion holds a firm grip on the average titles in the women's division, as she leads tiny Sylvia Wene of Philadelphia in over-all competition, 196 to 192, and is four points above her nearest competition on the finals averages standings with 198 for 312 games. Mrs. Ladewig has appeared in the finals of all ten All-Stars in which women have competed, and has never finished below fourth place.

A number of records may be challenged this year, if the 18th All-Star in Buffalo in January of 1959 was any indication of a trend in scoring.

Ray Bluth of St. Louis and Lou Campi of Dumont, N. J., both broke the 36-game qualifying total last year, with Bluth setting a new all-time mark of 7730 and Campi totalling 7642. Campi also joined three other bowlers who have just missed a perfect game in the finals, as he hit a 299 total. His name already appears on the 300 game listing for the finals, along with Buzz Fazio of Detroit and Junie McMahon of Fairlawn, N.J. Bluth set additional records last year, with his 13,726 pin total for the finals (64 games) and 21,456 pins for the entire 100 games of the tournament, both new high marks for the All-Star.

No one in the women's competition has ever approached the perfect game mark, with the exception of Mrs. Ladewig's 279 in 1951. Her 534 set for two games on the same day as her 279 is also a record for women. She is holder of the records for best 32-game total in the finals and best 56-game total for an entire tournament.

This year's All - Star Tournament will enjoy the greatest geographical spread in history, with 38 states, including Hawaii and Alaska, represented in the big show. The 336 bowlers are the remainder of a total starting field of 11,483 who competed in local eliminations in their home areas with an eye on representing that area in the All-Star.

Following the special All-Star Prevue and opening ceremonies on Wednesday, Jan. 6, the 240-man field will shoot 24 games in a preliminary round with the high 96 going into the semi-finals and then the top 16 meeting in the match game finals which will run from Tuesday, Jan. 12, through Friday, Jan. 15.

The 96 women will shoot 12 games with the top 48 going into the semi-finals and the high 16 advancing into the finals. The women's finals will also run from Tuesday through Friday.

Purdue Nudges Indiana, 79-76

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Purdue's fired - up Boilermakers outhustled Indiana's Hurryin' Hoosiers Saturday night and upset the highly favored Indiana basketball team 79-76.

Paced by sophomore Terry Dischinger's 30 points, the Boilermakers led 36-32 at halftime. Indiana came back to move ahead for its last time at 46-45. Dischinger hit a layup and the Boilermakers took command of the game.

Indiana, pre-season Big Ten favorite, was cold from the field, hitting only 31 of 89 for .348 from the field. Purdue connected on 29 of 66 for .439.

ELDRED TO HOST GRADE TOURNEY

The Eldred Grade School will host seven schools in their 13th annual tournament which starts Tuesday and ends Friday, Jan. 5-8.

Patterson plays Pearl in the Tuesday opener at 6:45 and Kampsville meets Hardin in the nightcap.

Wednesday's card pits Eldred against St. John's and Kane meets Hillview at 8 p.m.

Thursday night matches the four winners in the semifinals with consolation and championship honors being decided Friday at 6:45 and 8 p.m.

Kampsville is the defending champion.

Report Says Robertson Is Great On Offense But Lazy On Defense

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Just how good a basketball player is Oscar Robertson? Is Cincinnati's "Big O" as great as virtually everybody who has seen believe him to be?

For answers to these questions, a reporter went to Howard Hobson, former president of the National Assn. of Basketball Coaches and chairman of the U.S. Olympic Basketball Committee.

Hobson attended the Cincinnati-Iowa game at Madison Square Garden last Wednesday and charted every move made by the fabulous two-time All-America.

The 6-5 Robertson scored a Holiday Festival record-breaking 50 points to lead the undefeated Bearcats to a 96-83 victory.

Here is Hobson's analysis:

A coach usually looks for things that the average fan might not be aware of," said Hobson, who also was basketball coach at Yale and Oregon.

"First off, how many points were made by Robertson's opponents? Well, Robertson held his opponents to 13 points. By his opponents, I mean not just the players he was assigned to, but those he had to guard on switch-offs. Since he scored 50, that gave him a net of 37. That's like having a 4.00 batting average in baseball.

"All of Robertson's goals were made on right-handed push or jump shots, drive in layups and rebounds. He hit 13 of 21 from within 12 feet of the basket and five of 12 from 21 feet out. He didn't score any from outside 21 feet. He had seven drive-in layups, a great asset. It shows he can maneuver and get in like a little man.

"There were eight instances when he could have helped a teammate prevent a score but he failed to take over on seven of those. He stood right under the basket and didn't raise his arms. Why didn't he? It's hard to say."

"My over - all observations are that Robertson is the kind of a player who can do everything. He is fast, quick with his hands, is a fine shot and has wonderful moves. He has tremendous ability to play all parts of the game. He's the player the others look to in tight spots.

'But he is lackadaisical on defense. He can be faked. In the final analysis, he is a tremendous pro prospect, but defensively, he's got some work to do."

Blaze Broadway Goes Collegiate

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Blase Broadway goes collegiate starting Saturday when more than 2,200 delegates begin drifting into the Times Square area for week-long meetings centering around the 54th annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn.

Sixty per cent of the delegates will be attending the 37th annual convention of the American Football Coaches Assn. and a number of them will be shopping for new jobs.

Head coaching jobs are open at California, Florida, Dayton, Temple, Toledo, West Texas State and Xavier of Ohio. And among the ex-coaches considered eligible are Eddie Erdelatz, ex-Navy, Terry Brennan, Notre Dame, Dallas Ward, Colorado and Sam Boyd, Baylor.

The football bosses also will be keeping an eye on their own rules committee and the powerful NCAA Executive Council.

The AFCA Rules Committee begins meetings Monday morning and by Wednesday should have its annual recommendations to the NCAA Football Rules Committee. They are expected to request a return to the unlimited substitution of the two - platoon days.

The NCAA council will hear from the organization's Committee on Infractions, the fact-gathering agency for the NCAA enforcement program, and the possible resultant probations could be a blow to the recruiting drives and bowl hopes of the football coaches.

Since 1952, when the NCAA first began to crack down on infractions of its athletic code, there have been 49 cases in which guilt was established and there are believed to be about 15 official inquiries pending. There could be some member schools in hot water by mid-week.

The American Assn. of College Baseball Coaches will provide most of the news early in the week. They are certain to discuss the "college rule" which would prohibit organized baseball from signing college athletes until after their sophomore year. "Raiding" by the pros has long been a sore point with the college baseball coaches.

The NCAA convention proper begins Wednesday and promises to be relative tame.

Name Rymkus Coach Of Oilers In New League

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Lou Rymkus, line coach of the Los Angeles Rams, Saturday signed a three-year contract as head coach of the Houston Oilers of the American Football League.

K. S. (Bud) Adams, owner and president of the Oilers, did not reveal salary terms.

Rymkus, 40, is a native of Royalton, Ill. He played high school football in Chicago then went to Notre Dame where he was voted the most valuable player on the 1942 squad.

Rymkus played seven years in the National Football League and played in seven championship games. He was with the Washington Redskins in 1943. After two years of military service he played six years with the Cleveland Browns, starting in 1946.

Rymkus started his coaching career in 1953 as an assistant at Calgary in the Canadian League. He then spent four years as an assistant coach with the Green Bay Packers. He moved to Los Angeles in 1958.

Major All-Stars In Easy 53-0 Win At Tuscon

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The major college all stars had too much for the cream of the nation's small schools Saturday and won the second All-American Bowl 53-0 before 14,500.

Merlin Priddy, Texas Christian fullback, scored three touchdowns and ran for 160 yards. He was chosen the game's most valuable player.

Priddy ran 19 yards, caught a 37-yard pass from Richie Lucas of Penn State, and plunged one yard for touchdowns.

Lucas, second team All America, passed for two touchdowns, set up another with a 39 yard pass, and scored on a seven-yard run—all in the fourth quarter. Lucas hit Paul McGuire of the Citadel in the end zone with a 20 yard pass as the gun sounded. No conversion attempt was made because the crowd poured on the field.

Gordon Speers of Rice kicked five of six conversion attempts and scored on a 24-yard second period pass interception.

Dwight Nichols, Iowa State, and Fran Curci, Miami—a pair of second team All-Americas — rounded out the scoring. Nichols went off tackle for 10 and Curci ran for 30.

All America William Burrell of Illinois, the nation's top lineman of 1959, topped a brilliant offensive showing by recovering two fumbles that led to touchdowns. He played the final minutes as a ball-carrying halfback.

The small school stars, including eight first team Little All Americans, never carried the ball inside the major college 25.

Spartans Rout Wisconsin, 91-79

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Horace Walker's 29 points and control of the ball off the board, propelled Michigan State to a 91-79 Big Ten conference basketball victory over an inexperienced Wisconsin team Saturday.

The victory was the sixth in eight starts for the Big Ten defending champion Spartans. Wisconsin is 3-7 for the season. Saturday's televised contest was the opening conference game of the season for both schools.

Walker, a work horse under the boards, hit 25 of his points in the first half as Michigan State piled up a 57-44 lead. Walker hit 12 of 14 shots from the field in the first half.

The Spartans, midway in the second half, went into a semi-freeze that stopped a determined bid by Wisconsin to close the gap. The Badgers managed to move within six points of the Spartans at 31-75. However, Michigan State then switched its style of play and moved on to victory.

Wisconsin was ahead briefly early in the game but the Spartans grabbed a 14-12 lead and were ahead 30-20 after 10 minutes of play.

Cincinnati Wins From Dayton

CINCINNATI (AP)— All- America Oscar Robertson, the Nation's leading scorer, tossed in 32 points Saturday night as the top-ranked Cincinnati Bearcats downed Dayton 70-63 for their 10th win without a loss.

Dayton gambled on a ball-control offense, even after the Bearcats had broken to a 14-2 lead, and several times pulled to within four points of Cincinnati.

At one point late in the game Dayton's Phil Dubensky missed two free throws that would have shaved the Bearcats' lead to two points. But Robertson hit on a jump shot and Ralph Davis scored two quick baskets to put Cincinnati out of danger.

Robertson got his 32 points with 13 field goals out of 28 tries and went 6 for 6 at the free throw line.

Tech Decisions Kentucky, 62-54

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Roger Kaiser and Dave Denton led Georgia Tech to a 62-54 basketball victory over Kentucky Saturday night.

The Yellow Jackets, ranked 10th among the nation's teams, outplayed Kentucky from the field and on the backboards.

Kaiser and Denton got 18 points each.

Tech took a 2-0 lead after almost two minutes of play and rolled up a 32-26 halftime margin.

Kentucky missed time and again on its free throw attempts, ran up numerous personal fouls and could not connect from the field.

National Golf Day in 1959 realized more than $90,000 which eventually will be turned over to charities and worthwhile golf projects.

Southeastern Louisiana Trips MacMurray, 72-65

HAMMOND, La.—A tall Southeastern Louisiana State Teachers five outran the MacMurray Highlanders Saturday night for a 72-65 victory, their fourth against five defeats.

The loss ended a disastrous road trip for Coach Bill Wall's Highlanders, who had hit the Louisiana trek sporting a respectable 5-1 record. Now, they return home with a 5-4 mark.

With 10 minutes left in the first half, MacMurray held a 16-7 spread but Southeastern's height began to tell under the boards and the Lions knotted the score at 18-all.

For the first ten minutes of the second half, the two clubs traded baskets with Southeastern building up a gradual 51-38 margin.

Trailing by 16 points with five minutes to play, MacMurray's full-court press was effective and the clan sliced the deficit to six points, 67-61, with a minute and a half of playing time remaining. The Highlanders committeed a foul, trailing 70-65, just as the final horn sounded and the Lions sank two charity tosses for the 72-65 verdict.

It was the first time this season that an opposing five had been able to outrun MacMurray and Southeastern did it all evening. Most of their points came on lay-ups.

The Highlanders hit 37 per cent of their shots while the Lions hit at a torrid 62 per cent clip.

Cotton Bowl President Sees No Aftermath Of Players' Brawl Friday

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP)— Tempers that flared in the Cotton Bowl and brought on a players' brawl had cooled Saturday and Cotton Bowl President Jack Lowe said he anticipated no aftermath.

Still being discussed was the fight just before the first half closed that had Texas and Syracuse players punching at each other and charging dirty play.

Also, Umpire Judy Truelson of Fort Worth was answering attacks on his officiating from Syracuse coaches.

But a feeling of good will appeared to prevail between the two schools.

"The trouble came in the heat of an important game for Syracuse and Texas," said Lowe.

"Tempers flared and the unfortunate fight occurred. But I heard no resentment among either faction at the awards dinner last night."

John Brown, Syracuse Negro tackle, who was one of the principal figures in the brawl, said Larry Stephens, Texas tackle with whom he had scuffled came up to him at the awards dinner and apologized.

Al Gerlick, another Syracuse tackle, against whom a holding penalty had been called, touching off the explosion, said a Texas player had called Brown "a dirty Nigger."

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder and assistant Rocco Pirro of Syracuse and Gerlick had some pungent comment to make about Truelson's umpiring.

The main point was Truelson's ruling on illegal use of the hands on defense. Schwartzwalder said his players were merely using there forearms to fend off blockers. "On defense, you can throw an arm if you don't club with it and use it as a weapon," he said.

"The basic interpretation of blocking in the East and down here in the Southwest was the foundation for Syracuse's disagreement with my calls," said Truelson, a veteran official "Every foul I called was there in great big bold letters. On the close or questionable ones I did not call. And there were plenty of them."

Most of the Texas players' griping in the first half, Truelson said stemmed from what they considered illegal blocking by the Syracuse players.

"We've been using our arms all year," said Gerlick. "A good official will warn you if he thinks what you're doing is illegal. But he just started throwing flags and wouldn't explain why."

Time and Place: 7 p.m., CST, Monday, Jan. 4, St. John Arena, Columbus, Ohio

The Illini will take a 7-1 record against twice-beaten Ohio State. Illinois' only defeat was to defending N.C.A.A. champion California in the Pacific Coast tournament at Los Angeles Dec. 28-29-30. Combes' team defeated Stanford and Northwestern in the three-day meet.

The tournament also gave Combes an opportunity to experiment with his starting lineup. After losing the opener to California, the Illinois coach inserted Al Gosnell, Vern Altemeyer, and Jerry Colangelo into the lineup in place of Ed Perry, John Wessels, and Lou Landt. Victories over Stanford and Northwestern by this quintet of four seniors and one sophomore apparently has won them starting jobs against Ohio State.

The Buckeyes use three sophomores, John Havelick, Jerry Lucas, and Mel Nowell as starters, with junior Larry Siegfried, and senior Joe Roberts. Led by Lucas, a probable All-American, Coach Fred Taylor's team has developed into a Big Ten favorite.

Coast Officials Would Like New Pact With Big 10

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Officials of the Athletic Association of Western Universities Saturday night reiterated that they would like to continue Rose Bowl relations with the Big Ten. But the next step awaits action from the midwestern schools.

The AAWU as of Saturday assumed control of the game on conjunction with the Tournament of Roses. The old pact between the now defunct Pacific Coast Conference and the Big Ten expired with Friday's game.

The Big Ten is expected to act on the Rose Bowl topic at a meeting in March. Informal talks have been held here during the past week between Commissioner Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson and other Big Ten officials.

The AAWU will have a statement Sunday concerning its future in the Rose Bowl game, executive director Tom Hamilton announced after the new conference held a daylong meeting Saturday.

Bradley Crushe St. Louis, 86-64

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Bradley's ninth - ranked basketball Braves rolled to a 44-19 halftime lead then coasted past sixth-ranked St. Louis 86-64 Saturday night.

Shooting with unerring accuracy, Bradley left little doubt to the outcome with a tremendous scoring splurge in the first half.

While the Braves were piling up their huge lead, their man-to-man defense limited St. Louis to seven field goals in the first half.

Razorbacks Rally Behind Jim Mooty

By MERCER BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Arkansas ripped Georgia Tech with All - America Jim Mooty's speed and Joe Paul Alberty's quick power Saturday and whipped the Yellow Jackets 14-7 in the 15th Gator Bowl game.

For Bobby Dodd, it was his first loss in nine bowl trips as head coach at Tech. And the coach who beat him — Arkansas' Frank Broyles— once played for Tech and was a Dodd aide for six seasons.

The teams swapped first - half touchdowns but Arkansas took charge after halftime. Mooty and his sophomore sidekick, Lance Alworth, were unable to break wide for long gains until the third quarter. Then they turned it on.

The 165 - pound Mooty started Arkansas' clinching touchdown march with a twisting, 24 - yard sprint to midfield. Alworth chipped in with two good sweeps. Then Mooty barrelled 19 yards for the touchdown.

Tech's heavier line, led by All-America center Maxie Baughan, whipped Arkansas during a first quarter which Tech completely dominated. After that there was little difference between the two lines.

Tech's touchdown came on the final play of the first quarter when quarterback Marvin Tibbetts raced 51 yards on a keeper play. Tibbetts, best known for his defensive play, was hurt on the second half kickoff and saw no more action.

Alberty, who runs with tremendous power for a 178 - pounder, picked up some key first down yardage in Arkansas' 62 - yard touchdown march in the second quarter. And the fullback smashed over from the 1.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—A large year-end supply of 40,000 head hit the butcher hog market this week and prices for the period were as much as $1.00 a hundredweight lower, closing at the lowest peak price in almost four years.

The $12.50 top, paid on Thursday for No 1 grade, was the lowest peak since March 1956 and the average price of all weights and grades that day probably also was at a new low for the same period.

Wednesday's receipts of more than 108,000 head at the 12 major markets was the largest for any Wednesday since January 1956.

In the Wholesale pork market, loins were selling $4.00-5.00 under prices of a week ago.

Trade on slaughter steers was uneven with prices declining through Tuesday then turning stronger to end the week in a steady range with the close a week ago. The supply was only slightly larger than for the previous week.

Although the supply of slaughter lambs both here and at the 12 major markets was somewhat larger than last week, Chicago prices were up $1.00 at the extreme for lambs and ewes. A firmer wholesale market for lamb carcasses was the main strengthening factor.

CHICAGO (AP) — (USDA) — Following is a summary of the hog, cattle and sheep markets for the week and estimated receipts for today:

Hogs 100; barrows and gilts 75 to mostly 1.00 lower; sows steady to 25 lower. At the close 46 head No 1 215 lb butchers sorted for weight and grade 12.50 and 36 head mostly No 1 205 lbs 12.35, this the lowest top price since March of 1956. Mixed grades U.S. No 1 and 2 and No 2 190-215 lb barrows and gilts 11.75-12.25; mixed No 2 and 3 190-220 lbs 11.25-11.75; mixed No 2 and 3 and No 1 to 3 220-240 lbs 11.00-11.75; mixed No 2 and 3 240-260 lbs 10.75-11.25; mixed No 2 and 3 and No 3 260-280 lbs 10.25-10.75. Mixed grades No 1, 2 and 3 330-550 lb sows 8.50-10.00.

Cattle 100; slaughter steers largely steady, slaughter heifers 25-50 higher, cows 75 to mostly 1.00 higher, bulls 25 higher, vealers steady. New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market wound up the last week of 1959 in a burst of glory, making a historic high in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The Dow industrials rose 8.67 to a record closing high of 679.36 during the four-day trading week, shortened by the New Year's holiday.

This topped the previous high of 678.10 reached Aug. 3 when the market began to slide in apprehension over the effects the Khrushchev visit might have on defense spending and as Wall Street began to worry about a prolonged steel strike.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks gained $2.50 on the week, closing at $230.50, still well below the Aug. 3 record of $235.80. It was the best gain in three weeks for this indicator.

Volume of 13,342,898 shares compared with 10,447,114 in the previous week, shortened to four days by the Christmas holiday. This week's average daily turnover of 3,335,724 shares was the largest since the week ended Dec. 12 when 3,400,278 was the daily average.

Transactions were swollen by many typical yearend transactions, tax-loss sales as well as reinvestment and last-minute purchases by institutions and other large investors.

A feature of the week was an advance by the long-neglected and much-maligned oils. Rails and aircrafts, also backward sections, got a pretty good play too.

U.S. government and corporate bonds closed the old year on the downside, the same pattern they followed during most of 1959.

Trading volume increased to $31,140,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange from $25,845,000 the previous four-day week and $23,637,000 for the similar yearend week of 1958.

WEEK'S GRAIN PRICES SHOW LITTLE CHANGE

CHICAGO (AP)—Grain futures dealers looked hard and long this week for market influences without finding anything new while prices shifted generally within small fractions on technical trade considerations.

Net changes at the end of the week, therefore, were only about a cent a bushel except for September soybeans which posted advances of a little over two cents.

The only factor of a bullish flavor was a Midwestern snowstorm early in the week which inspired moderately active short covering in the feed grains. As is usually the case, traders said the storm and cold weather would increase considerably the amount of train feeding to livestock and probably curtail movement of all grains into commercial channels.

As predicted, the arrivals of cash grain did drop sharply.

With cash dealers providing much of the demand prices advanced slowly but steadily until profit taking for the yearend hit the pits on Wednesday. The selling met fairly good acceptance from the short side of the market, however, and setbacks were limited.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1⅛ cent a bushel higher on the old crop months to 1¼ lower on the new crop contracts, March $2.04¼-⅜; corn ¼-⅜ higher, March $1.13⅞; oats unchanged to ⅜ higher, March 76⅝-½; rye ⅛-1¼ lower, March $1.28-28¼; soybeans ¾-2⅜ higher, January $2.12⅝-½.

Downstate Prep Notes

By JOHN CAMPBELL

Athletic Director Greg Sloan of Rich Township high (Park Forest) is in Ingalls Memorial hospital at Harvey, Ill., and will undergo surgery. He led LaGrange high to the State title in 1953 and the star of his team, Chuck Sedgwick, is the present varsity coach at Rich. Sloan formerly coached at Cathedral (Springfield) and Pittsfield high schools prior to moving to LaGrange. He is a graduate of Auburn high school and North Dakota State college. Tom Sloan, Greg's son, is a 6-2 160 pound junior that played in the Canton Holiday tourney for Rich Township.

Six high schools met recently to protest the assignment of the Regional basketball tournament to Collinsville high school. The representatives at the meeting at Wood River high school included either coaches or principals from Alton, Wood River, Granite City, Roxana, Edwardsville and Madison. Collinsville was not invited to attend the meeting. The letter to the Illinois High School Association in protest will request that in the future the tournaments for schools in the area be held at Granite City and Wood River gymnasiums and will protest the assignment of a tournament to Collinsville. The groups protesting pointed out and adopted as reasons for complaints against the assignment — (1) Inadequate seating facilities, (2) Inadequate parking facilities, (3) not enough dressing room space for the teams, (4) Ticket allotment to various schools will be inadequate.

Pittsfield, Winchester and Virden won Holiday tourneys and remained unbeaten. The Saukees of Coach Toby Smith copped the Hannibal, Mo., tourney while Winchester, coached for the second year by Jack Renfro, won the second Annual Illinois Valley tourney retaining the championship of last year. Coach Bob Morrison's talented Virden Bulldogs won the 16 team Waverly Holiday tourney by downing Routt in the title game. These three teams might be strong contenders for Regional and Sectional honors this season. Bill Dodd is the all-around star of the Virden team while Tom Flynn is the top scoring leader for the Scott County five. Pittsfield has a well balanced scoring machine and the last two victims included Macomb and Payson in the Missouri tourney.

Dave Downey, Canton's All-State forward last season, awarded the cheer leaders of Manito (Forman) high the trophy in the First Annual Holiday Tourney at Canton's gym Wednesday night. Orville Nothdruft of Peoria, one of the fine officials of tourney, awarded the most valuable player traveling trophy to Rich Township's top tourney scorer, Phil Wagner, 6-6 center, with 85 points. The sportsmanship trophy was awarded to Gary Dunn of Abingdon although his team lost three ball games. Dr. William D. Masters of Canton high served as manager of the tourney and the second place of the consolation bracket went to Rich Township. Forman high of Manito-Forrest City won the championship of the consolation bracket while Peoria Richwoods beat Canton in the title game of the tourney 67-50 and Farmington won over Lanphier (Springfield) 60-53 for third place.

Collinsville high has Jerry Helmich ready for action as he missed several games due to a football injury in the Wood River game. He suffered an injury to the back of his knee and it has been slow to heal. Helmich is 6-3 and is over 200 pounds while the other front line players for Coach Vergil Fletcher include 6-5½ Bogie Redmon, 6-4½ Gary Dolzadelli and 6-3 Fred Riddle, transfer from Madison. Bob Simpson, a junior transfer from Madison, missed the first four games as he became eligible late after transferring and he played against East St. Louis high showing a lot of offensive ability and scoring well for the Kahoks.

Gary Phillips, 6-3 U. of Houston cager from Quincy, is being touted as a candidate of All-American recognition by the sports writers of the Southwest area. Other Illinois boys on the Cougar varsity this season include Norman Tuffli of Highland, Jim Lemon of Wood River, Tommy Thomson of Glen Ellyn and Dan Palombizie of St. Mel (Chicago). The Frosh squad has four former Illinois prep stars including Jerry Messick of Wood River, Jim Swope of Marion, Bob Hargrave of Dixon and Norm Cher of Allendale.

John Thompson, soph standout at Pontiac high, scored 40 points against East Peoria in the Pontiac high Holiday tourney. Centralia high made good 35 free throws in 44 attempts in beating Peoria Central in the tourney at Centralia. Coach Vernon Corbin had to go to the Canton Holiday tourney without 6-3 front line standout Charles Hainline who underwent an emergency appendectomy Monday morning in the Kewanee hospital. Hainline is the only regular back for the present campaign for the Kewanee Boilermakers and I predict the Corbin coached squad will be tough in February when they regain their star forward.

JAPANESE TO VISIT CANADA

OTTAWA (AP)—Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi of Japan will visit Ottawa Jan. 21 en route back to Tokyo after signing the U.S.-Japanese security treaty in Washington, government officials announced.

Antiquarians Display Old, Collectors' Items

On Sunday, Dec. 27, the Jacksonville Antiquarian Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wyman Sooy, 859 Grove Street, Jacksonville.

Slowly burning fire places, elaborate and unusual Christmas decorations and arrangements, graciously complimented the picturesque century old Sooy home. After a delicious potluck dinner was enjoyed, interesting and attractive antique and collectors' items were presented for exhibit by each of the members.

Mr. and Mrs. Sooy led the group in exhibiting a book on George Washington over 100 years old, and a recently acquired beautiful old hall lamp. Other items of interest were a very attractive button bracelet; solid brass sleigh bells; pressed glass combination of clear and frosted, known as Three Faces, one of the earliest patterns; milk glass; old duck stamp; bed spread dating back to the early 1700's; fairy lamp.

Miniature kerosene lamp, carnival and opalescent glassware; choice cloisanne Japanese vase having the distinction of being displayed at the World's Fair; unique music boxes; shaving mug with Tea-Leaf luster design; early 17th Century spoon with the family crest on the handle; uncirculated silver dollar of the year 1880, with each person giving a short talk on the item they displayed. Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson were welcomed to membership and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Bradish were guests.

Wolverines Post 72-64 Triumph

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Michigan, led by Lovell Farris and Terry Miller, Saturday night came from behind midway of the second half and hung on to beat Miami of Ohio 72-64 for its second basketball victory of the season.

The Redskins from the Mid-America Conference caught up with a string of nine straight points to open the second half and eventually build a four-point lead at 48-44.

Michigan then rallied with seven straight points, the last four by John Tidwell, to take command 51-48. The Wolverines were never really pressed again as they increased the margin and sent Miami to its sixth defeat in eight games.

Farris and Miller each netted 19 points and Tidwell dropped in 15. Sophomore Scott Maentz hit for 13 and collected 23 rebounds. Miami's Herb Rowan swished 23 points for individual honors and Vern Lawson added 18.

Pollard Replaces Castellani As Coach Of Lakers

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — John Castellani resigned Saturday as coach of the struggling Minneapolis Lakers and was replaced by Jim Pollard, one of the National Basketball Assn.'s alltime playing greats.

Castellani quit under fire in his rookie season as an NBA coach as the Lakers floundered in third place of the Western Division after winning only 11 games and losing 26.

Formerly coach of Seattle University, he took over the Lakers this season after John Kundla left to become coach of the University of Minnesota.

"I am very sorry that circumstances caused me to resign," he said. "But the experience has helped me tremendously."

Pollard, 37, returns to the team which he helped push to the pinnacle of professional basketball in eight starring seasons. As the perfect complement to the scoring genius of George Mikan, he furnished the Lakers' polish and direction in their sweep to six championships in three different leagues.

Pollard has been in auto and boat sales work here the past two years. He coached La Salle University in Philadelphia for three seasons after retiring as a player.

Salary terms were not announced. Pollard was hired for the balance of the season.

Castellani's doom was sealed by outbreaks of dissension on the club. Injuries and illnesses suffered by Laker star Elgin Baylor also contributed to his troubles.

The Lakers under Kundla ambushed the St. Louis Hawks in the Western Division playoffs last season to gain the NBA finals against Boston. Boston won the championship in four straight.

"One of the first things I'll try to do is to get this team back into a happy family," Pollard said. "They looked like a fine club beating St. Louis last year and there's no reason why they can't click again."

Gross Garners Peterson Lead

CHICAGO (AP)—Arnie Gross of Decatur, Ill., rolled 1627 Saturday to take over first place in the $296,000 Petersen Bowling Classic.

Gross, a 26-year-old bowling alley employe, had four 200 plus games in the eight-game set. His high individual game was 255. He also recorded scores of 238, 205, 206, 199, 194, 167, and 164.

Gross, appearing in his first classic, averages between 186 and 196 in three different leagues. The tournament, which will attract 11,840 keglers before closing June 26, carries a $25,000 prize for first place.

There are numerous side prizes and the tournament winner can possibly win as much as $44,285.

The leaders:

Joe Battista Sr., Canton, Ohio, 1567.
Joe Norvais, Chicago, 1565.
James Bucci, St. Francis, Wis., 1554.
Ray Bellamy, Akron, Ohio, 1552.
Ed Gajkowski, Milwaukee, 1550.
Arlen Ebers, Percy, Ill., 1546.

Quincy College Calls Off Game With Swedish 5

The Rev. Julian Woods, Quincy president, informed Ake Nilsson, president of the Swedish Basketball Federation, in New York by wire that the college did not want to jeopardize its amateur status by going through with the game.

Dan Ferris, AAU chief, has refused to sanction the Swedish team's 10-game tour because of the part allegedly played by Jim McGregor of Portland, Ore., in arranging the schedule. Ferris identified McGregor as a professional promoter.

Two-Year-Old Girl Killed In Moving Sidewalk

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—City officials suspended Saturday the use of moving sidewalks in which a 2-year-old girl was killed at Love Field airport.

One of the steel and rubber devices grabbed Tina Marie Brandon by a sleeve and crushed her to death Friday night. She was at the airport with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Brandon, to say farewell to a departing relative.

Screams of her brother Wilfred, 5, were the parents' first warning the little girl was trapped in the 1,250-foot walkway. It is one of three taking travelers to and from planes.

Illinois Counts 10 Traffic Deaths Late Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic deaths in Illinois climbed to 10 late Saturday as the three - day New Year's holiday passed the two-thirds mark.

At midnight Saturday during the recent Christmas holiday 11 highway deaths had been reported. During that holiday, covering a similar 78-hour period from 6 p.m. Thursday to midnight Sunday, there were 23 highway deaths.

An Associated Press survey of an early December non-holiday three-day weekend recorded 13 traffic fatalities in Illinois.

The latest victims were Franklin, Tomaw, 18, of Springfield killed in a three - car crash in Springfield and Henry McCort, 40, of Oswego, who died Saturday of injuries suffered in a New Year's eve collision in Bloom Township outside Chicago.

Other traffic victims include:

Frank R. Sherman, 47, of Taylorville, killed in a two-car collision on Rte. 104 Friday.

Barbara Buss, 25, of Rockford. She died Friday in a two-car collison in Rockford. Two other Rockford persons, Lorraine Leonhardt, 25, and Hermon O. Redd, were critically injured.

Glenn E. Oliver, 19, of West Frankfort died late Thursday when his car plunged off Rte. 37 near West Frankfort.

Jay Ryan, 72, was killed Thursday evening when struck by a car as he crossed a street in Northfield Township, and Thomas Murphy, 78, of Peoria, was killed when struck down as he walked along highway in Peoria.

12 Lose Lives In 3 Private Plane Crashes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Twelve persons have been killed in three private plane crashes in southeast Alabama and northwest Florida since the start of the new year.

The planes—each carrying four persons—went down within a radius of about 165 miles. All the flights were being made on holiday visits with relatives or friends.

Two Miami couples on the way home from a visit with friends in Bainbridge, Ga., died Friday in the crash of a plane 15 miles east of Tallahassee, Fla.

Jimmy Brown of the Cleveland Browns has won the National Football League ball carrying title the last three seasons. He gained 1,329 yards in 1959.

TO TRY UNIQUE DEVICE

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — A unique device to help prevent injuries to hurdlers will be tried this season by Illinois track Coach Leo Johnson. The top bar of high hurdles used in practice will be constructed primarily of sponge rubber, with a thin strip of plywood backing to give the bar rigidity. Johnson hopes the rubber will lessen knee and ankle injuries of hurdlers who fail to clear the bar.

Accuse 15 Firms Of Giving Payola

Gee Record Co., Inc., both of New York City; Cosnat Distributing Corp. of Cleveland, Ohio; and Cosnat Distributing Detroit Corp., Detroit, Mich.

FTC said the Jay-Gee Record Co. manufactures records and the three other companies distribute them.

The companies were given 30 days in which to answer the complaints. FTC proceedings usually lead eventually to a cease-and-desist order if the original allegations are supported by evidence at a hearing. This is enforceable only through civil contempt of court action.

Charles S. Gray, secretary-treasurer of Cosnat Distributing Detroit Corp., said at Dearborn, Mich.: "We operate our business just like everyone else. I don't want to make any further comment at this time."

The New York companies either declined comment or could not be reached.

Officials of Lesco Distributors and Mainline Distributors could not be reached. Nelson Verbit, head of Marnel, said he knew nothing about the FTC charges and refused to discuss them.

dency as the most powerful office in the free world. He went on to outline the problems that face it.

He said these include decisions on how to:

1. End or alter "the burdensome arms race where Soviet gains already threaten our existence."

2. Maintain freedom and order in the emerging nations.

3. Rebuild the prestige of U.S. science and education.

4. Prevent a farm collapse and the decay of cities.

5. Expand production without inflation and unemployment.

6. Awaken "every American to the dangers and opportunities that confront us."

In a news conference discussion of various issues, Kennedy said he thinks he has stated his views on civil rights. He said he is inclined to support the concept of a law to establish federal registrars where Negroes contend they have been denied the right to vote in federal elections.

The bovish-looking senator said U.S. relations with the Soviet Union and Communist China constitute the No. 1 issue of the campaign. He added that disarmament, cessation of nuclear testing, and an effective program to assist underdeveloped nations are parallel issues.

He said it would be a mistake to recognize Red China at this point but added that the United States must not freeze its policies against future developments.

Kennedy said he is not satisfied with figures he has been given on proposed defense spending in the next fiscal year starting July 1. He said he believes "there will be a missile gap" under the Eisenhower administration's plans, and he would advocate higher defense spending.

In this connection, Kennedy said he would have no hesitancy in proposing a tax increase to pay for increased defense outlays.

The Massachusetts senator said he will support a federal aid-to-education bill which may come before the senate early in the new congressional session. He said, however, he is not convinced that it would be wise to provide U.S. aid to raise teachers' salaries.

Kennedy is the son of Joseph P. Kennedy, wealthy Bostonian who was ambassador to Britain in 1937-41. The senator served as a PT boat commander in the Navy during World War II and was decorated for serious injuries he suffered.

Kennedy served in the House in 1946-52, then shifted to the Senate by defeating Republican Henry Cabot Lodge, now U. S. ambassador to the United Nations. He won re-election in 1958.

He and Mrs. Kennedy, the former Jacqueline Lee Bouvier, are the parents of a 2-year-old daughter.

Gophers Wreck Hawkeyes, 70-61

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota wrecked Iowa's pressing tactics with a basketball version of the spread formation and the Gophers swept to a 70-61 victory in the teams' Big Ten opener Saturday night.

Harried and unsettled by the Hawkeyes' tight guarding through most of the first half, the Gophers opened up the driving lane under the Iowa basket by rotating a third man in the back court.

This shook loose Capt. Ron Johnson and Dick Erickson for easy baskets at crucial states and kept the Gophers in front the full route despite several Hawkeye rallies.

Still under pressure and leading by only six points with five minutes left, Minnesota riddled the Hawkeyes' press in the final minutes amid an avalanche of Iowa fouls.

RAMS SIGN STALCUP

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Guard Jerry Stalcup of the University of Wisconsin has signed a contract with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League, the Rams announced Saturday.

Stalcup was a star on the Badger team that lost to Washington in the Rose Bowl Friday.

A Ram spokesman said Stalcup will be used on defense as a linebacker. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

I.C. Grads Observe 'Old Home Week' At Historical Sessions

The annual convention of the American Historical Association meeting at the Conrad Hilton in Chicago, Dec. 28-30, opened as if it were an Illinois College reunion.

Dr. Joe Patterson Smith and Dr. Ernest G. Hilldner, professors of history at Illinois College, reported that all of the delegates present for the opening luncheon of the convention had been connected in some way with the Jacksonville campus.

Every former member of the I. C. history department for the past 22 years attended the Chicago meeting.

Dr. Franklin D. Scott, of the class of '22, professor of history at Northwestern University, was chairman of thep rogram committee.

From the East came Dr. Douglas Lacey, '35, chairman of the department of social studies at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, while Dr. Howard E. Wilson, '23, traveled from the west coast and his position as Dean of the School of Education at the University of California at Los Angeles.

The Midlands were represented by Dr. Aaron Abell, '26, professor of history at Notre Dame; Dr. George W. Adams, '27, professor of history at Southern Illinois; Dr. Raymond Stearns, '27, professor of history at the University of Illinois; Dr. Keach Johnson, '32, professor of history at Drake; and Dr. David Watson, '43, professor of history at Dennison.

Honorary alumni of the Jacksonville school were also much in evidence. Among them were Dr. Paul Angle, Director of the Chicago Historical Association, and Dr. Allan Nevins, who as president of the American Historical Association was the presiding officer of this year's convention.

50-60 Year Wedding Anniversaries Near

WHITE HALL — Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kesinger will observe their 60th wedding anniversary Jan. 6th, 1960. No special observance is being planned due to the health and advanced age of the couple.

Mr. Kesinger is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kesinger of Wrights, and prior to his retirement was engaged in the insurance business and a livestock agent in that community.

Mrs. Kesinger's parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. C. Mosier of this city.

The couple were married Jan. 6, 1900, in Wrights. They have one son, Paul Kesinger of Springfield, Ill.

Mosiers Wed 50 Years

Edward M. and Zella D. Mosier (Ted and Zella) both of whom were born at Wrights, Ill., will observe their Golden Wedding anniversary on Jan. 10th with open house at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Finice Doyle from 2 to 4 o'clock on that date.

The couple have one daughter, Mrs. John C. Turner, the former Charlotte Mosier now living in Los Angeles, Calif., and she will make a special trip by plane to be with her parents on that date. Her two daughters Mrs. Joseph Mason of Yuma, Arizona, and Mrs. Joseph Hilton of Los Angeles, will also attend the celebration and their mother.

Mrs. Turner, who is a graduate of the Greenfield High School, extends a cordial invitation to all her friends to call at the Doyle home and meet her daughters. Two great-grandsons of the Mosiers will accompany the visitors.

Nelle Wieser, Once Roodhouse Teacher, Dies

ROODHOUSE — Miss Nelle Wieser, who taught school in Roodhouse for many years before her retirement, died Tuesday, Dec. 29, in Bakersfield, Calif., where she had been hospitalized recently with a broken hip.

Since her retirement, Miss Wieser had made her home in Bakersfield with her sisters, Miss Lucella Wieser and Mrs. O. L. Edwards, who survive her. She is also survived by a brother, Dr. Charles Wieser of St. Louis, and several nieces and nephews.

Services were held Thursday, Dec. 31, in Bakersfield and the body will be brought to the Mackey funeral home in Roodhouse at a later date. Burial in Fernwood cemetery will take place at a date to be announced.

J. Buhnekemper Of Murrayville Dies Saturday

John H. Buhnekemper of Murrayville passed away at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Our Saviour's Hospital.

He was born in Effingham on June 1, 1890, the son of Henry and Anna Krone Buhnekemper. He married the former Agnes Langer on September 22, 1931.

He is survived by his wife, three sisters, Mrs. Bridget Zehner, Mrs. Lena Broeringmeyer, Mrs. Agnes Thomas, and one brother Edward, all of Effingham.

After his marriage in 1931, he lived at Eldred until 1947 when he moved to a farm near Murrayville.

The body is at the Mehl Funeral Home in Carrollton. Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday at St. John's Catholic church in that city. The Rev. Monsignor Enright will officiate with burial in the church cemetery. Rev. Father Moore and Rev. Father Lydon will assist.

Suspect Admits Burglary; Bond Set At $5,000

A warrant was sworn out Friday in the court of Justice Charles Warzar, charging Dale Mayberry, 24, of near Roodhouse with burglary and larceny at the White Donut Shop on East Court street.

Bond was fixed at $5,000, and the defendant was transferred to the county jail.

Chief of Police Charles Runkel said Mayberry was arrested on suspicion, and later made a statement admitting that he broke into the shop and stole some cigarets.

The Donut Shop was entered Wednesday night by forcing open an overhead door.

Cottingham To Begin Duties As Patrolman

Norman Cottingham, 27, of 1206 South Clay avenue, will begin his new duties as probationary patrolman on the Jacksonville police department Sunday.

Cottingham is a veteran of service in the Navy.

Vacancies in several ranks existed after the recent retirement of Capt. LeRoy Leach, two of which have now been filled. Donald Jarvis was recently promoted from sergeant to captain. The vacancy of sergeant has not yet been filled.

Auto Hits Pole; Driver Fined By Magistrate

Police were called to the 200 block on South Mauvaisterre street at 12:25 o'clock Saturday morning, where an automobile had smashed against a light pole. A ticket charging reckless driving was issued a short time later to Dick Crow, 403 North Clay avenue.

At the Saturday morning session of court held by Police Magistrate Fred Daniels, a plea of guilty to reckless driving was entered by Crow, who was fined $25.

Other fines entered by the magistrate were:

Riley Powell, Jacksonville, $10 for not having city car sticker; Roger Spangenberg, 128 East Oak street, $15 for driving too fast for conditions; Mike Wood, Jacksonville route five, $15 for driving too fast for conditions; George Fink, Beardstown, $10 for running stop sign, causing accident; Curtis Bailey, 629 North Main street, $14 for disorderly conduct; Herbert McDaniel, 606 North West street, $14 for disorderly conduct; Winnie McDaniel, 606 North West street, $14 for disorderly conduct; Irwin Mickens, Jacksonville, $14 for disorderly conduct.

Driver Leaves Scene At New Berlin Accident

NEW BERLIN—This community's first auto accident of the new year left officials looking for a culprit driving an auto with a possible big dent in the front end following an incident about 1 o'clock Friday morning.

Power company linemen are still baffled as to why the driver was not "well fried."

Someone ran into a large utility pole at the west edge of New Berlin, causing a multitude of "live" wires to snap and fall to the ground. The pole was sheared off completely indicating considerable impact in the crash.

Ten minutes after the crash a wrecker and law enforcement officials arrived on the scene but found only a spaghetti entanglement of sparking wires. State police were notified immediately but the driver and his mode of transportation have not been found.

Police officers conducting the investigation said there was a good possibility that the driver may have been "well fried," but not from the electrical shock.

Rites Held For Hardin Barber's Mother In Adams

HARDIN — Funeral services for Mrs. Harvey Venverloth, 84, mother of Clifton Bennett, Hardin barber, were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 p.m., at the Hansen Funeral Home in Quincy.

Mrs. Venverloth, who had made her home in Pekin for several years, was moved by ambulance to the Boll Nursing Home in Quincy about two weeks ago, where she was cared for by a daughter, Mrs. Nancy Boll. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett had gone to Quincy Saturday for a Christmas visit with his mother, and were still in the city when her death occurred suddenly at 12:30 p.m. Sunday. A heart attack was the apparent cause of death.

In addition to Mrs. Boll and Mr. Bennett, survivors include another daughter, Mrs. Georgia Hoener, and several grandchildren. Mr. Venverloth passed away several year sago. Attending the funeral from this vicinity were Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ritchey of Hardin, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Bailey of Kampsville, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bennett of Alton.

Cloudy Days Dominate December Weather

December weather data released by the Norbury Sanatorium Saturday showed a total of twenty-two cloudy days during the month of December; three partly-cloudy and only six clear days. What appeared, on paper at least, to be a dreary month for hanging clothes out to dry was quite mild for most hearty midwesterners of the Jacksonville variety.

Rainfall was slightly under the normal for December—only 1.62 inches was recorded at the weather reporting station. Normal rainfall is 1.73 inches. The greatest amount in 24 hours was recorded on the 28th—.66 inch.

Snow flurries were recorded on five days of the calendar: 5th, 20th, 21st, 29th and 30th. For all practical purposes, however, the snow didn't amount to very much—not even enough to support a good snowball fight, let alone provide the medium for Christmas sleds.

The average low for the month was 31.4 degrees; average high, 43.4. The mean for December was 37.4 degrees, slightly above the normal of 31. The coldest day of the month was a shivering 14 on the seventh while the warmest day was a balmy 59 on the 27th. If you listen closely, you can hear the teeth gnashing of several Jacksonville residents who rushed to Florida beaches for temporary relief from predicted snow, ice and below-zero temperatures.

Several of the younger set and older folks alike were somewhat disappointed, at the lack of a "White Christmas" this year but the lack of snow in our immediate area has kept the traffic death toll below normal. If you are reading this before returning to homes away from Jacksonville, please be alert and stop for coffee breaks often—our readers are the most important people in the world.

Grand totals for 1959 indicate 33.89 inches of rainfall; normal is considered 36.58. The mean temperature for 1959 was 53.8 degrees; normal is 53.2.

Wind directions reported during December, by days: north, 1; south, 3; northeast, 5; southwest, 9; east, 1; west, 1; southeast, 5; and northwest, 6.

'DEAN' INSTEAD OF 'PRESIDENT'

CHICAGO (AP) —District leaders in the 30 synods that will make up the new Lutheran Evangelical Church in America are going to be known as "deans."

The Joint Committee on Lutheran Unity chose "dean" over "president" in order "to weight the scale in the direction of more ecclesiastical language."

The JCLU is negotiating the four-way merger of the United, Augustana, Finnish Evangelical and American Evangelical Lutheran Churches into the new three million-member LECA.

One Defendant Sentenced To Penitentiary

JERSEYVILLE—Pleas of guilty were entered in the Circuit Court of Jerseyville county here Thursday by Henry Mitchell and Charles Beer of Grafton to informations filed in the court by State's Attorney Claude J. Davis, charging the two with burglary.

Judge Sam Smith of Girard sitting in the court at the time of the pleas ruled that Mitchell was ineligible for probation and sentenced him to serve from one to five years in the Illinois penitentiary. Mitchell had previously done a stretch of two and one half years at Menard on a charge of burglary and larceny filed against him in Madison county.

Beer was found guilty in accordance with his plea and was certified as eligible to probation. His case was certified to the county probation officer for investigation and report relative to his petition for probation. Sentence will be delayed until the report of the probation officer is filed with the court.

Beer and Mitchell were arrested on charges of burglary and attempt to break and enter with intent to commit felony at the confectionery of Robert Miller in Grafton the early morning of Christmas.

Barry Soldier Helps Preserve Panama Peace

FORT AMADOR, Canal Zone (AHTNC)—Army PFC Rollin L. Ballard, a member of the U.S. Army Caribbean Command, participated with other troops of his unit in the maintenance of order along the Pacific side border between the Canal Zone and the Republic of Panama during recent anti-U.S. demonstrations. His mother, Mrs. Freda V. Zirkel, lives in Barry, Ill.

Ballard assisted in setting up and manning road blocks and barbed wire emplacements well inside the zone to keep out rioters bent on planting Panamanian flags.

Canal Zone Governor W. E. Potter commended the operation of the troops and other Caribbean Command personnel involved. He said that the military forces "remained calm, soldierly and effective throughout a most trying situation."

A member of the 534th Military Police Company at Fort Clayton, Ballard entered the Army in November, 1958, completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and arrived in the Canal Zone last May.

Mailing Of Letters Opens Annual Scott Polio Drive

By Dorothy Sauer
(Winchester Correspondent)
(Telephone PIoneer 2-3439)

WINCHESTER — The mailing of letters, over the weekend, to the residents of Scott County, opened the annual Scott County Polio Drive for 1960. Once again the Scott citizens are appealed to for funds for the national foundation. The new March of Dimes Drive this year, besides carrying on the continual fight against Polio will also be used in helping prevent crippling diseases, birth defects and arthritis. In expanding their health program the foundation has undertaken the biggest health program ever done so by any voluntary organization.

The citizens are urged to be generous in returning their March of Dimes envelopes with their donations. The Drive, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Homer Rockwood, will continue throughout the month of January but it is hoped that the appeal will be responded to as quickly as possible so as not to be forgotten.

Recently elected officers and directors of the Scott County Infantile Paralysis Board for the ensuing year include C. E. Marshall, president; Mrs. Dorothy Wilson, secretary; Mrs. Audrey Peak, treasurer. Members of the Board include Mrs. Dorothy Vannier, Mrs. Charlotte Hoots, Mrs. Homer Rockwood, Miss Frances Crabtree, Mrs. Opal Hurrelbrink, Mrs. Audrey Peak, Mrs. Dorothy Wilson, Mrs. Marjorie Powers, C. E. Marshall, Jesse Saffer, Clement Thomas, James Sturgeon and L. A. Watt.

Day Unit To Meet

The Day Unit of the Winchester Home Bureau will open their meeting this Tuesday, Jan. 5, with an 11 o'clock sack lunch at the home of Mrs. Merle Helliwell with Mrs. Herman Weder as assistant hostess. Roll call will be answered with "Something I Would Like to Accomplish in 1960." Song of the month for the club is entitled "Winter Wonderland."

The major lesson, "Chicken and Turkey in the Menu," will be given by Mrs. Olin Clark and Mrs. Clyde North. "Decorative Stitches" will be the subject for the minor lesson to be presented by Mrs. George Lawson.

Auxiliary Meets

The members of the American Legion Auxiliary in Winchester held their regular meeting last Wednesday evening in the Legion Hall with Mrs. Denton Coonrod, president, presiding over the business session. A report was given on the Christmas Baskets, prepared under the leadership of Mrs. W. E. Harper and Mrs. Norbert Hutchens, given jointly by the Auxiliary and Kiwanis members to needy families of the community. The membership chairman reported that the 61 members belonging to the organization were 100% paid up to date.

The Club's project for the coming year will be helping to maintain the veteran's Downey Nursery in Downey, Ill. The theme of the project is entitled "The Coupon Money Tree—Fall-out for Downey Nursery." Members are asked to save coupons from many different items and each month turn them over to the coupon chairman, Mrs. Dale Slater.

The coupons saved here will in turn be sent to the district chairman who will redeem them for money to be donated to the nursery. This is an inexpensive way to make money for this worthwhile project and it is hoped that all members cooperate to the fullest.

Following the business meeting, a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments enjoyed by those present.

Birth Announcement

Relatives here have received word of the birth of an 8 lb. 2 oz. son, Michael Wayne, born on Christmas Day to Sp. 4 and Mrs. Harry Wayne Anders in Boblingen, Germany. Sp. 4 Anders has been serving in the armed forces in Germany for the past two years. The Anders have two other children, both girls. The paternal grandparents are Rev. and Mrs. Clarence Anders and the maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John Farmer, Sr., all of Winchester.

RNA To Meet

The first meeting of the new year for the Winchester Royal Neighbor Lodge members will be held this Monday evening at 7:30 in the I.O.O.F. Hall. Mrs. Nora Slagle, Oracle, will preside over the business at which time plans are to be made for the annual installation of the 1960 officers to be held on Jan. 18.

Statistics

Scott County Clerk, Miss Frances Crabtree, reports that there was only one birth in the county during the year 1959. This is due to the fact that most of the babies are born in hospitals in adjacent counties. A total of 88 deaths and 60 marriages in the county for the past year was also recorded.

Circuit Clerk Lawrence Gillham reported that there were 12 divorces in the past year. This was twice as many as was granted in 1958.

Former Residents Cited

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Evans of Edina, Mo., former Winchester residents, were among the farm families selected to receive the Missouri Bankers Association awards and Chemical awards. Selections of families were based on the basis of achievement and progress in farm planning.

Fire Destroys 3-Room House In White Hall

WHITE HALL — A three room frame house belonging to Bob Stewart of White Hall was destroyed by fire here Saturday afternoon about 1:30 p.m. Firemen, who raced to the scene as soon as the alarm was received, were unable to salvage anything from the blaze which had already enveloped the house.

The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Barnd and four children, none of whom were home at the time. The house and its contents, although no definite estimate of the amount has yet been made, were nearly a total loss. Mr. Barnd has been unemployed for some time .

Final Rites For Mrs. Maxine Cox

Funeral services and graveside rites for Mrs. Maxine Cox were held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Williamson Funeral Home. The Rev. L. E. Olson officiated. Mrs. Opaline Swisher sang several selections accompanied by Mrs. Don Wood at the organ.

Flowers were cared for by members of the V.F.W. Auxiliary who attended the services in a group.

Pallbearers were Louis Vaniter, Gene Walker, Willie Boston, Carlos Proffitt, Lawrence Alloway, and Charles McDevitt. Burial was in White Hall Cemetery. Graveside rites were conducted by V.F.W. Auxiliary No. 1379 with the following officers taking part:

PAUL ELLIOTTS SPEND CHRISTMAS IN BERLIN, GERMANY

P.F.C. Paul L. Elliott and wife, Beverly, spent their Christmas holidays in Berlin, Germany. One day was spent behind the Iron Curtain in East Berlin.

Elliott is stationed at Gelnhausen, Germany, a member of Headquarters Company in the Division's Combat Command B. He arrived overseas in October of 1958.

Mrs. Elliott, the former Beverly Baptist, will return home with her son, Logan Dale, in February and Mr. Elliott will return in March .

J. O. Cain Retires; In Milling, Grain Trade For 45 Years

J. O. Cain is out of the milling and grain business for the first time since 1914. He expects the coming days to be more tranquil, "but not so much fun."

Cain was the guest of honor at a dinner held at Hamilton's Cafe last Monday evening, which was attended by his fellow staff workers of the Illinois Grain Co. and elevator managers from this section of Illinois.

The Illinois Grain Co. is the farmer-owned grain marketing co-operative of the Illinois Agricultural association. Cain worked for it 17 years, 15 as manager of the Jacksonville branch.

In 1958 the Jacksonville office was combined with the Champaign office and moved to Decatur, the center of the nation's soybean business.

A Trainer Of Men

Those at the farewell banquet told of episodes that illustrated Cain's optimistic, cheerful attitude toward anything that might be at hand. Most of them told of their indebtedness to him for the kindnesses and guidance he gave them when they were starting in business of handling grain.

Particularly vocal in their praise were the young men whom he "broke" into the business.

Carl Kaiser, now manager of the Decatur branch, was the first of six assistants trained by him —all of them who are still in the business.

They are John Brant, who has an elevator in Atlanta; Jim Kinney, now with Cargill with offices in Champaign; Wainwright Anderson, assistant manager of the St. Louis branch of Illinois Grain; Carroll Lewis and Jim Jones, both in the Decatur office.

68 Years Old

James Oliver Cain was born two and a half miles south of Jacksonville on July 21, 1891.

"There were eight boys and one girl in our family; every one of us boys had a sister," he says.

His formal education was strictly limited to Routt. Routt country school was located on his father's farm and he went to Routt high school.

In 1916 he went on the road, drumming up business for "Occident" flour ground by Russell-Miller of Minneapolis. His territory was central Illinois. Travel was almost exclusively by rail and a successful drummer had to know more timetables than a station manager. There were many trains then and if a man knew how to make connections he could travel far and do a lot of business in a day.

In 1916 he joined Schultz-Beaujean Mills of Beardstown. They made "Gloria" flour. His territory was the entire United States "because I was the only salesman they had."

For a year he was a World War I soldier, the first sergeant of a medical outfit.

"Gone To Pot"

"By then, the flour business had pretty well gone to pot," he recalls. "The women had gone on strike — so far as baking bread was concerned. All the salesman had left was the bakery."

He set up the Jacksonville I.G.C. office in 1943 and bought millions of bushels of grain from the 60 elevators located in his 17 county district.

Some days were mighty hectic. For example, he can recall that when OPA controls went off in 1946 soybeans went up 12c a bushel while he was trying to get the sale phoned into the Chicago office.

He also recalls that he bought a carload of soybeans from Orval Davis, manager of Bluffs Farmers elevator, "for $4.46 or $4.64 a bushel. I can't say for sure, but when they get that high what's the difference?"

The busiest period he can remember was in October of the banner crop year of 1948. In that month his telephone bill was $1,765, but he bought more than two million bushels of grain.

Elevator At Naples

In the past year Cain has been primarily concerned with the financing of the new grain terminal elevator to be built by Illinois Grain at Naples. This 300,000 bushel elevator will be erected just south of Jacksonville's water well. Grain delivered there will be fed by gravity into river barges, which promises cheaper shipping charges and hence more money for the farmers of this area.

The elevator is expected to cost around $400,000. About one fourth of this will be subscribed by co-operating elevators, another fourth by Illinois Grain and the remainder borrowed from the Bank for Co-operatives, St. Louis.

Construction of the elevator is scheduled to begin next month, weather permitting.

To Discuss School Problems In New Berlin Vicinity

NEW BERLIN — The Board of Education and Administrators of Community Unit School District No. 16 have planned to hold meetings of all interested persons to present the educational advantages and disadvantages to parents and others on: if re-arrangement of students could be made so that one teacher could teach one grade only; to answer those questions which patrons care to ask.

This problem has been discussed by various community groups and the Board of Education for several years. These meetings have been planned to secure opinions and information before a decision is made by the Board of Education of the school unit.

Carroll O. Garrison, superintendent of schools of the district, has released the following schedule for these community meetings:

Berlin, Monday, Jan. 4, Berlin Grade School, 7:30 p.m.

Loami, Wednesday, Jan. 6, Loami Grade School, 8:00 p.m.

Curran, Thursday, Jan. 7, Curran Grade School, 7:30 p.m.

New Berlin, Wednesday, Jan. 13, New Berlin Grade School, 8 p.m.

All adults of the school unit are urged to attend the meeting in your area, so that the opinions of the majority may be heard before the Board of Education attempts to make a decision on this vital subject.

Scholarship Nominees

Two New Berlin youths, David Bueltmann and David Kikendall, were among those named as semi-finalists in the selection of 1960 Illinois college scholarship award winners.

The Scholarship Commission, appointed by Governor Stratton to implement the program enacted in the 1957 General Assembly as part of the Governor's higher educational plan has narrowed the list to 4,438 names from the original 20,874 who applied by taking the scholarship examination on November 4, 1959. It is expected that approximately 1,500 monetary winners will be named early in March of 1960. In the past two years the average award to monetary winners has amounted to approximately $400 per year.

TO CHOOSE OUTSTANDING JUNIOR FARMER JANUARY 30

This committee is in charge of making arrangements for the Illinois Outstanding Junior Farmer contest and program that will be held in Jacksonville on Saturday, Jan. 30.

Arrange First Horse Breeders Short Course

URBANA — The first Horse Breeders Short Course ever offered by the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine will be held on Feb. 4 and 5 at Urbana.

This course is designed to interest horsemen and veterinarians, says Dr. L. E. Boley, chairman. The material that is presented will be of value to people interested in racing, pleasure, show and working horses as well as ponies. Question-and-answer periods will give participants the opportunity to pinpoint and discuss specific problems they are encountering.

Dr. Boley says leading veterinarians from the University of Illinois and the University of Kentucky, outstanding veterinary practitioners and well-known professional horse farm managers in both states will present a well-rounded program. These speakers will cover many areas of interest and importance, from breeding and fertility to fitting the horse for sale or show. Other subjects to be covered include the latest advances in management, feed and care; modern disease prevention and control; and proper handling of lameness and injury.

Details of the short course program, co-sponsored by the College of Agriculture, can be obtained by writing Short Course Supervisor, 116C Illini Hall, Champaign, Ill., or the College of Veterinary Medicine.

RURAL YOUTH TO HEAR HISTORY OF AUCTIONEERING

Carman Y. Potter will give a talk on the history of auctioneering at the next meeting of the Morgan County Rural Youth, which will be held at Farm Bureau hall Thursday, Jan. 7, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Later he will cry a White Elephant auction. All members are requested to bring such an item.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

BEEF PRICES END LONG UPWARD CLIMB

Prices of beef cattle seem to have ended a long upward climb in 1959. The 1959 yearly average for choice steers at Chicago is close to $28.00 a hundred pounds. This average is 25 percent above the low year, 1956, and the highest in seven years, or since 1952.

The good prices of 1959 were not the result of scarcity. Farmers sold enough cattle to provide each person with 81 pounds of beef (give or take a few ounces). This amount is the fourth largest on record. Consumers had more beef (but just one to four pounds more) in only three years, 1955, '56 and '57. During the past five years each person has had 60 to 70 percent more beef than was available per person 30 years ago.

Cattle prices have averaged considerably higher during the past three years than during the preceding three years. Choice steers at Chicago averaged about $26.40 in the past three years compared with $22.37 in the three preceding years.

Income Factors

This fact is important in the farm income picture, because U.S. farmers receive more money from the sale of cattle and calves than from any other farm product. Such sales brought farmers $7,596 million in 1958. That was nearly as much as they received from sales of all five of the leading cash crops combined — wheat, cotton, corn, soybeans and tobacco! In 1958 Illinois farmers received $520 million from the sale of cattle and calves.

The turning point in cattle prices apparently came last April. Prices of choice steers at Chicago then averaged $30.33 a hundred pounds, 60 per cent above the post-war low of $18.88 reached in February 1956.

After the April high, prices of beef cattle began what may be a considerable decline. Lower prices are expected because ranchers and farmers have been accumulating cattle for 30 months. A large share of this accumulation consists of steers, heifers and calves being fattened and grown for slaughter.

More On Feed

Numbers of beef cattle on farms and ranches increased about 7 percent in 1958, and probably 10 percent in 1959. The number of cattle on feed last Oct. 1 was officially estimated at 20 percent above the year before. It was not until recent weeks, however, that market receipts began to exceed year-before runs. At about the same time, mid-November, prices of choice steers slipped under year-before levels.

We have said that prices of beef cattle might average $2.00 lower in 1960 than in this past year. But this is only a guess, since there is no way of knowing how many cattle farmers will sell. Forecasting seasonal swings in cattle prices is much more difficult than it used to be. Until a few years ago we could plan on getting good prices for cheap cattle in the late spring and for choice and prime cattle in the fall. In 1958 and 1959, however, prices of fat cattle were highest in March and April, respectively. But this is probably not a dependable pattern.

Odds seem to be against price recovery this winter. Too many farmers may be heading cattle for the late winter, expecting the high prices of the past two years to be repeated. And many ranchers have too many cattle to feed through the entire winter season.

SOIL CONSERVATION SCHOOL PLANNED

The second annual 4-H soil conservation school will begin at Farm Bureau hall at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Jan. 11, announces Assistant Farm Adviser Bob Hayward, Jr.

It will be held on the next three Monday evenings and will end with a tour to be held in the early spring.

The school is arranged in two phases. The first will include a study of soil, soil types, fertilizers and testing. Any 4-H member is eligible to enroll.

The second phase will be a study of soil conservation practices and structures and will be open to the 12 members who completed last year's work.

The instructors will be Hayward, Farm Adviser George Trull and Ted Pierce, SCS farm planner.

Some 40 Illinois Junior Chamber of Commerce chapters will enter candidates in the annual contest. The young farmer chosen here will represent the state in the national contest to be held in Bakersfield, Calif., in April.

Convention headquarters will be at the Dunlap hotel. A luncheon for candidates and their wives will be held there at noon.

The wives will be the guests of Jaycee wives of Jacksonville. There will be a style show for them at the Dunlap in the morning and in the afternoon they will view some of the homes, both old and modern, in Jacksonville.

After the luncheon, the candidates and their sponsors will tour the Anderson, Clayton plant and the Davidsmeyer - Green farm southeast of the city. The tours are scheduled to end at 3:30 p.m. to give the visitors free time to shop.

Some 350 visitors are expected at the annual banquet, which will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the gym of Jonathan Baldwin Turner school.

Nearly 80 percent of the crop acreage in Illinois is planted to varieties developed within the past 10 years. Present varieties will be replaced even faster during the next decade.

The average total amount of nutrients in mixed fertilizers increased from 16 percent in 1925 to 28 percent in 1955. This trend toward higher analysis fertilizer materials will continue.

Find First Rabid Bats In Illinois

URBANA — Rabies has been found in two Illinois bats. This is the first time the disease has been found in bats in Illinois, according to the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine.

Last October a child in Evanston fell on a bat that was lying on the ground. Dr. Edward C. Khuen, Cook county rabies control officer, reported that a test established the presence of rabies. In early December a dog in Decatur was bitten by a bat. The bat was taken to the state diagnostic laboratory at the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine, where tests showed that the bat was rabid.

Previously the nearest states to have positive evidence of rabies in bats were Wisconsin and Michigan. However, rabid bats have been found recently in such states as Nebraska, West Virginia, Virginia and Connecticut, bringing to 23 the number of states in which bat rabies has been diagnosed.

4-H FEDERATION TO MEET JAN. 6

Rev. Frank Marston, pastor of Grace Methodist church, will speak on the subject of "Dating" at the Jan. 6 meeting of the Morgan County 4-H Federation.

It will be held at Farm Bureau hall at 7:30 p.m.

At that time final plans will be made for the annual 4-H Leaders Recognition banquet sponsored by the Federation, Farm Bureau, Home Bureau and Service company. It will be held at Grace church on Tuesday, Jan. 19, with R. O. Lyons, U.I. 4-H staff leader, as the principal speaker.

Amino Triazole Main Spray School Topic

URBANA—Amino triazole, the chemical of recent cranberry fame, will be a featured topic at the Illinois Custom Spray Operators' Training School.

C. Boyd Shaffer of the American Cyanamid Company will discuss the toxicology of this chemical on warm-blooded animals.

Another topic, "Avoiding Pesticide Contamination of Milk," will share the feature spotlight. George C. Decker, head of economic entomology in the Illinois Natural History Survey, will present this report.

Dates for this annual school are Jan. 27-29. It will be held in the Illini Union on the University of Illinois Urbana campus, reports H. B. Petty, chairman.

Two other speakers will include F. G. Anderson and W. G. Lovely. Anderson will explain the revision of the Illinois weed law and recent state legislation affecting the use of 2, 4-D. Anderson serves with the Illinois Department of Agriculture in Springfield. Lovely, a USDA agricultural engineer from Ankeny, Iowa, will report on granular and liquid herbicides. He'll also discuss equipment used in applying these herbicides.

Two Illinois farmers will share the speakers' platform. They are Leonard Bols, Morris, and Jack Bingham, Huntley. Bols will report his observations of face flies on his dairy cattle, Bingham will reveal fly control results on his dairy farm.

Several other topics to be presented during the two-day school include (1) new developments in corn ear worm and face fly control, (2) turf diseases and lawn weeds, (3) soil insecticides and (4) the relation between weeds and crop yields.

Hog Improvement Group To Meet In Peoria

The 13th annual meeting of the Illinois Swine Herd Improvement association will be held at the Jefferson hotel in Peoria Saturday, Jan. 9.

The program will begin at 10 a.m., with President Dale McKee of Rio, Knox county, presiding.

Speakers of the day will include Keith E. Myers, executive secretary of the national association and Prof. J. Carroll Bottum of Purdue university.

Myers will discuss "New Concepts In Live Hog Evaluation," and Bottum's topic will be "Population, Politics and Production of Swine."

Dr. O. Burr Ross, head of the U. I. animal science department, will lead a panel discussion on "What Are New Horizons for Hog Men."

All To Himself

Not since 1944 has one Republican candidate for the presidential nomination had so clear a field as Vice President Richard Nixon now seems to have for 1960.

That year, Thomas E. Dewey had nominal opposition from the then Governor Bricker of Ohio. But it was never serious competition and Bricker wound up by pulling out at the outset of the convention.

Governor Rockefeller's withdrawal from the 1960 race even before the battle is engaged leaves Nixon and his party with little to do but concentrate on building party organization throughout the country in preparation for the fall campaign.

Nixon is as good as nominated, always barring the unforeseen. At present, the public opinion polls show him holding a sizable lead over top Democratic contenders. He would have to tumble far to alarm GOP professionals with the thought that he might not win in November. Right now they think he can.

If their fears were really aroused, they might come and get Rockefeller in a true draft. But that prospect seems remote today.

Rockefeller is clearly a political realist. His pull-out recognizes that he faced an extremely difficult uphill battle, with the chance of victory over Nixon far from promising.

The situation that would have been favorable to his candidacy—an obvious definite weakening of Nixon's position as measured against key Democrats—never developed. Rockefeller never was able to go to the professionals and say he could win but Nixon could not.

On the contrary, after Nixon's summer visit to Russia he gained popular strength steadily and forged into the lead over Sen. John F. Kennedy and Adlai Stevenson. Politicians who already favored Nixon for other reasons became persuaded he could keep the White House under GOP control.

As Rockefeller pointed out, this left him with only one possible successful course of action. He could have entered a flock of primaries against Nixon, hoping to trounce him and thereby win the support the pros would not otherwise give. He decided this was too rough and costly a road.

His choice leaves the Republicans free of the dangers of internal combat. It also robs them of all the ample publicity that would attend such a fight. They now will have a diffuclt time sustaining interest in their activities until the fall campaign begins.

Nixon's test is over before it began. The party's is just beginning.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

'Yours in Christ'

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

"Yours in Christ"—that is the closing salutation in a letter I have just received. It is obviously a letter from one Christian to another. Yet even among Christians it is a somewhat unusual form of closing.

It has a special significance to which I should like to return. First, however, some comment seems appropriate upon what it means to be "in Christ."

The meaning of the "in" in the New Testament expression "in Christ," is as if you were to say "in New York," denoting a place of residence.

Christ is the Christian's living place and environment.

To be "in Christ" means, first and most of all, to live in a world of love—the world of the love of God made real to men by Jesus Christ (Matthew 7:9-11). This is the gospel, concerning God's goodness and grace and His yearning, like that of a good shepherd's love and seeking for a lost sheep, that all men should be saved. This is basic in what it means to be "in Christ."

"We love Him because He first loved us," says the Apostle John (I John 4:19). To be "in Christ" is to respond to God's love by seeking to know and do His will.

How can one know God's will? I think it is revealed in the Old and New Testament—in the two great commandments, and in the logical fact that "if God so loved us we ought also to love one another."

No man can be "in Christ" unless he loves his fellow men and his heart is purged of prejudice and bias and hatred.

Differences are sure to arise among men. Contention must often inevitably be strong. Hatred of evil easily becomes hatred of evildoers.

Yet significant in the example and teaching of the Christ is the fact that God loves sinners. Man in his first righteous hatred of evildoers, if he would be "in Christ," should not forget God's way.

To be "in Christ" is to put into one's daily life in character and deed the teaching and example of the Master, in humble quest of righteousness and truth, putting the worths and values that Jesus taught above all material aims and worldly success.

The letter to which I referred in the beginning has for me a special value and significance. The signature that follows "in Christ" is that of an eminent Roman Catholic churchman.

The letter is to me, an independent Christian, whose immediate association is with a fellowship of independents, who in England at least, have been known as nonconformists rather than churchmen.

Between me and my Roman Catholic correspondent in external matters of affiliation and various conceptions there is a great gulf fixed, but over that gulf is a great bridge that unites us as brothers "in Christ."

Differences of opinion, doctrine, organization, etc., are inevitable, and one would not wish any curb upon the freedom of churchmen to emphasize their own way, but what the world needs above all else is that Christians, above all else, should be "in Christ," in simple devotion to the Jesus of the Gospels.

During the Christian centuries much that is divisive has been proclaimed in His name, but in the Gospels all the emphasis was upon love.

Will Second Income Purchase The True Values of Living?

She has been married less than a year and she is already finding that the common complaint of the working wife, the one who holds down a full-time job, is of always being tired.

I'm sorry to have to sound so pessimistic. But, judging from my mail, the longer a woman tries to be a combination homemaker and wage-earner the "tireder" she gets.

As she trades the first small apartment for a home of her own, as she is pressed into community work, as the young couple's social circle widens, as children come along, the bigger the load the working wife finds herself carrying.

So here's a tip for "working wife":

Instead of figuring out all the things you and your husband can achieve on a double pay check, why don't you sit down some quiet evening and see if you can't figure out how you can live on one pay check, namely, the one marked "HIS"?

Sure you can have more on a "HIS" and "HERS" income—at least in the beginning. But why get used to a way of living that makes your holding a job an absolute necessity?

Why face years of being a tired working wife when, by trimming your sails a little right now, you could look forward to years of being a full-time homemaker, giving your most important job the best you have to offer?

If the idea of giving your best to the job of being a wife and mother appeals to you strongly, you had better start figuring how to live on one income right now, before your living pattern becomes set.

The longer you work the harder it is going to be to quit. Because it is mighty easy for both a husband a wife to get used to the luxuries a second income provides.

The Natives Are Restless Over a U.S. Export; Bob Kerr Defends Custard—To the Last Stand

BY JERRY BENNETT
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Budget Bureau Director Maurice Stans, on his hunting trip in the Belgian Congo last fall, found evidence that some of the more primitive African tribes think Americans are cannibals.

The superstition arose from an American packing company's canned corned beef sold for export. On the label of the can was the picture of a native African boy. The African aborigines couldn't read the printing on the label. But they did recognize the picture, and they thought that was what was inside the can.

NO SOONER had the 17-man Senate Select Committee on Water Resources landed in Oklahoma City for an inspection tour than Sen. Bob Kerr (D-Okla.) started bragging about his state's frozen custard. Kerr is noted for his love of the dessert and takes great pleasure in trying to convert ice cream eaters to it.

So as the committee was riding the bus from the airport to town, Kerr remarked that they were approaching the best frozen custard stand in the state. He suggested that they stop for refreshments. The driver, however, thought he was kidding and kept going.

"Driver," Kerr commanded, "turn this bus around and head for that custard stand." The startled driver obeyed. Then Kerr jumped off the bus, raced to the stand and bought everyone on board a custard cone.

REPUBLICAN National Committee members used the party symbol as their guide this year for buying Christmas presents. They gave their chairman, Sen. Thruston Morton (R-Ky.) a six-inch-tall brass elephant. Their present to assistant chairman Clare Williams was a long silk stole embroidered with elephant pictures.

Morton's gift raises his total of elephant statues to 11. He has eight in his office on Capitol Hill. Two others are located in his downtown committee office. He confides that he may take the new one home.

ONE OF THE holidays' busiest partygoers was 18-year-old Nancy Ellen Priest, daughter of U.S. Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest. During this season Nancy attended four large formal parties and a half-dozen smaller affairs.

Biggest wingding was the one her mom tossed for her at the Sheraton Carleton Hotel. Its success is credited to the following suggestion that Nancy made concerning the guest list: "Mother, invite plenty of boys!"

The result was best described by Donald Seaton, 19-year-old son of the secretary of the interior. He declared, "What a blast!"

POST OFFICE Department has a special reason for being uneasy about possible postponement of the Inter-American Conference meeting in Quito, Ecuador.

The Post Office has already printed about 40 million stamps commemorating the event. The conference is the policy-making group for the Organization of American States.

Since the stamps are not dated, postal officials don't care how long the conference is put off. What worries them is that the diplomats might decide to hold it in another country. If that happened, the Post Office would be stuck with about $14,000 worth of stamps bearing the name of Ecuador.

A P.O. official says, "We don't like to think about that."

THE 9 A.M. express bus from Chevy Chase to downtown Washington is always loaded with lawyers, District Court judges, Pentagon officers and government agency brass. The result is some pretty high-level conversation during the 30-minute ride.

Other morning, however, a gorgeous blonde got on board, sat down near the rear of the bus and announced to the man beside her: "You'll never know the problems I have had being married to a playboy for 10 years!"

Crooked Repair Rackets Victimize Elderly Widows

BY MARIE DAERR

"They told me the chimney would topple down in the first windstorm if I didn't let them repair it," said tearful Mrs. B, a 75-year-old widow.

Four men, posing as chimney and home repairmen, had bilked Mrs. B. of $3,600.

This elderly widow is just one of many who, according to Better Business Bureaus throughout the country, are the victims of deceit, scare tactics and outright robbery on the part of racketeers eager to get their hands on their savings.

Mrs. J's son-in-law told the BBB of a midwestern city that Mrs. J had been "frightened" by the salesman for a "building firm" into signing an $800 home repair contract.

Mrs. L was escorted to the bank of an employe of this firm. The result? Most of the $3,400 she withdrew apparently found its way into the hands of the "builders."

Soon after, the police of this city issued warrants for the arrest of two men, both linked in the BBB files to the "building firm."

"Our stack of complaints against these people is a big one," the BBB reported. "It involves many elderly persons charged very large sums for work that was completely unsatisfactory."

A 91-year-old widow received a $230 bill for home repair work. She was frightened into giving the order by two representatives of a "building firm." Two weeks later, the same men, claiming to be from still another company, wanted to fix a rat hole.

Several weeks later, the pair showed up again, saying they were from a third firm. A neighbor chased them away.

The license on their car was checked out to a man whose name appeared in the BBB file on the company which had victimized Mrs. J and Mrs. L.

Last winter, a quartet of men robbed a widow, 81. They got into her home by posing as home repairmen.

A month later, four men did some work for a 77-year-old widow. When they left, $1,100 the woman had kept in a dresser drawer went with them.

One technique these racketeers use is to do a little work, then present a big bill and shout or threaten the victim if she refuses to pay.

Or, the BBBs report, they may gain her trust by taking her to a ball game or other event.

"Elderly women should call friends, relatives or the police the minute any so-called repairmen try to get into their home to do unsolicited work," is the BBB warning. "The problem is serious.

"Unless they are careful, elderly women may suffer hardship, worry, financial ruin and even bodily injury from these racketeers."

Q—I was 63 last April. If I apply now for my reduced benefit as the wife of a Social Security recipient, can I collect what I would have received if I had applied at age 62?—Mrs. J. R.

A—These benefits are retroactive for 12 months.

Q—Does the widow of a Social Security beneficiary receive the lump-sum benefit as well as the widow's monthly benefit?—Mrs. B. L.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — High spots and low points in the 1959 movies—

There were fewer movies from Hollywood last year—fewer good ones, too. Some of the attractions were surefire entertainment, but that was the trouble—they were too sure. There was little experimentation with new techniques, offbeat castings, and the chance-taking that has made movies a vital, exciting medium.

These were the films that comprised the Big Five for this reviewer:

"The Diary of Anne Frank" was a masterpiece from the films' top craftsman, George Stevens. Unfortunately, its subject matter kept it from being a box office hit. Too Jewish, reasoned Variety. But I believe the failure was because people don't like stories that show a family in jeopardy and everyone knew the tragic ending.

"Ben-Hur" surprised everyone who expected just another sex-and-salvation movie of Biblical times. The film had its faults, notably overlength, but it was done in William Wyler's excellent taste.

"The Nun's Story" was another triumph of a craftsman, Fred Zinneman. He took a rambling story and molded it into a profoundly moving film.

"Some Like It Hot" was a winner for sheer enjoyment. Billy Wilder took a delicate situation—males disguised as females—and made it rollicking good fun.

Best female star performances: Audrey Hepburn, "The Nun's Story"; Simone Signoret, "Room at the Top"; Katherine Hepburn and Elizabeth Taylor, "Suddenly Last Summer"; Marilyn Monroe, "Some Like It Hot."

Best Foreign Film: "Wild Strawberies."

Disappointments: "The Horse Soldiers," "Green Mansions," "the World, the Flesh and the Devil," "This Earth Is Mine."

A Glance Into The Past

10 YEARS AGO

Edgar L. Kendall, former president of the Bank of Bluffs, died at Stuart, Fla. He was born in Beardstown 68 years ago.

Miss Juanita Hutton, 17, died at Our Saviour's hospital Monday. She and seven other Roodhouse youths were injured in a three car accident.

20 YEARS AGO

Harvey E. Conlee, 75 year old Waverly farmer, died Saturday. He was a director of the Morgan County Farm Bureau.

The Routt Rockets failed to get a basket in the first half of the championship game with Corpus Christi of Galesburg and lost its holiday tournament 28-17.

The 1939 fire loss in Jacksonville was estimated at slightly more than $22,000.

50 YEARS AGO

John G. Reynolds has purchased the Anderson undertaking parlor at 225 West State street from S. T. Anderson. The establishment was founded by J. S. Anderson in 1831.

The assessed valuation of the two telephone companeis in Jacksonville has been set at $20,500.

Mayor John R. Davis has appointed George P. Davis chief of police and has ordered him to suppress wine rooms and the presence of women in saloons.

75 YEARS AGO

On Dec. 31 the directors of Jacksonville National bank met and declared their usual five per cent semi-annual dividend, free from tax.

Thos. Smith, Esq., of Woodson, has sold his farm to Joe Clark, and intends to move to Aurora, Nebr.

A recent fire near Murrayville destroyed a vacant house belonging to Mr. Robert Rimbey. It was valued at $700 and insured for $300.

★ THE DOCTOR SAYS ★

By Harold Thomas Hyman, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

In a previous column, I wrote that you should hesitate to take sleeping pills.

As in dealing with all other medical problems, prime goals in the relief of sleeplessness are discovery of the cause and elimination or neutralization of that cause.

Here are some of the commoner causes for sleeplessness which any observant and intelligent person can get rid of:

- Overheating or excessive chilling of the bedroom.
- Poor ventilation of the bedroom with resultant stuffiness of the nose.
- Undue light or noise. If not preventable, lessened by use of eyeshade or ear plugs.
- Excessively hard or excessively soft mattress. In the latter case, corrected by bedboard between spring and mattress.
- Too many or too few pillows. Former cause backache and neck strain; latter, difficult breathing, especially if nose is stuffy.
- Too many or too few bedclothes. Former results in perspiration and later chilling when coverings are kicked off; latter, chilliness preventing relaxation.
- Too much or too little activity before retiring. Former may be due to stimulation of exciting movie, TV program, card game or conversation; latter to listless, boring evening during which you drowsed or even napped.
- Fullness or emptiness of stomach. Former due to retiring shortly after meal or snack; latter to hunger, especially in the person with ulcer symptoms.
- Drug stimulation from doses of thyroid, appetite killers, nose drops, caffeinated beverages or alcohol drinks like brandy that often produces initial drowsiness and later excitation. In hospital practice, from late reaction to drugs of the morphine series.
- Exposure to industrial stimuli while on the job. Especially lead, mercury, tetraethyl lead (garage employes and men at filling stations).
- Restlessness or cramps of leg muscles. Sometimes relieved by wearing long woolen undergarments, stockings or bed socks.
- And finally, if you are a doctor, worrying about all of the foregoing.

THOUGHTS

Give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you.—I Thess. 5:18.

ALBERT SUCCEEDS PRESTON

NEW YORK (AP)—Robert Preston is stepping out of the title role in "Music Man" and will be replaced by Eddie Albert.

After more than two years in the part, Preston signed up for three movies in Hollywood. Albert has contracted for only three months in the role because of other commitments.

The Mature Parent

Honors Due Older Child Must Be Given Sincerely

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

With the coming of Jerry's baby sister, his sense of self-satisfaction was badly shaken.

This was because the mommy who came home from the hospital looked like the one who'd gone to it—but behaved so differently. At bath time no longer would she watch admiringly when he made waves for his sailboat. No longer did she tell stories to beguile his boredom with the last of his prunes.

Instead of beaming at him while he put on his galoshes, she stuck him on chairs and fastened them herself. What time she now gave him she gave in a hurry that suggested she begrudged every moment she wasn't with the baby.

So, naturally Jerry began to wish that he was the baby instead of himself.

This self-dissatisfaction, inevitable in the arrival of new brothers and sisters, is the mainspring of jealousy.

Though we can't hope to rid an elder child entirely of it, we can reduce its intensity.

With the arrival of a new baby, we can begin to show new honor to the seniority of his brother or sister.

We can make a celebration of extending the older child's bedtime. We can use the occasion to inaugurate a small weekly allowance.

We can take special care to include him in conversations at meals, make a point of consulting his preferences in food, in clothing, in the color of new blankets for his bed.

We can, if we are ourselves perceive that his jealousy of the baby stems from dissatisfaction with his older age, seize all kinds of natural opportunities to demonstrate its advantages to him.

But the spirit in which we show him this new honor is all-important.

If we lavish privileges on him out of fear of his jealousy, he will know it—and discredit their value. He'll know we're trying to "make up" to him.

But if we honor his older age because we truly believe it rates honor, he'll know that, too, and begin to appreciate it himself.

So I remind you that honoring it is morally sound. Jerry takes more responsibility for himself than the baby does. He feeds himself. He uses his own legs. He uses languages to ask for what he wants.

He has achieved more independence than the baby.

Squash Has Long History of Good Eating and Nutrition

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Having resolved to serve more interesting and more nutritive foods to the family in 1960, let's take a look at squash.

No single vegetable in our selection of national foods has enjoyed a longer successful run than squash. It's been around, and popular, for more years than our nation is old. Men, women and children, including the Indians who munched it raw before the white man came, have been enjoying its delicious taste since long before there were nutritionists to tell them the facts of life. For example, one-half cup of cooked squash provides more than a day's recommended allowance of vitamin A for an active adult. It contains considerable mineral value also.

Scalloped Butternut Squash
(Yield: 8 servings)

Wash 2 medium (2 pounds) butternut squash; cut in half, lengthwise, and scrape out seeds and stringy portion. Peel and cut into crosswise slices ½-inch thick. Place a layer in a buttered 1½-quart casserole. Peel and slice a large orange. Top the layer of squash with ⅓ of the orange slices. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons sugar, 1½ teaspoons grated orange rind, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Dot with 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Repeat, using remaining squash, orange slices, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1½ teaspoons orange rind, and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Cover and bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 1 hour or until squash is tender.

Spiced Butternut Squash
(Yield: 6 servings)

Peel 2 butternut squash (1 pound each) and cut into crosswise slices ½-inch thick. Place in a buttered baking pan large enough to arrange squash in a single layer. Combine 3 tablespoons brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1/16 teaspoon ground white pepper, ½ teaspoon ground ginger, ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon, and sprinkle over squash. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Pour in ¼ cup boiling water. Cover with foil and bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 35 minutes or until squash is tender. Remove foil and place under broiler to brown.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Broiled ham steak, scalloped butternut squash, canned green beans, rye rolls, butter or margarine, celery, applesauce, coffee cake, coffee, tea, milk.

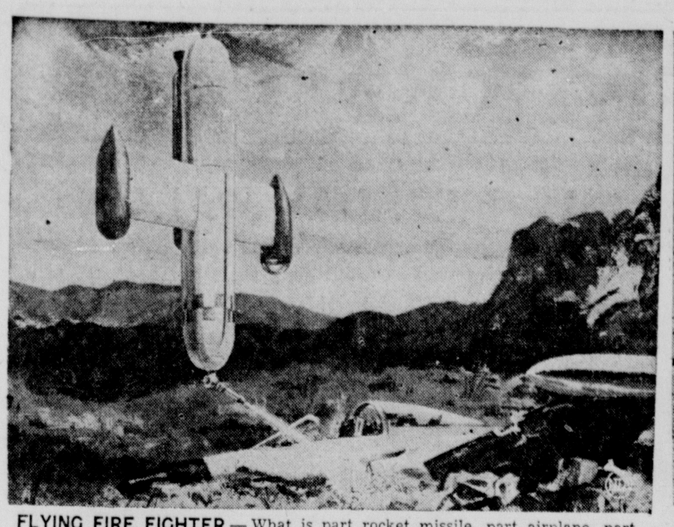
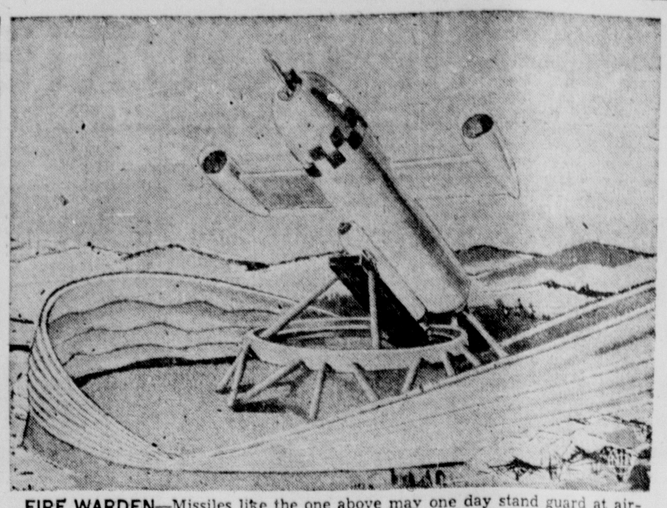
A ham can be cured, but not a ham actor.



FLYING FIRE FIGHTER — What is part rocket missile, part airplane, part helicopter and carries a fire extinguisher in its nose? The answer is "Firefly," a proposed missile that one day may take the place of fire trucks and helicopters at airports and remote areas. Launched like a rocket, gliding like a plane and hovering like a helicopter, Firefly could be rushed to the scene of a downed aircraft, as in drawing above, carrying more than a ton of extinguishing fluid. It would be guided by remote control and have sensing devices to tell the exact location and severity of a blaze. Firefly was designed by Solar Aircraft Co. of San Diego, Calif.



FIRE WARDEN—Missiles like the one above may one day stand guard at airports and forest stations. Called "Firefly," the proposed vehicle would be placed on a launcher and shielded with a collapsible plastic cover. On signal from a tower operator, rockets would blast it into the air. It would then glide like an airplane to the site of the blaze where helicopter rotors would unfold from its tail. Hovering over the fire, sensing devices could direct more than a ton of extinguishing fluid. Designed by Solar Aircraft, Firefly would be about 16 feet long and weigh 5,000 pounds. It could cover five miles in 40 seconds over terrain inaccessible to conventional equipment.

TV-Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The use of music to produce moods and reactions by an audience is not new, of course. It has been used for centuries in churches, theaters and — more recently — as background music in motion pictures. Now music is being used increasingly as persuasive backgrounds to selling.

A jingle with a catchytune is still widely utilized as a selling device, and there are rhyming music men who turn them out on a production line basis. But there is also a definite trend now toward the use of orchestrated mood-setting music to make the accompanying sell more effective.

Among the musicians now in this commercial field are Curtis Biever, a composer-conductor with a classical European background of music, and Lou Stein, a composer-pianist who leans more toward the popular side. Recently they formed a team.

"Mostly we try to create melodies which fit the product," Biever explains. "Sometimes we try to create a tune which the listener will immediately identify with the product. Other times we try to set a mood in the listeners."

For example, one automobile company uses several types of music to sell one car—presumably by appealing to men with one type and women with another.

"When we're selling the power and smooth operation of the motor, the music is full of rhythm and excitement—man's music," Biever says. "And although there may be an implication of speed, that is one selling point no auto company will ever mention.

"But when we are selling the upholstery or interior details, which would be of interest to women buyers, we go into another type of music—smooth, elegant—pianos and wind instruments."

Cosmetic music — warm, sexy, using such instruments as harp, celesta (a light, tinkly piano sound), strings, alto or tenor saxophone.

Baby music — soft and silky, flutes and other woodwinds, piano.

CHURCH EMPLOYMENT AGENCY

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Christ Episcopal Church here operates an employment agency, complete with a state license. The agency was started by the church's pastor, the Rev. William V. Ischie Jr.

NAMES STILL COUNT

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movietown hungers for new faces, but the wise producer these days is taking care of the need to draw customers by beefing up a fledgling cast with an established name.

Take producer - director Hall Bartlett. He has a talented bunch of newcomers in "All the Young Men." Alan Ladd was signed, however, to bellweather the troupe of James Darren, Mort Sahl, Sidney Poitier, Glenn Corbett and boxing champion Ingemar Johansson.

Ditto the folks who did "Operation Petticoat." They have oldtimer Cary Grant to provide initial audience appeal and Tony Curtis for the young blood.

Teeners, Courtesies Take But Moments of Your Time

The four of us who were sitting in the hotel dining room having lunch all have children in either high school or college.

So we understood what she meant when one of the mothers remarked, "I guess I'm getting to the age when I'm grateful to have a teen-ager go out of her way to greet me or seem pleased to see me."

It's a very unimportant incident and yet it might surprise a lot of teen-agers to find out just how much their smallest courtesies are appreciated by adults.

Teen-agers today are so busy in their own little world that many of them scarcely know that adults are people who have feelings, too.

The adults who give up an evening to chaperone a dance, the mother who drives a teen-age car pool, the teacher who spends many extra hours sponsoring a school activity, the relatives who never forget to send a gift to a teen-ager on special occasions, friends of a teen-ager's parents—all these are too often ignored by the young folks.

Yet it only takes a minute or two for a teen-ager to stop and say "hello" and introduce a friend to an adult.

It only takes a little common courtesy to include the mother, who is chauffeuring a carload of teen-agers, in the general conversation.

So watch it, you teen-agers. Take that extra moment to be gracious to members of the generation ahead of you.

Don't be so taken up with your own age group that you are scarcely aware that anyone outside it is real.

Study Blood Flow

The Wright Air Development Center is also studying the flow of blood in the capillaries (small blood vessels) under various g (gravity) forces. The capillaries in a hamster's cheek pouch have been studied during centrifuge tests with: closed circuit TV, motion and still cameras.

From these tests, and similar ones on larger animals, the WADC scientists hope to develop better devices for protection against g forces. They also hope to find an explanation of peteciae, which are measle-like spots which appear as a result of blood leaking from capillaries under g forces.

Astronauts Practice Blastoff

The inside end of the centrifuge arm is mounted directly, without gearing, on one of the largest D.C. motors in the world. This motor is like those in HO train engines except that it is much, much larger, weighing about 180 tons, and uses quite a bit more electricity.

Quick Speed

The cab of the centrifuge can be accelerated from standing still to about 180 miles-per-hour in seven seconds. This makes up to 40g (40 times the force of earth's gravity) of radial (straight out from the center of the circle) acceleration.

Data gathered from test flights of Atlas missiles and from mathematical calculations are fed into an analogue computer (electronic brain) in a building next door to the centrifuge building. The computer then controls the speed of the centrifuge so that the Astronaut in the cab experiences the same amount of g force for the same time as he would on a real launch.

SURPRISE

By Melba Huckeby Ewert

'all trees swaying
'right leaves playing;
sat at my window and watched them.
'Tag!" a leaf touched an Oak leaf yellow
"Tag Yourself," a red sumac fellow
Laugher loudly as he passed them.
Downward, groundward, bright leaves were swirling
In great and small circles curling
Then "Oh Look" I cried when a golden brown chap
Traveling straight upward.—higher, higher—
Then North, then South, agleem like a fire.
Suddenly it fluttered to my window slat—
And I gave a smile and a sigh!
Said I, at that—
"You sure fooled me! You Monarch Butter-fly!"

PEN PAL WANTED

Dear Boy:

I will correspond with you. I am a girl. I am 14 years. I live in Holland on an island in the North Sea. I hope you are a boy.

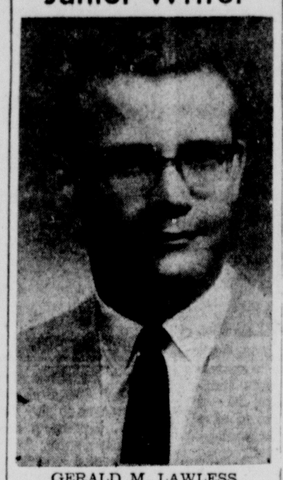
Junior Writer



GERALD M. LAWLESS

From time to time we have told you something about our Junior page authors and since Gerald Lawless has been writing the "What Do You Think?" and other columns for the Junior page for a bit over a year now, you will be interested in knowing something about him.

Mr. Lawless is now a freshman at Southern Illinois University where his special interests are Anthropology (the study of long-ago days before man began to write) and psychology (which tells why we act and think as we do.) He plans to teach or go into government work or business when he has finished his studies.

Probably you have seen Mr. Lawless when you get things for your pet from Quintal's pet shop, for he assists there during the summer vacation.

BIRTHDAY PARADE

Here come our Birthday Marchers, boys and girls, so heads up—

LaVona Michelle Beeley

Just one year ago, LaVona Michelle Beeley was a New Year present to her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Beeley of 839 S. Main. It is a pleasure to welcome such a happy new marcher.

Jeffrey Jay Trumbo

Next comes a happy, wide-eyed marcher, Jeffrey Jay Trumbo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Trumbo of 608 S. West St. Jeffrey had two candles to blow out on his Birthday cake just two days after Christmas, Dec. 27, which made that a very exciting week.

Stuart Aaron Gibbs

And coming along in his smart Christmas shirt is Stuart Aaron Gibbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gibbs of 109 Havendale. Stuart has only a few days to wait to blow out those three candles on his cake January 6.

Rosemarie Ritchie

Your Birthday

To march in the Birthday Parade, just send your name, address, age and birthdate to the Jacksonville Junior Journal Courier two weeks before your birthday. Send a snapshot if you have one; the photo may be called for as soon as it has appeared in the paper.

If you have a party, tell us about that later.

Under military time, used by the armed services, the day begins at midnight and hours are numbered consecutively through 24. Thus 1630 is 4:30 p.m.

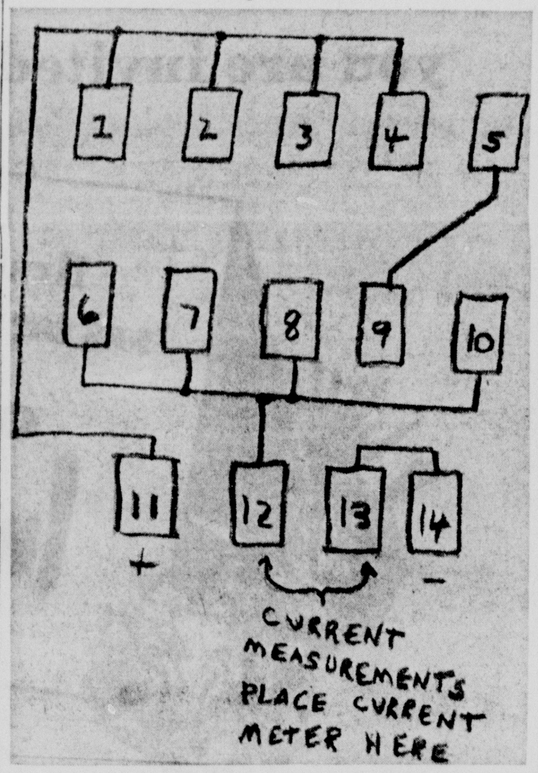
C Q Radio Hams — Radio For Boys

By Joseph A. Smith

Building Test Board



The most used formula in radio is OHM'S LAW. To illustrate it let's build up a simple testing board from the following readily available parts from almost any JUNK BOX.

Fourteen fahrenstock clips, one-90 volt battery, one-500 ohm resistor, one-100,000 ohm resistor, and two-.05 ufd capacitors.

We will also need a multi-meter (volt-ohm-milliammeter), some push-back type hook-up wire, and a 12 inch square board. Mount the fahrenstock clips as shown in the above diagram.

Here are some simple experiments:

(1). To measure a resistor we measure across it. Place either resistor between clips No. 1 and 6, then its resistance can be measured either across clips No. 1 and 6 or No. 11 and 12.

(2). We know that resistors in series add; to prove this, place the 100K (means thousand) resistor between clips No. 4 and 9, and the 500 ohm resistor between clips No. 5 and 10. Measure the total resistance across clips No. 11 and 12 or clips No. 4 and 10. (100,500 ohms.)

(3). Two resistors in parallel are less than the value of any one of them. So place the 500 ohm resistor between clips No. 2 and 7, and place the 100 K resistor across clips No. 3 and 8. Now measure their total resistance again across terminals No. 12 and 11. (About 497 ohms.) Resistances in series add, but in parallel arel ess than thes mallest one.

Capacitors work just opposite; that is, in series capacitors are less than either one, and in parallel they add. To prove this (providing you have a capacitor checker) connect the single, the series, and the parallel combination of capacitors in the same manner as were the resistors, and measure at the same clips.

We should know and understand two pairs of formulas for figuring resistor and condensor combinations. They are;

(1). Two unequal resistors in parallel are figured. Rt equals R1 times R2 over R1 plus R2. Let's assume that we have a 10 ohm resistor in parallel with a 50 ohm resistor. Substituting these resistance values into our formula we see that the resistance of the combination is 8 and one third ohms.

(2) Three or more unequal resistors in parallel are figured this way: Rt equals 1 over 1 orev R1 plus 1 over R2 plus 1 over R3

Let's assume that a 10 ohm, a 5 and a 20 ohm resistor are all three in parallel.

Substituting into our formula is done in this manner: 1 over one-tenth plus 1 over 5 plus 7 over20 equals 1 over 2 over 20 plus 4 over 20 plus 1 over 20 equals one over 7 over 20 equals 20 over 7 equals 2 six-seventh ohms.

For two capacitors in series we need only remember to figure them as we do two parallel resistors; three condensers in series, on the other hand, are figured as are three resistors in parallel.

If these simple (?) formulas stump you, you may have to consult the Handbook or the nearest more experienced Amateur.

NewYearCelebration Of Long-Ago Days

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part 2: Shots And Bells

Finally the happy group, of the long-ago New Year, would settle down, and then the singing of old ballads, and the telling of tall tales by the older folk would begin.

On account of sleepy youngsters, folk didn't stay until the clock chimed out the hour of twelve. Often the ground was white with snow, and it was no fun carrying such limp, wabbly little tots.

Besides, in those days few families bothered with a team, if it were near enough to walk to a neighbor's. Dad hoisted little Tim or Jane across his big shoulder, and away they trudged through the white snow, over the hills toward home.

Shots Ring Out

But, after the children were all tucked snugly in bed, all over the countryside, just as the clock struck twelve, shots rang out upon the still air, echoing and re-echoing as the neighboring men shot the Old Year Out . . . and the New Year in. Mixed in with the crack, crack of the guns from hill to hill, the sound of the old rural school bell, and the softer chime of the little country church joined their happy ding-dong to announce the "death" of the Old Year . . . and the "birth" of the New.

Old Beliefs

There were also various superstitions in early days, and the younger men sometimes kept vigil beneath the bright moon, to see if the cattle knelt at midnight. It was a common belief that the oxen kneeled down in their stalls just as Father Time placed a wreath upon the bier of the Old Year, as angels bore it away . . . into the great outer space from whence it came.

On New Year morning, the children were again the center of attraction as the family gathered around the well-filled board. After "Thanks" was said, every member of the beaming, happy group made a New Year resolution.

Interesting Story Of Holiday Mistletoe

By N. Richard

Part 2: A Parasite?

Usually we think of mistletoe as a parasite on trees, but it is more correct to call it a partial parasite because it contains chlorophyll (the green of plants) and does make some of its own food.

It depends on the host tree, on which it lives, for water and minerals for the most part.

Of the two hundred species which grow in the Western Hemisphere there are some which have very tiny leaves. The smaller the leaves the more completely parasitic the plant.

The species that we use for Christmas decoration is Phoradendron (tree thief") flavescens. It grows throughout the south and near-southern states.

Kills Many Trees

Most of the mistletoe which is shipped into the northern states comes from Oklahoma and New Mexico, but some comes from Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee. In these states it is also a problem. It is responsible for killing many trees year after year.

From fall until spring mistletoe can easily be seen growing in bunches which radiate from the upper branches of the trees. It is spread from tree to tree by birds in their excrement and because the berries contain a sticky substance which adheres to the beaks of the birds.

When the birds try to remove this they rub it onto new branches or bark where it will grow.

Mistletoe plants sometimes grow to be quite old. We have records of plants which are 350 years old. Indeed, it seems that it is the death of the host which limits the life span of the mistletoe.

Let's Go Birding

Nature's Christmas Tree

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Although Christmas has passed and Christmas trees have been stripped of their ornaments and glitter, perhaps some of you are still thinking of that gay Christmas party or talking about those original Christmas tree decorations.

We also would like to share you an unusual winter sight which we enjoyed on the morning of December 19, maybe at the very time you were decorating your tree.

We would like for you to think this unusual sight as nature's Christmas tree. Already you are imagining a Hemlock with its graceful drooping branches filled with the tiny bell-like cones, or pine trees with large scaly cones clustered among the bundles of green needles. You may also be seeing the spreading sycamores, great white ladies of the timbers, with fringes of brown balls dangling from their green and gray patched mantles.

We are quite sure that some of you are seeing evergreens coated with real snow crystals glittering in sunlight or even in full-moon light. Maybe icicle candles, lighted by the sun's warm rays, are burning and dripping on ice-bound bare trees.

This Will Surprise You

However, our nature's Christmas tree was just a plain bare Oak tree. It stood in a great thick mat of dead grass, weeds, and dry leaves, on the bank of Lake Jacksonville. Near it spread out a large patch of sumac crowned with many velvety red pyramids of seeds.

From the top of the Oak tree came a familiar bird call, yes the throaty chirp of the Robin. There perched the Robin, its gray back merging with the cool gray branch of the tree and the gloomy gray sky above, and its rusty red breast glowing in the grayness.

On a lower branch to its right hunched two Bluebirds, with rusty read breasts glowing equally in the grayness. On an even lower branch to the left hunched two more Bluebirds, their rusty red breasts also glowing equally in the grayness.

But all was not gray and rusty red; the brightness of the blue heads, backs, and tails of the four Bluebirds recalled the blue sky behind the gray. There stood nature's Christmas tree bedecked in the rusty red of earth and the blue of the sky.

Then nature removed her Christmas tree too: first, the Robin flew down to the velvety red pyramids of sumac seeds; then one Bluebird flew across the lake; soon the three others followed, and the Oak tree stood alone, gray and empty like your discarded Christmas tree.

Sherrie Athey Bride In Griggsville Rites

GRIGGSVILLE— Miss Sherrie Ann Athey, daughter of the William Atheys, and Thomas William Purpus of Quincy, were married Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Dec. 20, at the local Methodist church. Rev. Allen Marrett performed the double ring service.

Mr. Purpus is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Purpus of Quincy.

The bride chose for her maid of honor Miss Sandra Burgner. Bridesmaids were Miss Judy Wagner, Miss Carolyn Lightle, Miss Janet Irick and Miss Sue Wade. The bride's sister, Mary Alicia, was junior maid.

Richard Dickinson was best man and groomsmen and ushers were Carl Scheider, Mack Rogers, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Charles Winking, Franklin Durr and Keith Athey, brother of the bride.

Wears Satin Gown

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white bridal satin with Alencon lace. Made on princess lines the full skirt swept into a Chapel train. A bustle of self satin roses gave detail to the back of the skirt with lace extending down and encircling the wide skirt worn over hoops and ruffled pettiskirts.

The neckline of the wedding gown was portrait and finished in lace studded with seed pearls. A headdress of satin fashioned cabbage roses with seedpearls held secure the bride's veil of illusion. She carried white carnations centered with purple orchids atop a white Bible. Her only jewel accessories were white Pearl earrings.

The attendants wore lavendar velveteen frocks with conventional length skirts. The dresses were made with scoop necklines and three-quarter length sleeves. Each wore a matching velveteen headdress with circular veil and pearl earrings, a gift from the bride.

Mrs. Clay Kircher sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because," accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Alice P. Harchsman.

Seven branched candelabra, baskets of white glads and palms graced the altar of the church. Candelabra and white satin bows marked family pews.

The bride graduated in 1959 from Griggsville High School and has been employed at Bill's IGA market here. The groom, a 1953 graduate of Senior High School at Quincy, is a four year Navy veteran, later attending Quincy College. He was drill instructor for the Debutantes Drum and Bugle Corps and is employed as receiving clerk for Gates Radio Company at Quincy.

Dorothy Harrison Entertains At Her Home Dec. 20

Miss Marilyn Bell and Miss Dorothy Fridlund were also guests.

Return From Wedding

Mrs. Dorothy Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Harrison, Brenda and Tommy, Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Harrison, Miss Phyllis Harrison, James R. Harrison and Miss Marilyn Bell returned Monday from Williams Bay, Wis., where they attended the wedding of Lawrence E. Harrison and Miss Dorothy Fridlund, at the Congregational church in that city, Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

Virginia Notes

Family Christmas dinners were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sinclair.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Mefford had as their Christmas dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Mefford and Charles, Miss Margaret Mefford and Harley Mefford.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Branham spent Christmas with relatives in Murphysboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Romus Trotter and Janet of Peoria, were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Wilson and daughters of Wood River and Mr. and Mrs. George Wilhite and daughters of Hammond, Ill., were Christmas guests of Mrs. Jesse Wilhite.

Miss Blanche Taylor of New Haven, Conn., is a holiday guest of her sister, Mrs. Otto Dour. Together they entertained the following at Christmas dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Dean Dour and family of Mt. Vernon; Frank Fox, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Devlin, Henry Fox, Mrs. Betty Hays and family, Miss Velda Kendall and Misses Ruth and Lillie Gustafson, all of Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mills of Tuscon, Ariz., and Miss Jane Donahue and Miss Rosaleen Devlin of St. Louis were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Devlin.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Finch were guests of Mrs. Hugh Blair of Chandlerville on Christmas Day.

Clark-Kelly Nuptials Dec. 27th At Pittsfield

PITTSFIELD—At mid-afternoon Sunday, December twenty-seventh, Miss Brenda Joy Kelly of Pittsfield and Billy John Clark, Summer Hill, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony at First Methodist church. The Reverend Ernest Duling officiated before a candlelighted altar decorated with red poinsettia and palms with tapers burning in candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Kelly and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Clark.

Before the wedding party entered the church Mrs. Byron Roodhouse played appropriate selections at the organ and accompanied Kay Willard who sang, "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Wears Tulle on Taffeta

The lovely bride wore a floor length gown of white tulle over taffeta. The figure flattering bodice was designed with long sleeves coming to points over the hands and a wide winging V neckline set with French lace studded with sequins and seed pearls.

The attendants were dressed in identically fashioned frocks of peau de soie, conventional length, with V shaped back necklines and full skirts. Their slippers matched their respective costumes and each carried a white fur muff with poinsettia corsage attached. Their headdresses were white fur crowns.

A parchment beige brocade costume was chosen by the mother of the bride worn with green and white accessories. Her flowers were red carnations. The groom's mother wore olive green wool with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Reception at Orr Hall

A reception was held at Orr hall immediately after the ceremony. Huckleberry and holly encircled the base of the tiered white frosted wedding cake topped with bells. Red netting overlayed the white covered serving table appointed in holiday colors.

Miss Susan King served cake, Miss Suzanne Boyd, punch and Miss Carole Atwood was at the coffee urn. Miss Carole Criss registered guests and Miss Kathy Walsh was in charge of gifts.

ON MISSIONARIES

NEW YORK (AP) — The general secretary of the East Asia Christian Conference has suggested that the Western world "catch up" with the younger churches of Asia and Africa by receiving as well as sending missionaries.

The missionary movement, says the Rev. D. T. Niles of Ceylon, "is a matter of giving and receiving. Now is the time for us to have the blessing of sending and you of receiving missionaries.

"The younger churches have the advantage over you of the older churches because we have always had missionaries in our midst, men of other lands and cultures, as witness and symbol that the Christian faith is alien to any land.

Barbara Biggs, St. Louis Man Wed In Holiday Ceremony At Pittsfield

PITTSFIELD — The Swofford-Biggs holiday wedding Sunday evening, December twenty-seventh, was the highlight of the Christmas social season in Pittsfield.

Miss Barbara Ann Biggs, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Dean Artman of Pittsfield and Kenneth Charles Swofford of St. Louis, Missouri were united in marriage at seven-thirty o'clock at the First Christian church. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Swofford, St. Louis.

Mrs. Louis Stone presided at the church organ during the prelude of nuptial selections and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Phil Casteel for the selections, "Through the Years," and "The Wedding Prayer," and as the couple knelt at the altar after exchange of vows, "The Lord's Prayer."

Large baskets of white mums and potted red poinsettias graced the church altar handsome with a large white flocked tree and palms. Tapers burned in candelabra, in Chapel windows and from tall standards flanking the center aisle, where family pews were marked with bouquets of white mums.

Miss Beverly Sim of Hastings, Michigan was her cousin's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Pittsfield school friends of the bride, Miss Peggy Aldrich, Miss Jay Venable and Miss Becky Watson.

Bruce Galbrath, DuQuoin, Illinois, was best man. Groomsmen and ushers were Ronald Sim, Hastings, Michigan, cousin of the bride; Larry Vitale, Dow and Robert McMillan, DuQuoin.

Holiday Colors

Attendants wore floor length formal gowns of fur trimmed velvet. The long sleeved dresses were trimmed with white fur at the neck and each carried a white fur muff. The honor maid wore Holly red and the bridesmaids were in Christmas green. Their headdresses were large flat pressed velvet bows matching their respective costumes with poinsettia trim.

White Peau de Soie Gown

The bride, escorted to the altar by her stepfather, Dr. Artman, wore an elegant gown of white peau de soie with very bouffant skirt worn over multiple crinolines. The long slim sleeves of the gown were set in a snug bodice made with scoop neckline in re-embroidered Alencon lace embellished with sequins. Jeweled motifs on lace adorned the skirt of the wedding gown and the full carriage back was accented with large cabbage roses the fullness extending entrain.

Mother From Jacksonville

Mrs. Artman, the former Cozy Green of Jacksonville, wore for Barbie's wedding, champagne tinted chiffon with matching satin jacket. Her accessories were in a corresponding shade.

Mrs. Swofford, mother of the bridegroom, wore a cocoa brown costume suit with matching accessories. Both mothers wore brown tone cymbidium orchids.

Reception at Country Club

An elaborate reception took place at the Old Orchard Country Club after the ceremony, with dancing following receiving of guests. Miss Roseann Collins was in charge of registration. Presiding at punch bowls were Mrs. Wright Sim and Mrs. Jerry Techlow.

The couple will return to Pittsfield before leaving for Carbondale, Illinois, where both attend Southern Illinois University. The former Miss Biggs graduated from Pittsfield High School, had one year at Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida where she affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta. She is in her second year at Southern.

Mr. Swofford graduated from Southern University and attends graduate school. He is a member of Theta Chi and expected to receive his master's degree this spring.

Pre-Nuptial Parties

A gala evening filled Saturday night before the ceremony extending into the wee hours. At 5:30 members of the families and those in the wedding party were entertained at cocktails at the Edmond Venable home.

A rehearsal dinner at 6:30 at the Community Center was hosted by Dr. and Mrs. Artman. The holiday motif predominated with a huge lighted tree setting the scene for a U shaped table adorned with lighted fir roping and wreaths.

Handsome centerpieces of red carnations, Christmas greens and ornaments decorated the table for 32 guests. Place cards were in red leather and match-book covers were imprinted with the couple's names.

After 8 o'clock rehearsal at the church after dinner toasts were served at the Dr. Meyer Shulman home after which the group attended the Christmas dance at the Country Club in Pittsfield climaxed with breakfast at the C. W. Alrich home.

PLAY'S RESURRECTION

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1900, the production of "Sappho" was attended by charges of immorality and drama critics were called to court to testify as to its morality or immorality. When the court permitted the show to go on, it was a great sensation.

"Sappho," based on the novel by Alphonse Daudet, is being resurrected for off-Broadway by Ernest Silverman and Rex Williams, who say they will utilize a modern viewpoint in the dramatization, ignoring the original treatment by Clyde Fitch.

PROFILE OF THEATERGOER

NEW YORK (AP) — Trying to get some profile of the Broadway theatergoer—particularly the person who pays $6.90 for an orchestra seat—required a year-long survey.

The findings, just reported, describe this person as being generally college-educated, married, in his 40s, a member of a profession and having an income of $16,000 or more per year.

The market profile was undertaken for "Playbill," a weekly magazine and program for the theatergoer, and was conducted by Professor John W. Enders of Manhattan College.

John Hatcher Capps, Dallas Bride Feted

John Hatcher Capps, son of the William Thomas Capps, Jrs., and his bride, the former Bonnie Jean McBride of Dallas, spent the holiday week with his parents, 1429 Mound avenue, following their December twenty-fourth wedding in Dallas, Tex.

A cocktail party Wednesday evening honored the newlyweds. They left Saturday for Dallas where they will be at home at 5006 Gaston avenue. Mr. Capps is associated with the Republic Bank in that city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McBride of Dallas.

John and Bonnie were married in Cox Chapel of Highland Park Methodist church before a gathering of family members. Her sister, Mrs. William B. Otstatt, and his brother, William T. Capps, the Third, both of Dallas, attended the couple. Ushers will Dan B. Majors and Mr. Otstatt.

Her waist-length veil of tiered illusion was attached to a lace contour hat which had been worn by her sister at her wedding. The bride carried gardenias and carnations attached to an ivory fan.

The bride is a junior at Southern Methodist University where she is social chairman of Zeta Tau Alpha, a COGS representative and Manada chairman. Mr. Capps, who attended Knox College at Galesburg, graduated from SMU where he was an Alpha Tau Omega.

DINNER PARTY HELD WEDNESDAY AT FRANKLIN

Mrs. S. J. Camm and Miss Margaret Camm were hostesses at a dinner party Wednesday noon, catered by Mrs. Harry Whitlock at her home in Franklin. Miss Gladys Ruyle of Detroit, Mich., was the guest of honor.

Other guests were Fannie Ruyle, Misses Mabel and Edith Ruyle, Miss Jeannette Scott and Mae Van Winkle of Jacksonville; Alma Crain, Mrs. Carlos Roberts, and Mrs. Eernard Camm and daughter Barbara of Franklin.

After the dinner a social period was enjoyed.

WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS PARTY FOR PATIENTS

The Jacksonville Woman's Club, with the help of the Volunteer Service Program gave a party for 30 patients in the men's diagnostic ward at the Jacksonville State Hospital on Monday afternoon, Dec. 28.

A favorite game, bingo, was played for an hour, with prizes furnished by the Woman's Club. The patients enjoyed refreshments of cookies and coffee served by the women.

Present for the party were Mrs. Ralph Jones, Mrs. James Marsh and Mrs. L. K. Wallace. Mrs. H. E. Seestrom was unable to be present, but assisted the Women's Club in providing cookies for the occasion

RADIO IN AFRICA

NEW YORK (AP)—The Lutheran World Federation has been granted a franchise to erect a 50,000-watt radio transmitter in Ethiopia within reach of most of the radios on the African continent and the Middle East.

The station, probably at Addis Ababa or Asmara, will be the second Protestant station in Africa with a full-time Christian program aimed at the continent. The other is ELWA in Monrovia, Liberia, operating since 1954.

No date has been set to begin the project but the National Lutheran Council has allocated $225,000 toward capital needs. It is expected the annual operating budget will be $70,000, contributed by member churches and national committees.

The year 1963 will be the Chinese "Year of the Rabbit."

Tom Skiles, Bride On Belated Honeymoon

Hosts for the party of eleven were the senior Doddridges of Bucks County, Pennsylvania who winter at the resort. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Frances P. Skiles of Virginia, Illinois and Fort Lauderdale, was among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Skiles, who were wed in Jacksonville in October, reside at Elko Apartments, Hardin avenue.

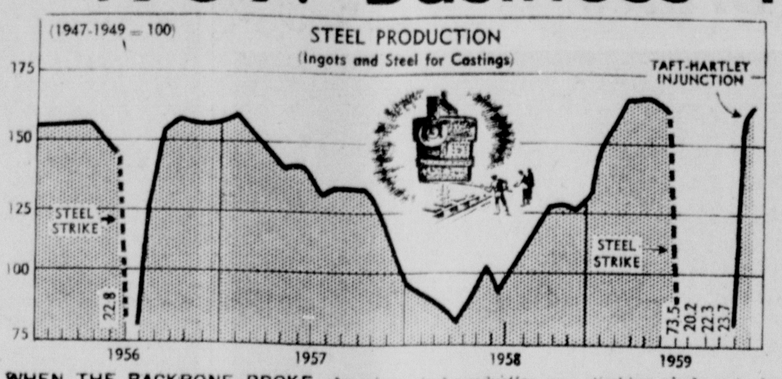
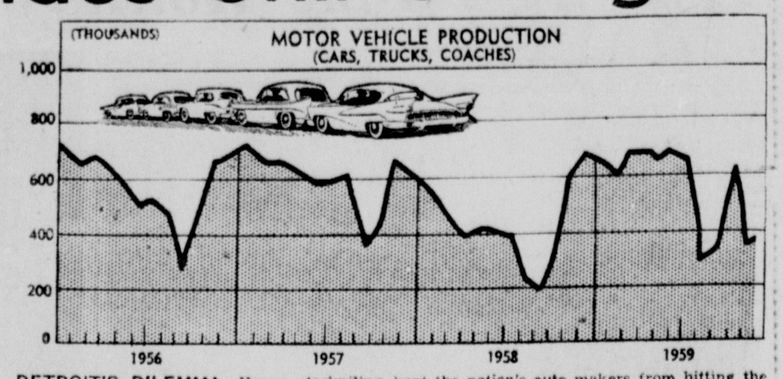
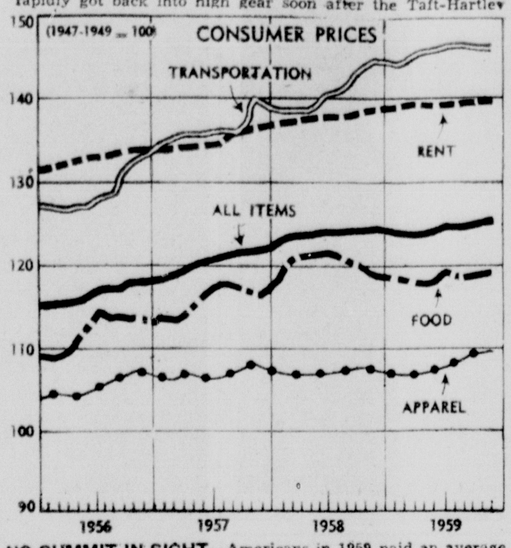
1959: Business Tides Still Strong



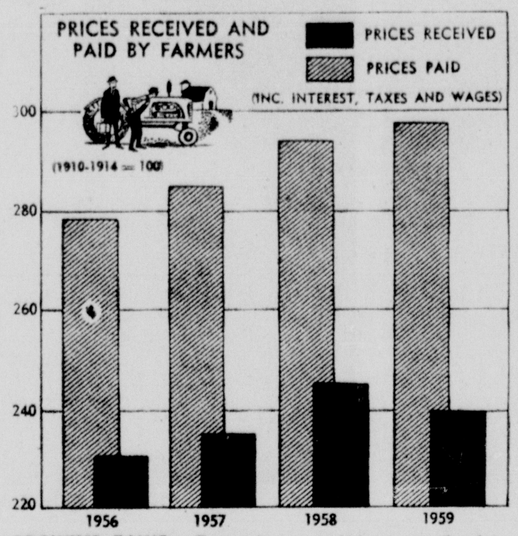
WHEN THE BACKBONE BROKE—American steel production was climbing nicely out of the recession doldrums in 1959 when the steel strike broke in the major companies. Half a million workers were idled and nearly all production was stopped for over 100 days. Mills rapidly got back into high gear soon after the Taft-Hartley 80-day injunction was invoked.



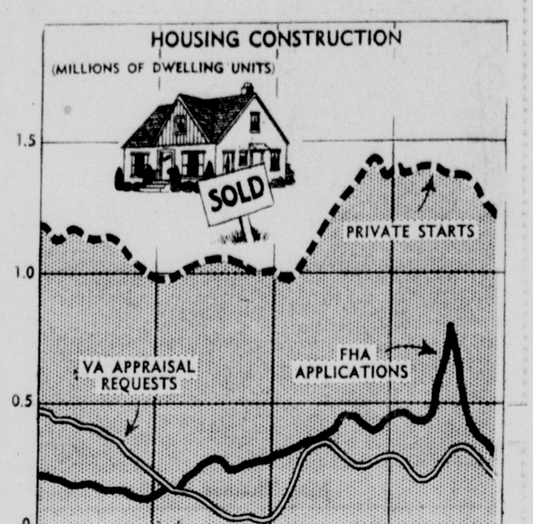
DETROIT'S DILEMMA—Heavy stockpiling kept the nation's auto makers from hitting the skids for a few months after the steel strike began. First big dip in 1959 in chart above reflects a slowdown due mainly to model turnovers. Second dip, caused by the steel shortage, hit soon after, resulting in extensive layoffs. Resumption of steel set things humming again.

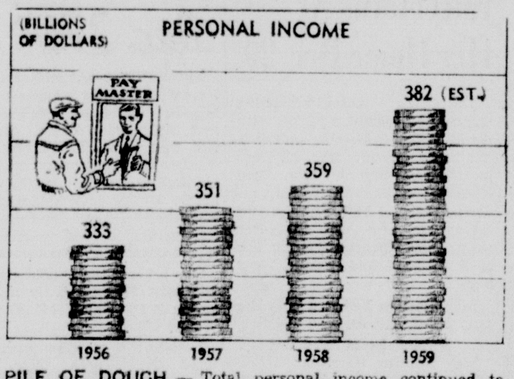


NO SUMMIT IN SIGHT—Americans in 1959 paid an average of 25 per cent more for everything they bought than 10 years before. The Labor Department cost of living index shows that all items finished the year at higher levels than they began.



GROWING PAINS—Economic ups and downs on the farm added up to bad news for farmers last year. After a good return in 1958, farmers' income dropped sharply. At the same time, prices they had to pay out continued their steady pull-away.





PILE OF DOUGH—Total personal income continued to mount in 1959, according to Commerce Department figures, topping the 380-billion-dollar mark. Americans as a whole in 1959 earned some 50 billion dollars more than they did in 1956.

Greene Woman Celebrates 85th Birthday Monday

ROODHOUSE—A birthday dinner was served Monday noon at the home of Mrs. Hattie Short celebrating her 85th anniversary. It was attended by the following relatives and friends Mrs. John Henderson, Ora Barnett, Gladys Chan, Miss Mabel Hopkins, Ray Short and Lottie Whitney.

During the celebration a telephone call was received from a granddaughter, Mrs. Charles Barnett, Jackson, S. C. The dinner also honored Mrs. Chan, who will observe her 76th birthday on New Year's Day.

Mrs. Short was the recipient of a number of gifts and cards.

Former Resident Injured

Mrs. A. L. Lucas has received word of the hospitalization of a former Roodhouse resident and one-time teacher in the local schools, Miss Nelle Wieser, Bakersfield, Calif., who suffered a broken hip recently. Miss Wieser has been in failing health for some time and sustained the fracture in a fall at the home of her sister, Miss Lutie Wieser, with whom she resides. Another sister, Mrs. Ella Edwards, formerly of Roodhouse, also resides there.

Holiday guests in the home of Ada Casteel have been her daughters and families: Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Petrey and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. Dale Black and sons, White Hall, and Mr. and Mrs. Neal McCollom and family, Florissant, Mo. On Sunday, some of the group drove to St. Louis with Mrs. Petrey, who left for a visit with her cousin, Mrs. C. G. Whitney, Seattle, Wash. Mrs. Whitney expects to undergo surgery soon. Mrs. Whitney is the former Martha Ballard, who made her home with her aunt here at one time.

Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Janvrin and family are spending a part of the holiday season with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Janvrin, Hannibal, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Tipps have returned home from spending Christmas in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Emil Pech, and family, Delavan.

Visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Winter and Mrs. Albert Dean have been Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Day, Collinsville; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Barnes and daughter, Suzann, Bushnell; Mr. and Mrs. Barney Barnes, Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Tillery and family, Peoria.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Markwell spent Christmas in Troy with her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Wyatt, and family. Mr. and Mrs. Markwell will leave shortly for Kansas City, Kansas, and later for Fontana, Calif., to visit his daughter, Mrs. Charles D. Harte, and husband.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jolley and daughter, Melissa, Woodland Hills, Calif., were visiting Roodhouse friends here Monday. He is a former resident.

Christmas guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Thompson were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Thompson and daughter, Champaign; Mrs. Lula Gaither; Mrs. Dora Curtis, Jacksonville; Mr. and Mrs. George Steelman and his sister, Miss Tillie Steelman, White Hall, and George Patterson, Roodhouse. Calling by telephone to visit with the group at noon was a son, Claude Thompson, Port Orchard, Wash.

TRADITIONAL OVERTONES

We are often asked: "Can a room be Modern in feeling without being stark and austere?" It certainly can. We believe that it is unnecessary and also completely impractical to become so absorbed in the new that you turn your back on the old.

Just as each period of history merges into the next, so is the best of preceding furniture styles incorporated into the style which follows. Today's good Modern designers have taken the best of the furniture designs of the past and combined them with their own newer concepts of style, function and comfort, and given us a Contemporary styling that fits in with our present plan for living.

While the dining room sketched above is decidedly Modern in feeling, there are definite overtones of the Traditional in its character. Oyster white walls and azure blue sculptured carpet contrast dramatically and are a perfect complement for the mahogany table and chairs, and for the dark-and-light mahogany combination chest and cabinet. Draperies are oyster white threaded with gold metallic. The floor planter extends entirely across the window wall and adds to the Modern feeling of the room. Chair seats are oyster white with dull gold stripes.

You live with your furniture and floor coverings a long time as a rule, so each piece of furniture and each rug, or carpet, should be chosen with the utmost care. Do come in and take plenty of time to make your selections. We'll assist you when you are ready.

Annual Program Held Dec. 24 At Glasgow Church

GLASGOW — The annual Christmas program was conducted at the Glasgow Baptist church on Christmas Eve, starting at 7:30 o'clock, with a goodly number of local residents and visitors attending. Following the program, the many presents from under the lighted Christmas tree were distributed by a group of boys.

The program, as presented: Opening hymn, "Hark, The Herald Angels Sing"; vocal trio, "Star of the East," Ola Drake, Pauline Hester, Veta Oswald, with Mrs. Oma Edwards as pianist; prayer by Rev. Charles Everly; hymn, "While Shepherds Watched," congregation.

Pageant, "Away In The Manger," kindergarten class; hymn, "The First Noel;" pageant, "Little Town of Bethlehem," primary class; song, "Joy To the World," by Mrs. Clarence Everly, Pauline Hester, Ola Drake, Veta Oswald and Hettie Cowper.

Song by men's trio, "We Three Kings," by Rev. Charles Everly, Abner Day, Dean Hester; hymn, "Silent Night," by young people's group; hymn, "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear," congregation; pageant, "Come All Ye Faithful," junior class; vocal solo, "Come To The Stable," Rev. Charles Everly; a brief Christmas message was delivered by Rev. Everly; closing hymn, "You May Have the Joybells Ringing in Your Heart," congregation; benediction by Rev. Charles Everly.

Farewell Dinner

A basket dinner was held in the local Christian church basement Sunday following the regular Sunday morning services for Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shafer and family, who are moving soon to Laredo, Mo.

In the afternoon, Dr. Wilma Sherwin showed pictures of points of interest taken during her trip last summer through countries of Europe. Dr. Sherwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Sherwin, is now a member of the faculty of Anderson College at Anderson, Ind.

Both the dinner and the afternoon meeting were well attended.

Pittsfield's Mayor Boosts 'Findley For Congress' Club

PITTSFIELD, Ill.—The candidacy of Paul Findley for Congress got a big boost Thursday noon at Cardinal Inn with the formation of a Findley-for-Congress committee headed by Pittsfield's mayor, F. E. Penstone, Sr.

Penstone is widely known as an orchardist and strawberry grower and is former president of the Illinois Horticultural Association.

Addressing a citizens group that met with him for lunch, Penstone urged full support for Findley in the primary election, and said this is an opportunity for Pike county to nominate and elect a "man of high caliber" to Congress.

He noted Findley's record as a civic leader and publisher, and said Pittsfield is proud to have him seek this high office. Findley is former president of Pittsfield Industrial Development Association, helped to organize Pittsfield Community Center, and has a leading role in boosting many civic projects.

Attending the luncheon were Mrs. Russell Orrill, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Penstone, Sr., Earl G. Zimmerman, Bill H. Lemons, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Kopps, Mr. and Mrs. Findley, all of Pittsfield; Mrs. Lena Foote of Nebo; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Newman, Richard Bergman, Sr., and Lou Brown, Jr., of Griggsville; Strother Grigsby and Charles Dustin of Rockport, Mrs. Harold Hollembeak of Baylis; and Ray McRae, editor of the Camp Point Journal.

Mrs. Lena Foote announced that a Findley-for-Congress potluck will be held at Pittsfield Legion hall Friday, Jan. 15, at 6 p.m. The dinner will be county-wide and everybody is welcome.

ASHLAND

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edwards, Jr., and family of Canton were Sunday guests at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edwards, Sr.

Mrs. Neta Turner returned to her home Sunday afternoon from a several days visit in Hammond, Ind., at the home of her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Tucker.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Evans entertained the following at dinner Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Fields and family, Jack Lynn, Darlene Douglass, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Evans, Mrs. Hannah Fields.

Tom Reiser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Reiser, Havana, was selected by the senior class and faculty members of the Havana Community high school to receive the annual DAR and SAR awards and medals for 1959-60. The Leo Reiser family were former Ashland residents.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, daughter, Betty, and son, Wayne, have returned to their home in Detroit, Mich., after visiting here at the home of the former's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Nordsiek, and also attending the wedding of Miss Joan Nordsiek and L. E. Stribling, II, a week ago.

Edward Heather left Sunday to return to San Diego, Calif., after being called here by the death of his sister, Patricia, who was killed on her way home from the local high school two weeks ago last Saturday, being hit by a car.

The Church of Christ gave five baskets for Christmas, which included donated food and $20.79 purchased. This has been a wonderful Christian expression this year of unselfish giving; including the baskets, the carolling, gifts to children's homes from our youth, beautiful church decorations, and the gift to the minister's family.

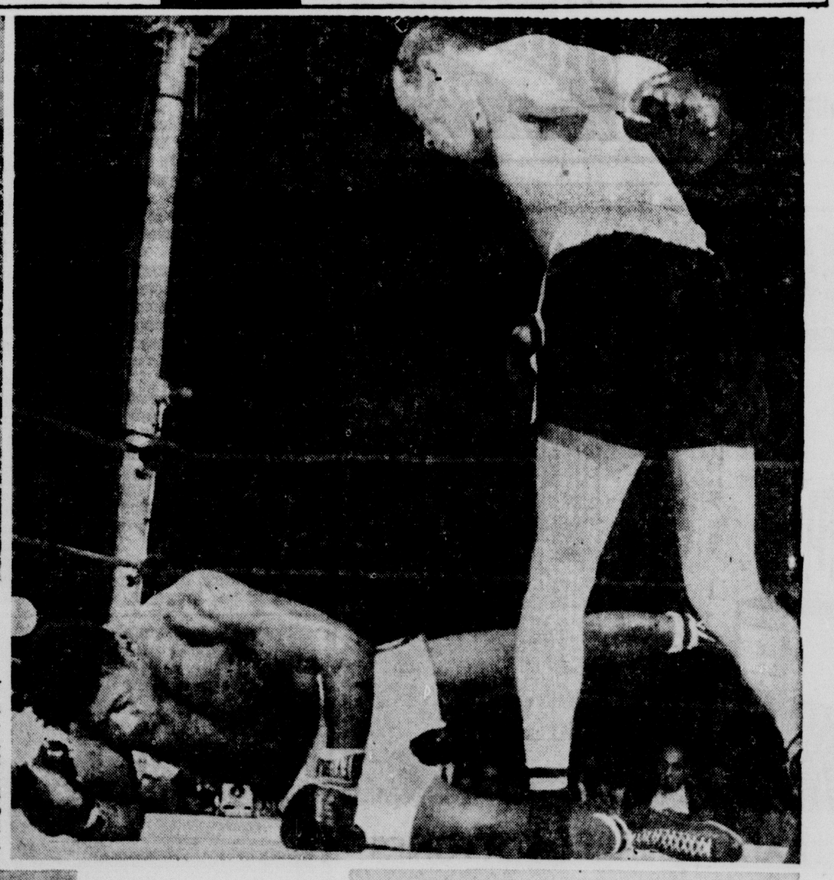
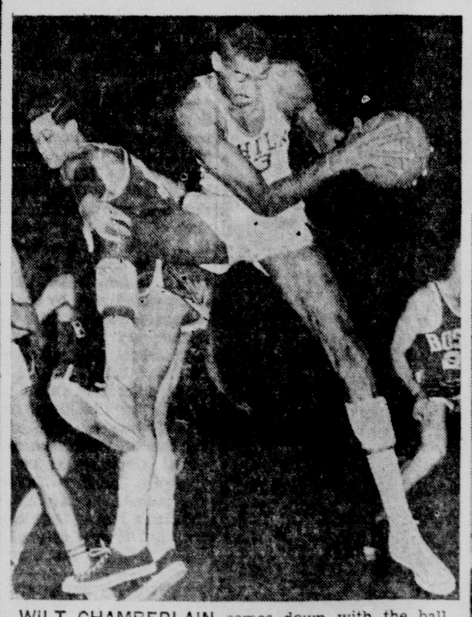
A CUP OF BEER is the only thing Chicago White Sox outfielder Al Smith catches in the fifth inning of the second World Series game. Exuberant fan trying to catch a home-run ball knocked the beer over. The slick-fielding, hard-running Sox lost these talents in the Series which they dropped to the Los Angeles Dodgers, four games to two.

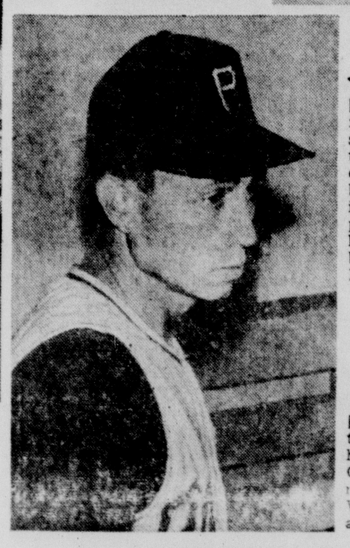
A RECORD THAT MAY NEVER BE EQUALED was set in the fifth game of the World Series as 92,706 rooters jammed the Los Angeles Coliseum. The previous record series attendance mark was broken three days in a row in Los Angeles with a total of 277,750. Otherwise, the football stadium had little to offer baseball players or fans.



FOR THE SEVENTH and last time heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson is beaten to the Yankee Stadium ring floor by Ingemar Johansson. The Swedish fighter ripped through Patterson's peek-a-boo defense with a third-round right to start Floyd's downfall.



WILT CHAMBERLAIN comes down with the ball as Boston Celtic Gene Conley gets only a handful of Wilt's knee in Philadelphia. The 7-foot, 2-inch Chamberlain came to the Philadelphia Warriors as the highest paid, most-publicized player in the game. Figured as a sure rookie-of-the-year, Chamberlain has made the doormat Warriors favorites for the NBA title.



PITCHING the greatest game in the history of baseball and still losing is a heartbreaking thing and it shows on the face of Harvey Haddix as the Pittsburgh Pirate enters the dugout in Milwaukee. Haddix pitched perfect ball for 12 innings—no hits, no runs—before being beaten 2-0 in the 13th. Said Haddix: "I guess I was tired."

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

Ever since some caveman decided round wheels roll better than square ones people have worried about automation. Look for more arguments in 1960. It may be some time before we can get machines to do all our thinking for us . . . but inventors are as hot on the trail as a bloodhound with a mouthful of back pocket. The geniuses who make business machines have developed a typewriter that clacks out 135 words a minute without being touched by human fingers. (Maybe it's done with ghost writers). Another gadget makes carbon copies without using carbon paper. If this keeps up the office help will be able to sit around discussing the boss' failings without being interrupted by anything tougher than the coffee break.

Scientists claim the human body contains enough phosphorous to make 2,200 matches. That's enough for a man to make a fuel of himself.

Whether you need a second car for the family, or a newer used car for business use, you'll find "dependability" the watchword when you choose one of our cars. Our 38 years in the car business is your assurance that the car you buy from us will give you reliable service for years to come. E. W. Brown, 406 South Main. Phone 5-4333.

The blond man reappeared almost immediately after the dark one had gone. Coming swiftly up the ramp, he crossed to Davey and brought his hand down on his jacket pocket with a brisk slap. "I got it!" he breathed excitedly. "I had to break the box open, but it was right where you said!"

Leaning down, he untied the cord around Davey's ankles. Davey got shakily to his feet and turned holding out his wrists. When he was completely free he turned back again.

The blond man, speaking quietly, rapidly, knelt down before him. "Now you stay here," he said, "stay right where you are. I got to wait for the right moment to pull the rod. Understand?"

Davey nodded excitedly.

"Okay. So you stay here, see, and pretend to still be tied up in case he comes back for another load or two. Keep the pad up around you so he can't see." Davey nodded again. "And here's what I want you to do. I'll wait for the right time and I'll get him covered with the rod. And then I'll give a yell. We're going to need some help then, see. So that's where you come in. When I yell, you get out of this van and beat it out of here. Where's the nearest house? Do you know?"

"Down on the road," Davey said. "Across from where you turn in." He pointed down the drive.

"Good. You get down there just as fast as you can go. Get ahold of somebody — anybody who's there—and till them to call the police. And tell them afterwards to get back up here fast. And bring a gun. Okay?"

Davey returned to his position against the wall and drew the pad up tightly around him. Peering intently out into the gusty, cloud-swept night, he huddled back into the shadows and waited.

• • •

An interval passed, and his fear increased that the signal had already been given and he hadn't heard. Such a lot of time seemed to have slipped past. Stepping out onto the ramp, he begun to edge cautiously downward, keeping himself in a sideways position so that, if he needed to, he would be able to reverse his course at a moment's notice.

When he reached the ground, he looked toward the house, at the broad slants of light that fell bleakly from the window and the doorway. Through the window he saw that the light came from a bare unshaded bulb fixed to an old-fashioned iron bridge lamp. The lamp stood in the archway leading from the living room to the hall that gave access to the study and back bedrooms. Pausing to listen, he was certain this time he heard voices.

"But you got to listen," the blond man said. "What I'm trying to do—I'm trying to do you a favor." His voice, strained and high-pitched, was not as sure as it had been out in the van.

"You been trying to do me the same big favor all day. You been trying to talk me into a death cell."

"Now wait a minute!" The blond man's voice rose with quick alarm. "Now, Bull—stay back. You been drinking—you're drunk. Stay back or I'll—!"

"Or you'll what?" There was an explosive burst of laughter. Then the sound broke off sharply into a stunned silence. When the dark man spoke again, his voice was heavy with astonished disbelief. "Where'd you get that!"

"Bull, I don't want to—I don't want to—but I'm—I'm turning you in." The rest of it came in a tremulous, almost tearful cry. "I've got to, Bull! That's just a little kid out there. I ain't taking no rap for a thing like that."

"Boy, I should have known—you chicken—!"

There was the sound of abrupt movement.

There was a wild animal yell, and then a crash. Davey flattened himself against the wall, against the damp ivy. Sounds of violent struggle echoed from above, labored breathing, small, half-spoken oaths. There was another, louder crash and a scream of pain. Then someone was running. Davey, leaving the wall, unmindful that he was emerging into the diffused light from the window, ran to the corner of the house.

• • •

At the same moment, the blond man darted out through the open doorway, gripping his right wrist, his face twisted with pain. Behind, in the house, there was the sound of furious scrabbling and then lunging foo steps. The blond man hurled himself forward across the drive, running for the cover of the truck. Almost immediately the dark man, carrying the gun, appeared in the doorway, paused for just the fraction of a second, then ran after him. As the blond man reached the corner of the truck, he yelled, his voice rising thinly to join the straining cry of the wind.

"Run, kid!" he screamed. "Run!"

Davey turned in wide-eyed confusion as both men vanished behind the truck. Then there was an explosion.

Then another and another. In a backwash of silence the wind moaned, lashing the hedges at the far side of the drive into a brief hissing frenzy. Davey looked out into the wind-torn night beyond the side of the house.

And then, sensing an increased danger, he turned back to see the dark man, his eyes heavy upon him, coming from the corner of the truck.

XXX

Choosing the only route of escape that presented itself to his dazed awareness, he darted past the lighted window, across to the open doorway and into the house. Grasping the door, a heavy oak panel, he pulled it forward from the wall and, throwing himself against it, slammed it to. Finding the inside catch, he reached up and turned it. As he whirled about, the room, the fireplace against the adjacent wall, the toppled boxes, all passed before him in a dim blur. Realizing that to run across the room and into the dining room beyond would mean exposure before the window, he flung himself forward toward the archway leading into the dark hall.

Running, he knocked against the bridge lamp and set it tottering, but he continued heedlessly on. And then, as the lamp fell behind him, there was a sharp, explosive report, and the scene vanished into darkness. Davey stopped, drawing up short.

Outside, the dark man's fists fell angrily against the locked door, the blows echoing into the hallway, dinning against Davey's ears. Looking behind, he stared into the dim, empty eye of the bare window at the front of the hallway, then turned quickly back to the darkness that lay ahead.

The doors, he remembered, led from the hallway to almost all the rooms of the house: the bedrooms, the bathrooms, even a closet or two. There was one at the back that opened into the kitchen. That one, he thought, was the last one on the left. And then from the direction of the living room, there came a terrible shattering of glass. Davey, glancing back in fear, moved closer to the wall. The dark man had broken in through the window!

Davey slipped through the doorway, found the knob, and, being very careful not to make any sound, pulled the door closed after him. Turning, he stopped to consider where he was, wondering if there were other doors in the room through which he might escape if he needed to. He put his hands out before him and crept slowly forward. He had taken only two furtive steps, however, when his hands came in contact with a wall. He pulled back, stifling a small cry of dismay. He had closed himself into a closet!

• • •

And then there was a crash as a door was flung open somewhere at the end of the hall. Footsteps came forward, hesitated, stopped.

"You better come on out!" the dark man roared. "You're just making it harder on yourself!" There was a pause. "You hear me?"

Unaware that he had moved, Davey started as his shoulder came in contact with the wall. Then, reaching out, he found the corner at the outer wall and huddled into it, making himself as small and still as possible.

The footsteps started forward again and came up to a position almost directly outside. Then there was a scraping sound against the panel as a hand moved across it in search of the knob. After a moment it found it, and the knob turned. The door swung open. The sound of labored breathing and the reek of liquor reached in to Davey and touched him with an almost physical impact.

Davey knew the advantage of his smallness and he was prepared to employ it to the utmost. Still, in his small, trembling soul there rested little hope.

Doom had found him and in a moment it would surely reach out and snatch him up.

The moment continued, breathless, taut. The dark man remained, his hand on the door, apparently lost in thought. Davey clung to his corner in the darkness, his body tensed for flight. And then, finally, there was the sound of the man's hand falling away from the knob.

"Doubled back on me," the dark man muttered to himself. He started away toward the front of the hall.

• • •

As the footsteps receded, Davey felt his body go limp with relief. He heard the man moving about in the living room. There was a pause. The lock turned on the front door, the door opened and, after a moment, closed again.

Even then Davey did not move. Perhaps the man had gone but he could return at any moment. A minute passed, two. The house remained still. Boosting himself forward, Davey edged over to the door and peered out. He started to shove the door fully open, then drew back as the wind dashed a spattering of rain against the window at the front of the hall. Waiting until he had recovered from this new fright, he started out again.

Finding the wall with his hand, he followed it back in the direction of the kitchen. After a few feet he found the door that led into the dining room. Moving in stealth, making not the faintest whisper of sound, he passed on, found the wall again and followed it toward the next door. The next, he was certain, would be the one leading into the kitchen.

When he came to it, he stopped. Feeling the frame, he reached across and found that the door was closed.

The world seemed to explode suddenly in his face. The door flew open and crashed thunderously against the wall. Davey looked up, his eyes and mouth torn wide with fright. Directly before him, silhouetted toweringly against the windows at the far side of the room, the dark man turned and lunged toward him.

Outdoor Column

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The first deer hunting in 57 years was one of the biggest outdoor events in Illinois during the 1950-59 decade.

Looking forward to the next 10 years, state wildlife authorities foresaw possible renewal of wild turkey hunting in the state. California pheasant and ruffed grouse were other possible targets. All three species are on hand now.

There were setbacks for hunters too. After three consecutive 70-day seasons for duck shooting, the 1959 affair was cut to 46 days and turned out poor.

Hunter safety did not seem to progress much.

Private land available to sportsmen was diminishing and the state held out inducements to farmers to sell hunting privileges.

Fees on public hunting grounds went up. Even state parks, where hunting is forbidden, had admission charges instituted to help bear the rising cost of maintaning public lands for outdoor enthusiasts.

State fish and game administrators said they could foresee no chance of such costs declining in the next 10 years.

In a way, however, Illinois fishing licenses were worth more. A mid-50s drought impelled farmers to construct hundreds of ponds and the state to plan nearly a score of large county lakes.

The biggest single boost to public water impoundments was given by approval of congress of the Carlyle dam.

To regulate water traffic expected to boom on lakes and streams, the state has ready its first comprehensive boating law for trial in the 60s.

NO COMMITTMENT

NEW YORK (AP) — Edwin Ahlquist, adviser of heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson, cabled the New York State Athletic Commission Thursday that no committment had been made to any group for a return match with Floyd Patterson.

Ahlquist's cable said nothing would be decided until the champion had a chance to talk with the commission and the New York district attorney on his arrival in New York about Jan. 10.

Gen Melvin Krulewitch, chairman of the commission, issued a statement, pointing out that no commitment had been made to any group about the Johansson-Patterson promotion.

A group headed by Roy Cohn, New York lawyer, visited Johansson and Ahlquist Monday in Sweden and reported complete agreement on the rematch.

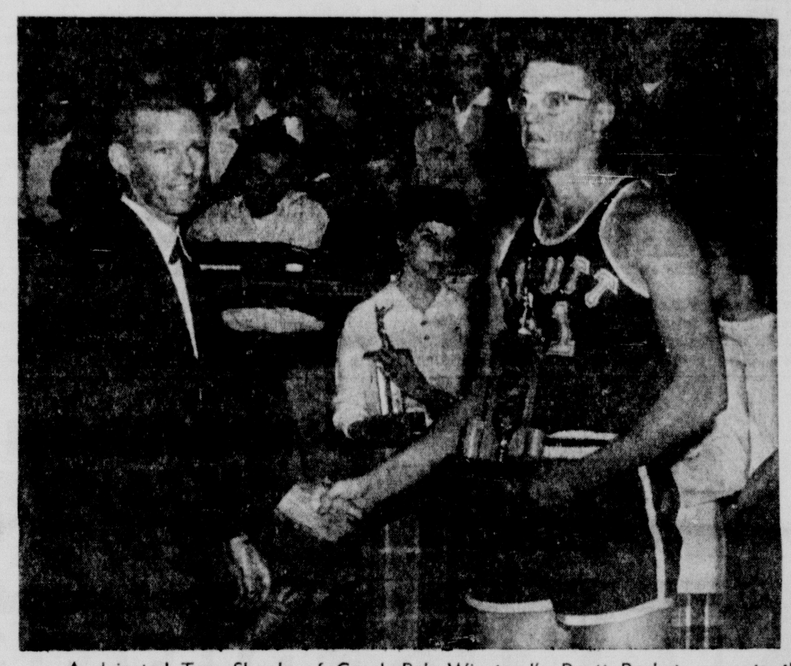
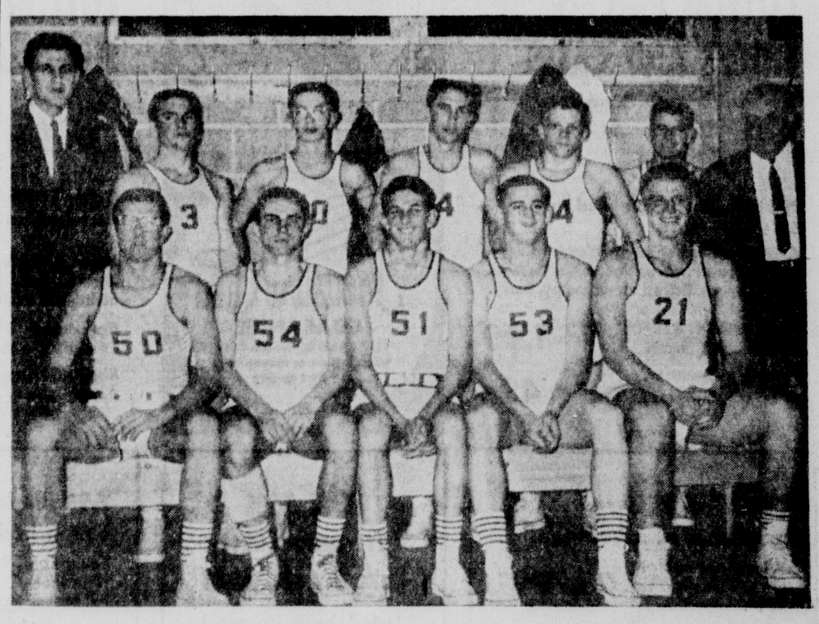
SHANLE ACCEPTS ROUTT'S AWARE



A dejected Tom Shanle of Coach Bob Winstead's Routt Rockets accepts the second place trophy from Waverly athletic director Joe Doglio Wednesday night after Routt lost to Virden in the finals of the ninth annual Waverly Holiday Tournament, 48-44.

Of the 32 playing minutes in the regulation game, our score pad revealed the Rockets were held scoreless for 15 minutes and 30 seconds in the game. They went 2:50 without a point in the first chapter and then hit scoring lapses of 2:15, 1:03 and 3:22 in the third stanza and then were shutout for six minutes of play in the fourth canto. So, of the 15 minutes and 30 seconds of pointless ball, Routt was blanked for nine minutes and 22 seconds consecutive playing time.

RAILROADERS 2nd IN VALLEY



The Roodhouse Railroaders, seeded second in the Illinois Valley Tournament at Carrollton, finished in that position behind favored Winchester. Coach Howard Berline's crew enter the new season with a six win, three lost record.

"SPITTING IMAGE"

Origin of the expression "spitting image" was in 17th century England and stems from the belief that one's saliva is the essence of one's being. A child then who was the spit and image of someone else was considered exactly like him in every respect, physically as well as spiritually.

Newsman Reviews Year's Events In Cuba Since Castro Took Rein From Batista

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Miami Herald Staff Writer
Copywright 1959
Miami Herald Publishing Co.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The last time I saw Cuba, I was escorted to a waiting plane by an armed military guard, just seven days ago.

A youngster who serves as a DIER (secret police) guard asked me before I boarded the plane: "Are you angry with the Cuban people now?"

"No," I told him, thinking of the Cuban people as a whole. "I'm just sorry for you."

What a change has crept over the lovely Caribbean island in these 12 months. My thoughts take the form of a letter.

To the Cuban people

Weeks ago I had intended to be back in Havana tonight to celebrate the coming of the New Year and the anniversary of your revolution.

But instead, I have been banned from your country and told that I can never come back.

A year ago I reported your hopes and ambitions for the new Cuba. On January 21 I wrote in the Herald:

"Change is apparent everywhere in the island and in every walk of life. There's happiness, and gaiety, and most of all—hope."

Those were the days when foreign newsmen were welcome in Cuba.

You were free to talk and the press was free to report. It was a calm friendly time, and a government secure in the will of its people found no reason to limit freedom of expression.

What has happened to your country since then?

On June 30, Maj. Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz resigned as the chief of the air force, charging Communist activity in the government. He fled the country.

On July 17, President Manuel Urrutia was forced to resign, after Fidel charged him with being a traitor to the revolution.

On Oct. 21, Maj. Hubert Matos, a longtime Castro buddy and one of the revolutionary favorites, resigned his army post, charging Communist influence in the government. He was later tried as a traitor and sentenced to 20 years.

On Oct. 27, Maj. Camilio Cienfuegos, army chief of staff and second only to Fidel in popularity with you vanished under mysterious circumstances. The anti-government whispers grew louder throughout your country.

As the tide began swinging away from the regime, new laws made it possible to confiscate your property merely if you were arrested for, not convicted of, counter-revolutionary activity.

Your newspapers were told they must print a statement denouncing all foreign news which is critical of the revolution.

You have virtually lost your freedom to talk, except when you agree with your government. I have lost my fredom to write, because I did in your country what newspapermen have done traditionally all over the world—gone after a good news story, even when it involved someone unfriendly to the political leaders.

My editors intend to appeal my verdict and ask for exoneration by the Cuban courts. We all know, of course, that this could be granted only on signal from Fidel.

Few men have had the opportunity to make a nation great as has Fidel Castro.

The opportunity is still there.

A few months from now the end of this chapter in the hopeful new Cuba may well be written.

Fidel himself must decide what the outcome will be.

The hope that the revolution promised all of you in January.

Or the fear and hostility that many of you and I found in December.

My New Year's wish to you, my friends, is that his choice will be right.

LISTEN TO WLDS

SHE WILL NOT LEAVE — The face of 74-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth Prettyjohn reflects the years that she has lived by the sea. It's too many years to leave, though her home, battered by the waves repeatedly, is the sole remaining building of the village of Hallsands, England, which was washed away in a 1917 storm. The rugged individualist has lived alone since the death of her brother six years ago.

Grace Church Plans African Study Unit

During the month of January and the first Sunday of February, there will be a special mission unit on Africa for children, from the first through the seventh grade, during the regular junior church time at the Grace Methodist church. Mrs. Robert Brubaker, secretary of children's work, will be in charge, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blackman, Mrs. J. A. Mann, Mrs. Glen Kendall, Mrs. John Patterson and Mrs. Marion Schell.

There will be interesting stories, games, activities, and films all about Africa. Of special interest will be three films: Jan. 3—"Congo Journey," a tour of Methodist Mission Stations and African life; Jan. 24 — "End to Darkness," a story of an African boy learning to read and write and conflicting ideals he meets; Jan. 31 — "Sumo, a Boy of Africa," a typical day with an African boy.

It is hoped that many will take advantage of this opportunity to study this distant yet important country.

There is no problem to the play at six no-trump. South wins the spade lead in dummy and goes after the club suit. He has to lose a trick to West's queen but makes four clubs, two hearts and three in each of the other suits for a total of 12.

The South hibbing has been discussed in the Card Sense questions but it is the North bidding that is really worthy of study.

South's opening club bid and two no-trump rebid showed 18 or 19 points and North has 16 points of his own. He could have jumped right to six no-trump but North wanted to explore grand slam possibilities.

His three heart bid temporized and when South raised to four North showed his diamond ace South the spade ace, North the club king and South the diamond king.

At this point, North went to six no-trump. This bid clearly told his partner that he (North) could have bid six no-trump any time but wanted to invite seven.

South studied a while and came to the conclusion that while his side held all the aces and kings the really important queens of hearts and clubs were in possession of the enemy. Seven still might make it but it was not a good contract and South passed at the safe spot.

Answer Monday

STORE IT RIGHT

When you are having a party and there are more vegetables and fruit on hand than will go into your refrigerator crisper, put them in moisture-proof wrapping in the regular food compartment.

PREPARE AHEAD

You can prepare a graham cracker crust ahead, cover it tightly and refrigerate it. Then when you are ready to use it, you can bake the crust and add the filling.

Sewing Lessons For 4-H Leaders Open Here Jan. 5

"If you want to learn how to sew you should come to the clothing construction work shop on Jan. 5 and 7 from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Farm Bureau Hall in Jacksonville," says the Assistant Youth Adviser, Mrs. Veronika Burgess.

The work shop is provided for all Morgan and Scott county 4-H leaders, the 4-H County Committee members and parents of 4-H members.

During the two days the group will make three garments (blouse, skirt and dress), and discuss the 4-H project Unit—"How to Buy Your Clothes."

Those who plan to attend the work shop should take prepared material for at least one garment as follows: 1. Shrink and straighten grain line of cloth. 2. Have garments and interfacing cut out and put in all markings (including notches) with tracing wheel. 3. Have garments stay-stitched 1/16 inch to 1 inch from the seam line. 4. Bring pattern pieces along in envelope and have all pieces marked with your name. 5. Have skirt band and selvage placket reinforcement measured and cut out.

Each person should take sewing machine, shears, tape measure, thread to match the color of the cloth, dressmaker pins, needle, thimble and 4-H sewing books.

CELESTON—Not really worth a plugged nickel, this gold coin, called a "celeston," is designed to serve as currency for spacemen. It was minted by the "Nation of Celestial Space," founded by James T. Mangan of Chicago, who has laid claim to all of outer space. Mangan's daughter Ruth displays the coin, which bears her likeness.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Greg Peck, probably the first Hollywood star to attend a premiere of his own movie in Moscow, says the Russians didn't see anything controversial about "On the Beach."

American audiences mostly have found it highly controversial inasmuch as it deals with the final days of a group of Australians—the last people on earth alive after a hydrogen war. Only the long Pacific drift of the hydrogen-radioactive cloud has given Australia a few extra months of life.

'No one I talked to, many of them high in the Soviet cultural program, found the film controversial. At most they called it a dramatic warning," Peck says.

"I was a little apprehensive at first that the picture would offend the Russians. They enjoyed it and applauded it. Mostly, they wanted to talk about filmmaking in general."

Peck and his wife landed in Moscow around 9 p.m., quickly caught the second act of the Bolshoi Ballet and at midnight walked around Red Square in 20-below-zero weather.

"We were only in town two days," he explains, "and we wanted to see everything."

Peck said he was unrecognized by the rank-and-file Moscow public but the cultural exchange people all knew him, mostly for "Roman Holiday."

"The Russian public sees only pre-World War II American movies but the cultural exchange people preview recent American movies at private showings."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner are testing an old Hollywood jinx that says husbands and wives should not make love to each other on the screen.

The two are costarring in "All the Fine Young Cannibals" at MGM.

"I think," says Natalie, "Hollywood couples have made a mistake in the past in doing husband-and-wife situation comedy type things.

"People don't want to see a husband and wife do the same thing on screen that they do at home. In this picture, I ruin Bob and vice versa-and even have an affair with another man. We are not married to each other in the script."

NAME EXAMINERS ON EMBALMING

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Examiners on funeral directing and embalming were appointed Thursday by Gov. Stratton.

Raymond A. Crawshaw of Murphysboro succeeds G. Nyle Huffman of Carbondale; Eugene Barrick Jr. of Danville succeeds the late Horace V. Clark of Charleston; Daniel A. Justen of McHenry succeeds Harlan A. Williamson of Jacksonville and Frank F. Opyt of Chicago succeeds John P. Kringes of Chicago.

Dean C. Gardner of Prophetstown was reappointed.

The terms vary in length and expire as follows: Crawshaw, June 30, 1961; Barrick, June 30, 1962; Justen, June 30, 1960; Opyt, June 30, 1964, and Gardner, June 30, 1963.

CHURCH GOERS

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Where a family lives has a lot to do with how often it goes to church, a survey by two members of the University of Michigan Flint College faculty indicates. It showed that people that live near a church attend more often than those who have to travel a greater distance, and that people in the suburbs attend much more often than city dwellers.

Youngblood Aid Society Meets At Nortonville

The Youngblood Ladies Aid met at the Nortonville Community hall with Mrs. Minnie Bolton and Mrs. Mary Bolton as hostesses.

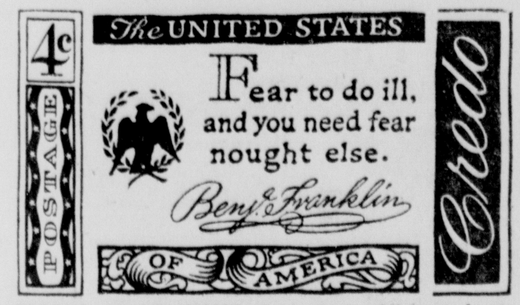
REJECT LONGER SEASON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Fish and Wildlife Service Thursday rejected proposals for extension of the duck hunting season in states which have large numbers of birds in contrast to the general pattern of shortage.

There had been suggestions for extended seasons particularly in Colorado, where the season closed Dec. 14, and in Texas where it closes Jan. 1.

Recently the service also ruled against an early closing of the season in areas where ducks are in short supply. The season varies in different areas but will be over in all states Jan. 8.

The service said that as a result of vagaries in migration, caused by weather and food supplies, it is not uncommon for the duck distribution pattern to shift from year to year.



SECOND CREDO STAMP—Benjamin Franklin's words are inscribed on this second of the American "credo" stamps. It will be placed on sale in Philadelphia on March 23. It's one of a series of six.

Birth Control, Politics Make Big Story In Religion In '59

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

Birth control and politics combined to make up one of the big stories of 1959 in religion.

It was touched off at the annual conference of Roman Catholic bishops in the United States when they took up arms against an old enemy—artificial birth prevention.

Catholics, said the bishops, will not support "any public assistance, either at home or abroad, to promote artificial birth prevention."

The statement, handed down on the eve of a presidential election year, sent birth control advocates scurrying to pin down Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), a prospective candidate and a Catholic, on the subject.

"Would a Roman Catholic president be influenced by Church doctrine or policy in the conduct of office?" they asked.

Kennedy said he would act "in the interest of the United States," thus satisfying no one and drawing criticism from both sides on the explosive issue.

The question was part of a larger one—can a Catholic be elected president of the United States?—which will probably receive a lot of attention in 1960.

Pope John XXIII's call for the first Ecumenical Council in nearly 100 years drew extraordinary interest when the pontiff inserted the phrase: "We . . . open our hearts and arms to all those who are separated from the Apostolic See."

The sentence was widely interpreted as a Roman Catholic bid to heal its ancient split with the Eastern Orthodox churches and possibly beckon some Protestants back to Rome.

As the year wore on, however, initial enthusiasm waned and preliminary talks betwen Orthodox and Catholic leaders were called off because of too much publicity.

The Gospel according to Thomas, discovered in 1946 in Egypt, finally was published in its entirety in English translation during 1959 amid scholarly warnings that it could not be taken as canon.

Nevertheless, Swiss theologian Oscar Cullmann called the 114 sayings of Jesus "comparable in importance to the Dead Sea scrolls and of even greater significance to students of the New Testament."

Evangelical Bishop Otto Dibelius, who has spent the postwar years fencing with the East German Communist authorities, dropped a bomb in Germany in a birthday letter to his friend, Bishop Hanns Lilje.

The controversy over the confirmation of the Rev. Dr. Theodore A. Gill as president of the San Francisco — Presbyterian—Theological Seminary. Opponents accused Dr. Gill of denying the Virgin birth.

The appointment of six new cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church, bringing the college enrollment to a new high of 79. Two were Americans, the Most Rev. Albert Meyer, archbishop of Chicago and the Most Rev. Aloisius Muench, bishop of Fargo, N. D.

The merger of the Unitarian and Universalist churches and the split among Korean Christian churches over the age-old issue, fundamentalist vs. modernist.

Believe 'Cord Of Age' May Be Clue In Aging Process

Associated Press Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—A mysterious "cord of age" that forms and grows through a hollow tube—and then withers and dies from unknown cause—may be a possible clue in the aging process.

The experiment of Dr. Hans Selye, internationally known researcher at the University of Montreal, was described Wednesday at the annual meeting of the American Assn. for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Selye did not appear but his paper was ready by a research associate, Dr. Plinio Prioreschi.

Selye believes old age may be the accumulated result of the strains and stresses the body absorbs during its lifetime. Under this theory, a person ages and dies because his system has exhausted its energy to adapt to additional stress.

The death of the mysterious cord, Selye theorized, could be due to local exhaustion of adaptability.

First a fluid, similar to blood plasma but richer in protein, began filling the empty tube. Membranes of living tissue then drew across both openings of the tube, sealing in the fluid. Both the fluid and membranes contained fibrin, the clotting agent in blood.

Soon the fibrin in the fluid began to gather and shrink into a thin lifeless cord that connected the membranes on the tube ends.

At this point, living cells began to descend the cord from the membrane ends like sparks sputtering down a fuse. When they met in the middle, the cord was alive. It was a tendon with a blood supply, connective tissue and other necessities of organic life.

But a month or two after it assumed full growth, the cord began to break down. Ten to 15 days later it was dead, apparently of old age, although the rat still was alive and healthy.

In experiments, however, Selye found a way to keep such a cord alive. When the fluid surrounding it was removed every few days and fresh fluid was allowed to form, the cord remained healthy during the lifetime of the rat.

BAPTISTS ON MOVE

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Eleven Southern Baptist state offices either have or are planning to move into new quarters.

Plans for new buildings are underway in Arkansas, South Carolina, Virginia, Kansas, Alabama, Colorado, and Mississippi.

THIS OLD HOUSE IS NEW—Under construction in Charlottesville, Pa., is a replica of the house called Shadwell where Thomas Jefferson was born. The site is not far from Monticello, Jefferson's famous home. Built in the 1730s, the original Shadwell burned down in 1760.

Scott Holiday Parties Usher In New Year

By Dorothy Sauer
(Winchester Correspondent)
Telephone (Pioneer 2-3439)

WINCHESTER — Several couples in Winchester entertained at parties on New Year's Eve. Among these were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. William Jefferson were hosts to a group of friends including Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lair, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Todd, Mr. and Mrs. George Peak, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Denton Coonrod, Doris Hoots and Mr. and Mrs. Pete Peterson. A late buffet supper was served.

Steven Howell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everette Howell and Chuck Yelm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Del Yelm, entertained a large group of friends with dancing and games at a New Year's Eve watch party from 9:00 to 12:30 in the educational building of the M.E. church.

Guests at the Dick Lashmet home on New Year's Eve were Mr. and Mrs. James Ego, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Slater, Mr. and Mrs. Urban Sauer, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Woodcock, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Welsh.

A potluck dinner commenced the New Year's Eve party held at the Howard Lockman home. Guests in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mann, Mr. and Mrs. Don McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Watt and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cherry.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Watt, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Faris and Dr. and Mrs. Paul Garrison were guests at the R. R. Funk home at a party on New Year's Eve.

A late buffet supper was served to the guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Breeding on New Year's Eve. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. James Lashmet, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Flynn, Mr. and Mrs. Everette Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Montgomery and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thady.

Past Matrons Will Meet

The Winchester Past Matrons Club will hold their annual potluck dinner meeting on Monday, Jan. 4, at 6:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. R. R. Funk. A short business meeting will be held.

The drink and dessert for the dinner will be furnished by the hostess, Mrs. Funk. Each member is asked to bring her own table service and a covered dish.

St. Mark's Hears Nun

Sister Mary Famula, Maryknoll nun who has been a missionary in Hong Kong for the past 30 years and is presently taking courses at St. Louis University, was the guest speaker in St. Mark's Hall to members of St. Mark's parish and other interested citizens of the community. Sister Famula told of her experiences in the missionary field and spoke of the friendliness between religions in China, where to be a Christian means to very much. She told that the first thing the little ones entering kindergarten are taught by the Communists in the school over there are to learn to say over and over the words, "I do not love my Mother. I do not love my Father. I love my government." The sister told of how they persecute the children if the parents will not join the Communist party. The children of such parents are made to stand against the wall all day with their arms outspread as punishment for their parents' bad thoughts. Further, the parents are ridiculed in school in front of all the children till finally the child begins to believe that his parents are the wrong ones. A film depicting a true story of just one family in Hong Kong was shown by Sister Nathan Marie, grade teacher at a Negro school in St. Louis, who accompanied Sister Famula to Winchester. Following the film Sister Famula again told of more of her experiences in Manchuria and Hong Kong and answered questions asked by individuals in the audience.

While in Winchester the sisters were house guests at the B. F. Walker home. Mrs. Walker and Sister Famula are cousins.

Hospitality Enjoyed

Sister Mary Famula and Sister Nathan Marie have asked that a personal note of thanks from them be published in appreciation of their delightful stay in Winchester — "Dear Winchesterians: After thirty years away, usually in very crowded cities, it was delightful to experience the warmth and friendliness of Winchester, at the Kiwanis Club and at St. Mark's Church. This is the real America—so little known abroad—where helpfulness and generosity and spontaneous liking of other people and where people don't lock their doors are normal. We loved being a part of you for these few days and we are grateful to you for your generous contributions for our work. We should have liked to thank each one of you personally but we were afraid that we might miss even one of your names and we didn't want to do that. Most of all we want to thank Mr. and Mrs. Red Walker for their invitation to us and for the thousand little and big kindnesses that they kept doing for us—and Father O'Hara of St. Mark's Church for making the visit possible, and for cutting short his own visit with his family to ensure the success of ours.

May God bless all of you and may you have a blessed New Year! Shan nin omedito! Sister Mary Famula King hei shan nin! Sister Nathan Marie."

Wedding Announced

Announcement has been made of the December 24 wedding of Miss Nancy Ann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith of Detroit, Ill., to Arthur H. Brackett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brackett of Winchester. The ceremony was performed by Elder Theodore Evans at his home near Winchester. Attendants for the bride and groom were Mr. and Mrs. Jon Phillips of Jacksonville, sister and brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

The bride is a beautician employed in Griggsville. Brackett has employment in Springfield. The young couple are at present residing in Winchester.

Sheriff's Report

Sheriff Lloyd Martin of Scott County reports that for the year 1959, or more accurately from December 1958 to December, 1959, he traveled 22,990 miles in making calls, arrests, etc. From December, 1959 to January 1, 1960, he has again travelled 3,100 miles. Of this last mileage a trip to pick up a prisoner in Grand Rapids, Mich., is included. During the past year there were 3 highway fatalities and 78 warrants issued for arrests. Numerous other calls and investigations were also made by the sheriff and his deputies.

During the past year the sheriff's office also collected 99.1% of all taxes extended for collection during 1959 and on back taxes.

Personals

Mrs. B. F. Walker, Jerry Pranger and Pat Scott were visitors in St. Louis on Thursday. Returning with them to their Convent House were Sister Mary Famula and Sister Nathan Marie.

Mr. and Mrs. Urban Sauer and Carolyn were business visitors in Springfield on Thursday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Woolever and daughters have returned to their home in Beaver, Pa., following a visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Corrie have returned home from Chicago where they attended a state IEA meeting this past week.
